

THE LIBRARY

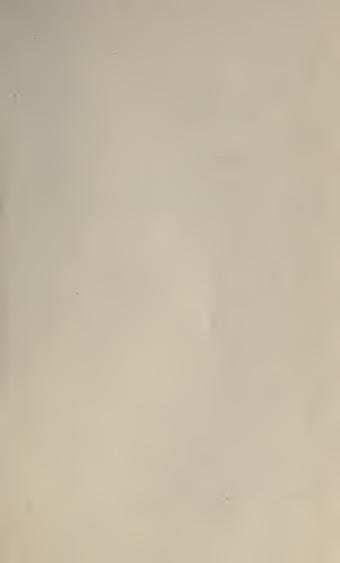

of

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY

Toronto

THE LOEB CLASSICAL LIBRARY

FOUNDED BY JAMES LOEB, LL.D.

EDITED BY

† T. E. PAGE, c.h., LITT.D.

E. CAPPS, Ph.D., LL.D.

W. H. D. ROUSE, LITT.D.

VARRO ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE

Ι

VARRO

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE

WITH AN ENGLISH TRANSLATION BY ROLAND G. KENT, Ph.D.

PROFESSOR OF COMPARATIVE PHILOLOGY IN THE UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN TWO VOLUMES

Ι

BOOKS V.-VII.

UNIDON
WILLIAM HEINEMANN LTD
CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS
HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS
MCMXXXVIII

PA 6792 A3 K4 V.1

06129

Printed in Great Britain

CONTENTS

NTRODUCTION			PAGE
Varro's Life and Works			vii
Varro's Grammatical Works .			viii
Varro's De Lingua Latina			ix
The Manuscripts of the De Lingua L	atina		xii
The Laurentian Manuscript $F$ .			xv
The Orthography of the De Lingua I	Latina		xvii
The Editions of the De Lingua Latin	а		xxvii
Bibliography		. 3	xxiii
Our Text of the De Lingua Latina			xliii
The Critical Apparatus			xliv
The Translation of the De Lingua Lo	atina		xlv
The Notes to the Translation .		,	xlvi
Symbols and Abbreviations .			xlix
DE LINGUA LATINA, TEXT AND TRANSP	LATION
Book V			2
Book VI	•		172
Book VII			266

VARRO'S LIFE AND WORKS

MARCUS TERENTIUS VARRO Was born in 116 B.C., probably at Reate in the Sabine country, where his family, which was of equestrian rank, possessed large estates. He was a student under L. Aelius Stilo Praeconinus, a scholar of the equestrian order, widely versed in Greek and Latin literature and especially interested in the history and antiquities of the Roman people. He studied philosophy at Athens, with Antiochus of Ascalon. With his tastes thus formed for scholarship, he none the less took part in public life, and was in the campaign against the rebel Sertorius in Spain, in 76. He was an officer with Pompey in the war with the Cilician pirates in 67, and presumably also in Pompey's campaign against Mithradates. In the Civil War he was on Pompey's side, first in Spain and then in Epirus and Thessaly.

He was pardoned by Caesar, and lived quietly at Rome, being appointed librarian of the great collection of Greek and Latin books which Caesar planned to make. After Caesar's assassination, he was proscribed by Antony, and his villa at Casinum, with his personal library, was destroyed. But he himself escaped death by the devotion of friends, who concealed him, and he secured the protection of Octavian.

He lived the remainder of his life in peace and quiet, devoted to his writings, and died in 27 B.C., in his eighty-ninth year.

Throughout his life he wrote assiduously. His works number seventy-four, amounting to about six hundred and twenty books; they cover virtually all fields of human thought: agriculture, grammar, the history and antiquities of Rome, geography, law, rhetoric, philosophy, mathematics and astronomy, education, the history of literature and the drama, satires, poems, orations, letters.

Of all these only one, his De Re Rustica or Treatise on Agriculture, in three books, has reached us complete. His De Lingua Latina or On the Latin Language, in twenty-five books, has come down to us as a torso; only Books V. to X. are extant, and there are serious gaps in these. The other works are represented by scattered fragments only.

VARRO'S GRAMMATICAL WORKS

The grammatical works of Varro, so far as we know them, were the following:

De Lingua Latina, in twenty-five books, a fuller account of which is given below.

De Antiquitate Litterarum, in two books, addressed to the tragic poet L. Accius, who died about 86 B.C.; it was therefore one of Varro's earliest writings.

De Origine Linguae Latinae, in three books, addressed to Pompey.

Περὶ Χαρακτήρων, in at least three books, on the formation of words.

Quaestiones Plautinae, in five books, containing viii interpretations of rare words found in the comedies of Plautus.

De Similitudine Verborum, in three books, on regularity in forms and words.

De Utilitate Sermonis, in at least four books, in which he dealt with the principle of anomaly or irregularity.

De Sermone Latino, in five books or more, addressed to Marcellus, which treats of orthography and the metres of poetry.

Disciplinae, an encyclopaedia on the liberal arts, in nine books, of which the first dealt with Grammatica.

The extant fragments of these works, apart from those of the De Lingua Latina, may be found in the Goetz and Schoell edition of the De Lingua Latina, pages 199-242; in the collection of Wilmanns, pages 170-223; and in that of Funaioli, pages 179-371 (see the Bibliography).

VARRO'S DE LINGUA LATINA

Varro's treatise On the Latin Language was a work in twenty-five books, composed in 47 to 45 B.C., and published before the death of Cicero in 43.

The first book was an introduction, containing at the outset a dedication of the entire work to Cicero. The remainder seems to have been divided into four sections of six books each, each section being by its subject matter further divisible into two halves of three books each.

Books II.-VII. dealt with the impositio vocabulorum, or how words were originated and applied to things and ideas. Of this portion, Books II.-IV. were probably an earlier smaller work entitled De Etymologia or the like; it was separately dedicated to one Septumius or Septimius, who had at some time, which we cannot now identify, served Varro as quaestor. Book II. presented the arguments which were advanced against Etymology as a branch of learning; Book III. presented those in its favour as a branch of learning, and useful; Book IV. discussed its nature.

Books V.-VII. start with a new dedication to Cicero. They treat of the origin of words, the sources from which they come, and the manner in which new words develop. Book V. is devoted to words which are the names of places, and to the objects which are in the places under discussion; VI. treats words denoting time-ideas, and those which contain some time-idea, notably verbs; VII. explains rare and difficult words which are met in the writings of the poets.

Books VIII.-XIII. dealt with derivation of words from other words, including stem-derivation, declension of nouns, and conjugation of verbs. The first three treated especially the conflict between the principle of Anomaly, or Irregularity, based on consuctudo 'popular usage,' and that of Analogy, or Regularity of a proportional character, based on ratio 'relation' of form to form. VIII. gives the arguments against the existence of Analogy, IX. those in favour of its existence, X. Varro's own solution of the conflicting views, with his decision in favour of its existence. XI.-XIII. discussed Analogy in derivation, in the wide sense given above: probably XI. dealt with nouns of place and associated terms, XII. with time-ideas, notably verbs, XIII. with poetic words.

Books XIV.-XIX. treated of syntax. Books XX.-XXV. seem to have continued the same theme, but probably with special attention to stylistic and rhetorical embellishments.

Of these twenty-five books, we have to-day, apart from a few brief fragments, only Books V. to X., and in these there are several extensive gaps where the manuscript tradition fails.

The fragments of the De Lingua Latina, that is, those quotations or paraphrases in other authors which do not correspond to the extant text of Books V.-X., are not numerous nor long. The most considerable of them are passages in the Noctes Atticae of Aulus Gellius ii. 25 and xvi. 8. They may be found in the edition of Goetz and Schoell, pages 3, 146, 192-198, and in the collections of Wilmanns and Funaioli (see the Bibliography).

It is hardly possible to discuss here even summarily Varro's linguistic theories, the sources upon which he drew, and his degree of independence of thought and procedure. He owed much to his teacher Aelius Stilo, to whom he refers frequently, and he draws heavily upon Greek predecessors, of course, but his practice has much to commend it: he followed neither the Anomalists nor the Analogists to the extreme of their theories, and he preferred to derive Latin words from Latin sources, rather than to refer practically all to Greek origins. On such topics reference may be made to the works of Barwick, Kowalski, Dam, Dahlmann, Kriegshammer, and Frederik Muller, and to the articles of Wölfflin in the eighth volume of the Archiv für lateinische Lexikographie, all listed in our Bibliography.

THE MANUSCRIPTS OF THE DE LINGUA LATINA

The text of the extant books of the De Lingua Latina is believed by most scholars to rest on the manuscript here first listed, from which (except for our No. 4) all other known manuscripts have been copied, directly or indirectly.

1. Codex Laurentianus li. 10, folios 2 to 34, parchment, written in Langobardic characters in the eleventh century, and now in the Laurentian Library at Florence. It is known as F.

F was examined by Petrus Victorius and Iacobus Diacetius in 1521 (see the next paragraph); by Hieronymus Lagomarsini in 1740; by Heinrich Keil in 1851; by Adolf Groth in 1877; by Georg Schoell in 1906. Little doubt can remain as to its actual readings.

2. In 1521, Petrus Victorius and Iacobus Diacetius collated F with a copy of the editio princeps of the DeLinguaLatina, in which they entered the differences which they observed. Their copy is preserved in Munich, and despite demonstrable errors in other portions, it has the value of a manuscript for v. 119 to vi. 61, where a quaternion has since their time been lost in F. For this portion, their recorded readings are known as Fv; and the readings of the edito princeps, where they have recorded no variation, are known as (Fv).

3. The Fragmentum Cassinense (called also Excerptum and Epitome), one folio of Codex Cassinensis 361, parchment, containing v. 41 Capitolium dictum to the end of v. 56; of the eleventh century. It was probably copied direct from F soon after F was written, but may possibly have been copied from the archetype of F. It is still at Monte Cassino, and was transcribed by Keil in 1848. It was published in facsimile as an appendix to Sexti Iulii Frontini de aquaeductu Urbis Romae, a phototyped reproduction of the entire manuscript, Monte Cassino, 1930.

4. The grammarian Priscian, who flourished about A.D. 500, transcribed into his De Figuris Numerorum Varro's passage on coined money, beginning with multa, last word of v. 168, and ending with Nummi denarii decuma libella, at the beginning of v. 174. The passage is given in H. Keil's Grammatici Latini iii. 410-411. There are many manuscripts, the oldest and most important being Codex Parisinus 7496, of the ninth century.

5. Codex Laurentianus li. 5, written at Florence in 1427, where it still remains; it was examined by Keil.

It is known as f.

6. Codex Havniensis, of the fifteenth century; on paper, small quarto, 108 folia; now at Copenhagen. It was examined by B. G. Niebuhr for Koeler, and his records came into the hands of L. Spengel. It is known as H.

7. Codex Gothanus, parchment, of the sixteenth century, now at Gotha; it was examined by Regel for K. O. Mueller, who published its important variants in his edition, pages 270-298. It is known as G.

8. Codex Parisinus 7489, paper, of the fifteenth century, now at Paris; this and the next two were examined by Donndorf for L. Spengel, who gives their different readings in his edition, pages 661-718. It is known as a.

9. Codex Parisinus 6142, paper, of the fifteenth century; it goes only to viii. 7 declinarentur. It is known as  $b_{\bullet}$

10. Codex Parisinus 7535, paper, of the sixteenth century; it contains only v. 1-122, ending with dictae. It is known as c.

11. Codex Vindobonensis lxiii., of the fifteenth century, at Vienna; it was examined by L. Spengel in 1835, and its important variants are recorded in the apparatus of A. Spengel's edition. It is known as V.

12. Codex Basiliensis F iv. 13, at Basel; examined by L. Spengel in 1838. It is known as p.

13. Codex Guelferbytanus 896, of the sixteenth century, at Wolfenbüttel; examined by Schneidewin for K. O. Mueller, and afterwards by L. Spengel. It is known as M.

14. Codex B, probably of the fifteenth century, now not identifiable; its variants were noted by Petrus Victorius in a copy of the Editio Gryphiana, and either it or a very similar manuscript was used by Antonius Augustinus in preparing the so-called Editio Vulgata.

These are the manuscripts to which reference is made in our critical notes; there are many others, some of greater authority than those placed at the end of our list, but their readings are mostly not available. In any case, as F alone has prime value, the variants of other than the first four in our list can be only the attempted improvements made by their copyists, and have accordingly the same value as that which attaches to the emendations of editors of printed editions.

Fuller information with regard to the manuscripts may be found in the following:

Leonhard Spengel, edition of the De Lingua Latina (1826), pages v-xviii.

K. O. Mueller, edition (1833), pages xii-xxxi. Andreas Spengel, edition (1885), pages ii-xxviii. Giulio Antonibon, Supplemento di Lezioni Varianti ai libri de lingua Latina (1899), pages 10-23.

G. Goetz et F. Schoell, edition (1910), pages xi-xxxv.

THE LAURENTIAN MANUSCRIPT F

Manuscript F contains all the extant continuous text of the De Lingua Latina, except v. 119 trua quod to vi. 61 dicendo finit; this was contained in the second quaternion, now lost, but still in place when the other manuscripts were copied from it, and when Victorius and Diacetius collated it in 1521. There are a number of important lacunae, apart from omitted lines or single words; these are due to losses in its archetype.

Leonhard Spengel,<sup>a</sup> from the notations in the manuscript and the amount of text between the gaps, calculated that the archetype of F consisted of 16 quaternions, with these losses:

Quaternion 4 lacked folios 4 and 5, the gap after v. 162.

Quaternion 7 lacked folio 2, the end of vi. and the beginning of vii., and folio 7, the gap after vii. 23. Quaternion 11 was missing entire, the end of viii. and the beginning of ix.

Quaternion 15 lacked folios 1 to 3, the gap after x. 23, and folios 6 to 8, the gap after x. 34.

The amount of text lost at each point can be calculated from the fact that one folio of the archetype held about 50 lines of our text.

 Über die Kritik der Varronischen Bücher de Lingua Latina, pp. 5-12.

There is a serious transposition in F, in the text of Book V. In § 23, near the end, after qui ad humum, there follows ut Sabini, now in § 32, and so on to Septimontium, now in § 41; then comes demissior, now in § 23 after humum, and so on to ab hominibus, now in § 32, after which comes nominatum of § 41. Mueller, a who identified the transposition and restored the text to its true order in his edition, showed that the alteration was due to the wrong folding of folios 4 and 5 in the first quaternion of an archetype of F; though this was not the immediate archetype of F, since the amount of text on each page was different.

This transposition is now always rectified in our printed texts; but there is probably another in the later part of Book V., which has not been remedied because the breaks do not fall inside the sentences, thus making the text unintelligible. The sequence of topics indicates that v. 115-128 should stand between v. 140 and v. 141 b; there is then the division by topics:

General Heading v. 105 v. 105-112 De Victu

De Vestitu v. 113-114, 129-133

v. 134-140, 115-128, 141-183 De Instrumento

a In the preface to his edition, pp. xvii-xviii. The disorder in the text had previously been noticed by G. Buchanan, Turnebus, and Scaliger, and discussed by L. Spengel, Emendationum Varronianarum Specimen I, pp. 17-19.

b L. Spengel, Emendationum Varronianarum Specimen I, pp. 13-19, identified this transposition, but considered the transpositions to be much more complicated, with the following order: §§ 105-114, §§ 129-140, § 128, §§ 166-168, §§ 118-127, §§ 115-117, §§ 141-165, § 169 on.

Then also vi. 49 and vi. 45 may have changed places, but I have not introduced this into the present text; I have however adopted the transfer of x. 18 from its manuscript position after x. 20, to the position before x. 19, which the continuity of the thought clearly demands.

The text of F is unfortunately very corrupt, and while there are corrections both by the first hand and by a second hand, it is not always certain that the corrections are to be justified.

THE ORTHOGRAPHY OF THE DE LINGUA LATINA

The orthography of F contains not merely many corrupted spellings which must be corrected, but also many variant spellings which are within the range of recognized Latin orthography, and these must mostly be retained in any edition. For there are many points on which we are uncertain of Varro's own practice, and he even speaks of certain permissible variations: if we were to standardize his orthography, we should do constant violence to the best manuscript tradition, without any assurance that we were in all respects restoring Varro's own spelling. Moreover, as this work is on language, Varro has intentionally varied some spellings to suit his etymological argument; any extensive normalization might, and probably would, do him injustice in some passages. Further, Varro quotes from earlier authors who used an older orthography; we do not know whether Varro, in quoting from them, tried to use their original orthography, or merely used the orthography which was his own habitual practice.

I have therefore retained for the most part the spellings of F, or of the best authorities when F fails, replacing only a few of the more misleading spellings by the familiar ones, and allowing other variations to remain. These variations mostly fall within the following categories:

1. EI: Varro wrote EI for the long vowel I in the nom. pl. of Decl. II (ix. 80); but he was probably not consistent in writing EI everywhere. The manuscript testifies to its use in the following: plebei (gen.; cf. plebis vi. 91, in a quotation) v. 40, 81, 158, vi. 87; eidem (nom. sing.) vii. 17 (eadem F), x. 10; scirpeis vii. 44; Terentiei (nom.), vireis Terentieis (masc.), Terentieis (fem.) viii. 36; infeineiteis viii. 50 (changed to infiniteis in our text, cf. (in)finitam viii. 52); i(e)is viii. 51 (his F), ix. 5; iei (nom.) ix. 2, 35; hei re(e)i fer(re)ei de(e)i viii. 70; hinnulei ix. 28; utrei (nom. pl.) ix. 65 (utre.I. F; cf. utri ix. 65); (B\a\epsilon)e\epsilon\epsilon\epsilon}e\epsilon\

2. AE and E: Varro, as a countryman, may in some words have used E where residents of the city of Rome used AE (cf. v. 97); but the standard orthography has been introduced in our text, except that E has been retained in seculum and sepio (and its compounds: v. 141, 150, 157, 162, vii. 7, 13), which always appear in this form.

3. OE and U: The writing OE is kept where it appears in the manuscript or is supported by the context: moerus and derivatives v. 50, 141 bis, 143, vi. 87; moenere, moenitius v. 141; Poenicum v. 113, viii. 65 bis; poeniendo v. 177. OE in other words is the standard orthography.

4. VO UO and VU UU: Varro certainly wrote only VO or UO, but the manuscript rarely shows VO or UO in inflectional syllables. The examples are novom ix. 20 (corrected from nouum in F); nominatuom ix. 95, x. 30 (both -tiuom F); obliquom x. 50; loquontur vi. 1, ix. 85; sequontur x. 71; clivos v. 158; perhaps amburvom v. 127 (impurro Fv). In initial syllables VO is almost regular: volt vi. 47, etc.; volpes v. 101; volgus v. 58, etc., but vulgo viii. 66; Volcanus v. 70; etc.; volsillis ix. 33. Examples of the opposite practice are aequum vi. 71; duum x. 11; antiquus vi. 68; sequuntur viii. 25; confluunt x. 50. Our text preserves the manuscript readings.

5. UV before a vowel: Varro probably wrote U and not UV before a vowel, except initially, where his practice may have been the other way. The examples are: Pacuius v. 60, vi. 6 (catulus (Fv)), 94, vii. 18, 76, and Pacuvius v. 17, 24, vii. 59; gen. Pacui v. 7, vi. 6, vii. 22; Pacuium vii. 87, 88, 91, 102; compluium, impluium v. 161, and pluvia v. 161, compluvium v. 125; simpuium v. 124 bis (simpulum codd.); cf. panuvellium v. 114. Initially: uvidus v. 24; uvae, uvore v. 104; uvidum v. 109.

6. U and I: Varro shows in medial syllables a variation between U and I, before P or B or F or M plus a vowel. The orthography of the manuscript has been retained in our text, though it is likely that Varro regularly used U in these types:

The superlative and similar words: albissumum viii. 75; frugalissumus viii. 77; c(a)esi(s)sumus viii. 76; intumus v. 154; maritumae v. 113; melissumum viii. 76; optumum vii. 51; pauperrumus viii. 77; proxuma etc. v. 36, 93, ix. 115, x. 4, 26; septuma etc. ix. 30, x. 46 ter; Septumio v. 1, vii. 109; superrumo

vii. 51; decuma vi. 54. Cf. proxima optima maxima v. 102, minimum vii. 101, and many in viii. 75-78.

Compounds of -fex and derivatives: pontufex v. 83, pontufices v. 83 (F<sup>2</sup> for pontifices); artufices ix. 12; sacruficiis v. 98, 124. Cf. pontifices v. 23, vi. 54, etc.; artifex v. 93, ix. 111, etc.; sacrificium vii. 88, etc.

Miscellaneous words: monumentum v. 148, but monimentum etc. v. 41, vi. 49 bis; mancupis v. 40, but mancipium etc. v. 163, vi. 74, 85; quadrupes v. 34, but quadripedem etc. vii. 39 bis, quadriplex etc. x. 46 etc., quadripertita etc. v. 12 etc.

7. LUBÉT and LIBET: Varro probably wrote lubet, lubido, etc., but the orthography varies, and the manuscript tradition is kept in our text: lubere lubendo vi. 47, lubenter vii. 89, lubitum ix. 34, lubidine x. 56; and libido vi. 47, x. 60, libidinosus Libentina Libitina vi. 47, libidine x. 61.

8. H: Whether Varro used the initial H according to the standard practice at Rome, is uncertain. In the country it was likely to be dropped in pronunciation; and the manuscript shows variation in its use. We have restored the H in our text according to the usual orthography, except that irpices, v. 136 bis, has been left because of the attendant text. Examples of its omission are Arpocrates v. 57; Ypsicrates v. 88; aedus ircus v. 97; olus olera v. 108, x. 50; olitorium v. 146; olitores vi. 20; ortis v. 103, ortorum v. 146 bis, orti vi. 20; aruspex vii. 88. These are normalized in our text, along with certain other related spellings: sepulchrum vii. 24 is made to conform to the usual sepulcrum, and the almost invariable nichil and nichili have been changed to nihil and nihili.

9. X and CS: There are traces of a writing CS for X, which has in these instances been kept in the text:

arcs vii. 44 (ares F); acsitiosae (ac sitiose F), acsitiosa (ac sitio a- F) vi. 66; ducs (duces F) x. 57.

10. DOUBLED CONSONANTS: Varro's practice in this matter is uncertain, in some words. F regularly has littera (only literis v. 3 has one T), but obliterata (ix. 16, -atae ix. 21, -avit v. 52), and these spellings are kept in our text. Communis has been made regular, though F usually has one M; casus is invariable, except for de cassu in cassum viii. 39, which has been retained as probably coming from Varro himself. Iupiter, with one P, is retained, because invariable in F; the only exception is Iuppitri viii. 33 (iuppiti F), which has also been kept. Numo vi. 61, for nummo, has been kept as perhaps an archaic spelling. Decusis ix. 81 has for the same reason been kept in the citation from Lucilius. In a few words the normal orthography has been introduced in the text: grallator vii. 69 bis for gralator, grabatis viii. 32 for grabattis. For combinations resulting from prefixes see the next paragraph.

11. Consonants of Prefixes: Varro's usage here is quite uncertain, whether he kept the unassimilated consonants in the compounds. Apparently in some groups he made the assimilations, in others he did not. The evidence is as follows, the variant orthography being retained in our text:

Ad-c-: always acc-, except possibly adcensos vii.  $58 (F^2, \text{ for acensos } F^1)$ .

Ad-f-: always aff-, except adfuerit vi. 40.

Ad-l-: always all-, except adlocutum vi. 57, adlucet

vi. 79, adlatis (ablatis F) ix. 21.

Ad-m-: always adm-, except ammonendum v. 6, amministrat vi. 78, amminicula vii. 2, amminister vii. 34 (F<sup>2</sup>, for adm- F<sup>1</sup>).

Ad-s-: regularly ass-, but also adserere vi. 64, adsiet vi. 92, adsimus vii. 99, adsequi viii. 8, x. 9, adsignificare often (always except assignificant vii. 80), adsumi viii. 69, adsumat ix. 42, adsumere x. 58.

Ad-sc-, ad-sp-, ad-st-: always with loss of the D, as in ascendere, ascribere, ascriptos (vii. 57), ascriptivi (vii. 56), aspicere, aspectus, astans.

Ad-t-: always att-, except adtributa v. 48, and possibly adtinuit  $(F^1, \text{ but } att-F^2)$  ix. 59.

Con-l-, con-b-, con-m-, con-r-: always coll-, comb-, comm-, corr-.

Con-p-: always comp-, except conpernis ix. 10.

Ex-f-: always eff-, except exfluit v. 29.

Ex-s-: exsolveret v. 176, exsuperet vi. 50, but exuperantum vii. 18 (normalized in our text to exsuperantum).

Ex-sc-: exculpserant v. 143.

Ex-sp-: always expecto etc. vi. 82, x. 40, etc.

Ex-sq-: regularly Esquilis; but Exquilis v. 25, Exquilis v. 159 (Fv), normalized to Esq- in our text.

Ex-st: extat v. 3, vi. 78; but exstat v. 3, normalized to extat in our text.

In-l-: usually ill-, but inlicium vi. 88 bis, 93 (illicitum F), 94, 95, inliceret vi. 90, inliciatur vi. 94; the variation is kept in our text:

In-m-: always imm-, except in (in)mutatis vi. 38, where the restored addition is unassimilated to indicate the negative prefix and not the local in.

In-p-: always imp-, except inpos v. 4 bis (once ineos F), inpotem v. 4 (inpotentem F), inplorat vi. 68.

Ob-c-, ob-f-, ob-p-: always occ-, off-, opp-.

Ob-t-: always opt-, as in optineo etc. vii. 17, 91, x. 19, optemperare ix. 6.

Per-l-: pellexit vi. 94, but perlucent v. 140.

xxii

Sub-c-, sub-f-, sub-p-: always succ-, suff-, supp-, except subcidit v. 116.

Sub-s- and subs-+ consonant: regularly sus-+ consonant, except subscribunt vii. 107.

Sub-t-: only in suptilius x. 40.

Trans-l-: in tralatum vi. 77, vii. 23, 103, x. 71; tralaticio vi. 55 (tranlatio Fv) and translaticio v. 32, vi. 64 (translatio F, tranlatio Fv), translaticiis vi. 78.

Trans-v-: in travolat v. 118, and transversus vii. 81,

x. 22, 23, 43.

Trans-d-: in traducere.

12. DE and DI: The manuscript has been followed in the orthography of the following: directo vii. 15, dirigi viii. 26, derecti x. 22 bis, deriguntur derectorum x. 22, derecta directis x. 43, directas x. 44, derigitur x. 74; deiunctum x. 45, deiunctae x. 47.

13. Second Declension: Nom. sing. and acc. sing.

in -uom and -uum, see 5.

Gen. sing. of nouns in -ius: Varro used the form ending in a single I (cf. viii. 36), and a few such forms stand in the manuscript: Muci v. 5 (muti F); Pacui v. 7, vi. 6, vii. 22; Mani vi. 90; Quinti vi. 92, Ephesi viii. 22 (ephesis F), Plauti et Marci viii. 36, dispendi ix. 54 (quoted, metrical; alongside dispendii ix. 54). The gen. in II is much commoner; both forms are kept in our text.

Nom. pl., written by Varro with EI (cf. ix. 80); examples are given in 1, above.

Gen. pl.: The older form in -um for certain words (denarium, centumvirum, etc.) is upheld viii. 71, ix. 82, 85, and occurs occasionally elsewhere: Velabrum v. 44, Querquetulanum v. 49, Sabinum v. 74, etc.

Dat.-abl. pl., written by Varro with EIS (cf. ix. 80); examples are given in 1, above, but the manuscript regularly has IS.

Dat.-abl. pl. of nouns ending in -ius, -ia, -ium, are almost always written IIS; there are a few for which the manuscript has IS, which we have normalized to IIS: Gabis v. 33, \( Es \)\rightarrow quilis v. 50, hostis v. 98, Publicis v. 158, Faleris v. 162, praeverbis vi. 82 (cf. praeverbis vi. 38 bis), mysteris vii. 34 (cf. mysteriis vii. 19), miliaris ix. 85 (militaris F).

Deus shows the following variations: Nom. pl.  $de\langle e \rangle i$  viii. 70, dei v. 57, 58 bis, 66, 71, vii. 36, ix. 59, dii v. 58, 144, vii. 16; dat.-abl. pl. deis v. 122, vii. 45, diis v. 69, 71, 182, vi. 24, 34, vii. 34.

14. Third Declension: The abl. sing. varies between E and I: supellectile viii. 30, 32, ix. 46, and supellectili ix. 20 (-lis F); cf. also vesperi (uespert- F) and vespere ix. 73.

Nom. pl., where ending in IS in the manuscript, is altered to ES; the examples are mediocris v. 5; partis v. 21, 56; ambonis v. 115; urbis v. 143; aedis v. 160; compluris vi. 15; Novendialis vi. 26; auris vi. 83; disparilis viii. 67; lentis ix. 34; omnis ix. 81; dissimilis ix. 92.

Gen. pl. in UM and IUM, see viii. 67. In view of dentum viii. 67, expressly championed by Varro, Veientum v. 30 (uenientum F), caelestum vi. 53, Quiritum vi. 68 have been kept in our text.

Acc. pl. in ES and IS, see viii. 67. Varro's distribution of the two endings seems to have been purely empirical and arbitrary, and the manuscript readings have been retained in our text.

15. FOURTH DECLENSION: Gen. sing.: Gellius, Noctes Atticae iv. 16. 1, tells us that Varro always used UIS in this form. Nonius Marcellus 483-494 M. cites eleven such forms from Varro, but also sumpti. The De Lingua Latina gives the following partial examples of this ending: usuis ix. 4 (suis F), x. 73 (usui F), casuis x. 50 (casuum F), x. 62 (casus his F). Examples of this form ending in US are kept in our text: fructus v. 34, 134, senatus v. 87, exercitus v. 88, panus v. 105, domus v. 162, census v. 181, motus vi. 3, sonitus vi. 67 bis, sensus vi. 80, usus viii. 28, 30 bis, casus ix. 76, manus ix. 80.

Gen. pl.: For the variation between UUM and UOM see 4, above. The form with one U is found in tribum v. 56, ortum v. 66, manum vi. 64 (manu F), magistratum viii. 83 (-tus F), declinatum x. 54; these have been normalized in our text to UUM (except manum, in an archaic formula). Note the following forms in the manuscript: cornuum v. 117, declinatuum vi. 36 (-tiuum Fv), x. 31, 32, 54, sensuum vi. 80; tribuum vi. 86; fructuum ix. 27; casuum ix. 77, x. 14, 23, manuum ix. 80, nominatuom (-tiuom F) ix. 95, x. 30, nominatuum x. 19.

16. HETEROCLITES: There are the following: gen. sing. plebei v. 40, 81, 158, vi. 87, and plebis vi. 91; nom. sing. elephans and acc. pl. elephantos vii. 39; abl. sing. Titano vii. 16; abl. pl. vasis v. 121, poematis vii. 2, 36, viii. 14, and poematibus vii. 34.

17. GREEK FORMS: There are the following: acc. sing. analogian ix. 1, 26, 33, 34, 45, 49, 76, 79, 105, 113, 114, but also analogiam ix. 90, 100, 110, x. 2, and analogia\(\alpha\) ix. 95, 111. Acc. sing. Aethiopa viii. 38 (ethiopam F). Nom. pl. Aeolis v. 25, 101, 102, 175, Athenaiis viii. 35.

18. Forms of IS and IDEM: The forms in the manuscript are kept in our text; there are the following to be noted:

Nom. sing. masc.: idem often; also eidem vii. 17

(eadem F), x. 10.

Nom. pl.: ii v. 26, ix. 2; iei ix. 2, 35; idem ix. 19. Dat.-abl. pl.: eis vi. 18, vii. 102, ix. 4, x. 8; ieis viii. 51 (his F, but assured by context), ix. 5; is vii. 5 (dis F); iisdem vi. 38; isdem vii. 8 (hisdem F), viii. 35 bis (hisdem F).

19. QUOM and CUM etc.: Varro wrote quom, quor, quoius, quoi, and not cum, cur, cuius, cui, though the latter spellings are much commoner in the manuscripts, the readings of which are kept in our text. Quom is not infrequent, being found vi. 42, 56, vii. 4, 105, viii. 1, x. 6, and in other passages where slight emendation is necessary. Quor is found only corrected to cur, viii. 68, 71, and hidden under quorum corrected to quod, viii. 78. Quoius is written viii. 44, ix. 43, x. 3, and in other passages where emendation is necessary. Quoi nowhere appears, unless it should be read for qui vi. 72, and quoique for quoque ix. 34, adopted in our text.

Both qui and quo are used for the abl. sing. of the relative, and quis and quibus for the dat.-abl. pl., and similar forms for quidam. In quo is used with a plural antecedent of any gender: v. 108, vi. 2, 55, 82, vii. 26, viii. 83, ix. 1, x. 8, 41.

20. ALTER and NEUTER: Gen. alii ix. 67 is found as well as alterius ix. 91; neutri ix. 62, neutra (e) x. 73, as well as neutrius ix. 1; dat. fem. aliae x. 15.

21. Contracted Perfects: Only the contracted perfects are found, such as appellarunt v. 22 etc., declinarit v. 7, aberraro v. 13, appellassent ix. 69, curasse vii. 38, consuerunt consuessent ix. 68, consuerit ix. 14 bis; exceptions, novissent vi. 60, auspicaverit vi. 86 (quoted), nuncupavero vii. 8 (quoted), vitaverunt x. 9.

Similarly, the V is omitted after I, as in praeterii ix. 7, prodierunt v. 13, expediero viii. 24, etc.; exception, quivero v. 5  $(F^2$ , for quiero  $F^1$ ).

22. PONO in Perfect: The text always has posui and its forms, except twice, which we have standardized: imposiverunt viii. 8, imposierint ix. 34.

23. GERUNDIVES: Varro used the old form of the gerundive and gerund with UND in the third and fourth conjugations, but the forms have mostly been replaced by those with END. The remaining examples of the older form are ferundo v. 104, ferundum vi. 29, faciundo vii. 9, quaerundae vii. 35, reprehendundi ix. 12, reprehendundus ix. 93.

24. VERSUS: The older forms vorto, vorti, vorsus are not found in the manuscript. The adverbial compounds of versus have (with one exception) been retained in our text as they appear in the manuscript: susus versus v. 158, susum versus ix. 65; deorsum, susum v. 161; rursus vi. 46, 49, ix. 86; deosum versus ix. 86; prosus and rusus (rosus F) x. 52.

THE EDITIONS OF THE DE LINGUA LATINA

There are the following printed editions of the De Lingua Latina, some of which appeared in numerous reprintings:

1. Editio princeps, edited by Pomponius Laetus; without statement of place and date, but probably printed at Rome by Georgius Lauer, 1471. It rests upon a manuscript similar to M.

A second printing, also without place and date, but probably printed at Venice by Franc. Renner de Hailbrun, 1472, was used by Victorius and Diacetius in recording the readings of F, and this copy was used by L. Spengel for his readings of F and of Lactus; as compared with the 1471 printing, it shows a number of misprints.

2. Éditio vetustissima, edited by Angelus Tifernas with but slight variation from the edition of Laetus; probably printed at Rome by Georgius Sachsel de Reichenhal, 1474.

3. Editio Rholandelli, edited by Franciscus Rholandellus Trivisanus; printed at Venice, 1475. It shows improvement over the edition of Laetus, by the introduction of readings from relatively good manuscripts.

4. Editio Veneta, similar to the preceding, but in the same volume with Nonius Marcellus and Festus; first printed in 1483, and reprinted in 1492 by Nicolaus de Ferraris de Pralormo (L. Spengel's Editio Veneta I), and in 1498 by Magister Antonius de Gusago (Spengel's Veneta II).

A Venice edition of 1474, printed by Ioh. de Colonia and Ioh. Manthem de Gherretzen, was used by Goetz and Schoell and cited as Ed. Ven. in their edition.

5. Editio Baptistae Pii, edited by Baptista Pius, an eclectic text based on previous editions, but with some independent emendations; printed at Milan by Leonardus Pachel, 1510.

6. Editio Aldina, edited by Aldus Manutius after the edition of Pius, but with some changes through his own emendations and in accordance with manuscript testimony, possibly including that of F; printed at Venice by Aldus, 1513. The volume includes the Cornucopia Perotti, the De Lingua Latina, Festus, and Nonius Marcellus; it was reprinted at Venice by xxviii Aldus in 1517 and 1527, and at Basel and Paris several times, up to 1536. The 1527 printing shows some improvements (see 7).

7. Editio Parisiensis, edited by Michael Bentinus, and essentially following the Aldine of 1527, for which Bentinus collated a number of manuscripts and used their readings; it includes also the Castigationes or Corrections of Bentinus, a series of critical and explanatory comments. It was printed at Paris by Colinaeus, 1529.

8. Editio Gryphiana, similar to the preceding, including the Castigationes of Bentinus, and the fragments of the Origines of M. Porcius Cato; for its preparation, Petrus Victorius had transcribed the readings of B as far as ix. 74. It was published at Lyons by Sebastian Gryphius, 1535.

9. Editio Vulgata, edited by Antonius Augustinus, with the readings of B (received from Petrus Victorius) and the help of Angelus Colotius, Octavius Pantagathus, and Gabriel Faernus; it was printed at Rome by Vinc. Luchinus in 1554 and again by Antonius Bladus in 1557.

The text of the De Lingua Latina has been regarded as greatly corrupted in this edition, since Augustinus based it on a poor manuscript, introduced a great number of his own emendations, and attempted a standardization of the orthography, notably in writing quom and the like, and in using EI for long I in endings (e.g., dat.-abl. pl. heis libreis, acc. pl. simileis, gen. sing. vocandei). Despite his errors, he has made a number of valuable emendations, as will be seen from the citations in our apparatus criticus.

The text of this edition was rather closely followed by all editors except Vertranius and Scioppius, and Scaliger in his emendations, until the edition of Leon-hard Spengel in 1826.

10. Editio Vertranii, edited by M. Vertranius Maurus, following the edition of Augustinus, but discarding the spellings of the type quom and the use of EI for long I, and making a large number of his own conjectural emendations; printed at Lyons by Gryphii Heredes, 1563.

11. Coniectanea in M. Terentium Varronem de Lingua Latina, by Josephus Scaliger; not an edition, but deserving a place here, as it contains numerous textual criticisms as well as other commentary; written in 1564, and published at Paris in 1565. Both these Coniectanea and an Appendix ad Coniectanea (the original date of which I cannot determine) are printed with many later editions of the De Lingua Latina.

12. Editio Turnebi, edited by Adrianus Turnebus, who used a manuscript very similar to p and made numerous emendations; printed at Paris by A.

Wechelus, 1566 (Turnebus died 1565).

13. Opera quae supersunt, with Scaliger's Coniectanea, printed at Paris by Henr. Stephanus, 1569.

14. Edition of Dionysius Gothofredus, containing only an occasional independent alteration; in Auctores Linguae Latinae in unum corpus redacti, printed at Geneva by Guilelmus Leimarius, 1585.

15. Edition, with the notes of Ausonius Popma; printed at Leiden ex officina Plantiniana, 1601.

16. Editio Gaspari Scioppii, edited by Gaspar Scioppius, who relied on data of Gabriel Faernus and on collations of Vatican manuscripts by Fulvius Ursinus; it contains many valuable textual suggestions, though perhaps most of them belong to Ursinus rather than to Scioppius (who expressly gives credit to Faernus, Turnebus, and Ursinus). It was printed at Ingolstad in 1602; reprinted in 1605.

17. Editio Bipontina, in two volumes, the second containing a selection of the notes of Augustinus, Turnebus, Scaliger, and Popma; issued at Bipontium (Zweibrücken in Bavaria), 1788.

18. M. Terenti Varronis de Lingua Latina libri qui supersunt, edited by Leonhard Spengel of Munich; the first scientific edition, resting on readings of F (but only as represented by Fv), H, B, a, b, c, and a comparison of all, or almost all, the previous editions. It was printed in Berlin by Duncker und Humbloth, 1826.

19. M. Terenti Varronis de Lingua Latina librorum quae supersunt, edited by Karl Ottfried Mueller, who added the readings of G to his critical apparatus. Mueller has the merit of setting the paragraphs of v. 23-41 in their proper order, and of placing brief but valuable explanatory material in his notes, in addition to textual criticism. This edition was printed at Leipzig by Weidmann, 1833.

20. M. T. Varronis librorum de Lingua Latina quae supersunt, reprinted after Mueller's edition with a very few textual changes by A. Egger; issued at Paris by Bourgeois-Maze, 1837.

21. Varron de la Langue Latine, a translation into French by Huot, accompanied by Mueller's text; in the Collection des Auteurs Latins avec la traduction en français, directed by Nisard, printed at Paris by Firmin Didot Frères and issued by Dubochet et Cie., 1845.

22. Libri di M. Terenzio Varrone intorno alla lingua latina, edited and translated with notes by Pietro Canal; in the Biblioteca degli Scrittori Latini with translation and notes; printed at Venice by Gius. Antonelli, 1846–1854. It was reprinted in 1874, with addition of the fragments, to which notes were attached by Fed. Brunetti.

This edition is little known, and deserves more attention than it has received, although Canal was very free with his emendation of the text; but he used a number of additional manuscripts which are in the libraries of Italy.

23. M. Terenti Varronis de Lingua Latina libri, edited by Andreas Spengel after the death of his father Leonhard, who had been working on a second edition for nearly fifty years when he died; printed at Berlin by Weidmann, 1885.

This edition is notable because of the abundant critical apparatus.

24. M. Terenti Varronis de Lingua Latina quae supersunt, edited by Georg Goetz and Friedrich Schoell; printed at Leipzig by Teubner, 1910.

This edition is very conservative, many corrupt passages being marked with a dagger and left in the text, while excellent emendations for the same are relegated to the apparatus criticus or to the Annotationes at the end of the volume; but it has great value for its citation of abundant testimonia and its elaborate indexes.

Two errors of earlier editors may be mentioned at this point. Since Varro in v. 1 speaks of having sent three previous books to Septumius, our Book V. was thought to be Book IV.; and it was not until Spengel's edition of 1826 that the proper numbering came into use. Further, Varro's remark in viii. 1 on the subject matter caused the early editors to think that they had xxxii

De Lingua Latina Libri Tres (our v.-vii.), and De Analogia Libri Tres (our viii.-x.); Augustinus in the Vulgate was the first to realize that the six books were parts of one and the same work, the De Lingua Latina.

It is convenient to list here, together, the special treatments of the passage on the city of Rome, v. 41-56, which is given by the Fragmentum Cassinense:

H. Keil, Rheinisches Museum vi. 142-145 (1848).

L. Spengel, Über die Kritik der varronischen Bücher de Lingua Latina; in Abhandl. d. k. bayer. Ak. d. Wiss. 7, 47-54 (1854).

B. ten Brink, M. Terentii Varronis Locus de Urbe Roma; Traiecti ad Rhenum, apud C. Van der Post

Juniorem, 1855.

H. Jordan, Topographie der Stadt Rom im Alterthum ii. 599-603 (Berlin, 1871).

BIBLIOGRAPHY

A bibliography of editions, books, and articles, for the period 1471–1897, is given by Antonibon, Supplemento di Lezioni Varianti, pages 179-187; but there are many misprints, and many omissions of items. Bibliographical lists will be found in the following:

Bibliotheca Philologica Classica, supplement to Philologus.

Dix années de philologie classique 1914-1924, i. 428-429, edited by J. Marouzeau (1927).

L'Année philologique i. for 1924–1926; ii. for 1927, etc., edited by J. Marouzeau (1928 ff.).

VOL. I c 2 XXXIII

Critical summaries of the literature will be found as follows:

1826-1858: Philologus xiii. 684-751 (1858), by L. Mercklin.

1858-1868: Philologus xxvii. 286-331 (1868), by A. Riese.

Philologus xl. 649-651 (1881), merely 1867-1876: listed.

1877-1890 : Bursian's Jahresberichte über den Fortschritt der klassischen Philologie lxviii. 121-122 (1892), by G. Goetz.

1891-1901: Bursian's Jrb. exiii. 116-128 (1901), by P. Wessner.

1901-1907: Bursian's Jrb. exxxix. 85-89 (1908), by R. Kriegshammer.

1901-1920: Bursian's Jrb. clxxxviii. 52-69 (1921), by

P. Wessner.

1921-1925: Bursian's Jrb. ccxxxi. 35-38 (1931), by F. Lammert.

For the period before the edition of L. Spengel in 1826, it is unnecessary to do other than refer to the list of editions; for other writings on Varro were few, and they are mostly lacking in importance, apart from being inaccessible to-day. The following selected list includes most of the literature since 1826, which has importance for the De Lingua Latina, either for the text and its interpretation, or for Varro's style, sources, and method; but treatises dealing with his influence on later authors have mostly been omitted from the list:

Antonibon, Giulio: Contributo agli studi sui libri de Lingua Latina; Rivista di Filologia xvii. 177-221 (1888).

xxxiv

Antonibon, G.: De Codice Varroniano Mutinensi;

Philologus xlviii. 185 (1889).

Antonibon, G.: Supplemento di Lezioni Varianti ai libri De Lingua Latina de M. Ter. Varrone; Bassano, 1899.

- Barwick, K.: Remnius Palämon und die römische Ars grammatica; Leipzig, 1922 (Philologus, Suppl. xv. 2).
- Bednara, Ernst: Archiv für lateinische Lexikographie xiv. 593 (1906).
- Bergk, Th.: Quaestiones Lucretianae; Index Lectionum in Acad. Marburg. 1846-1847.

Bergk, Th.: De Carminum Saliarium Reliquiis; Index Lectionum in Acad. Marburg. 1847–1848.

- Bergk, Th.: Quaestiones Ennianae; Index Scholarum in Univ. Hal. 1860.
- Bergk, Th.: Varroniana; Index Scholarum in Univ. Hal. 1863.
- Bergk, Th.: De Paelignorum Sermone; Index Scholarum in Univ. Hal. 1864.

Bergk, Th.: Zeitschrift für die Altertumswissenschaft ix. 231 (1851), xiv. 138-140 (1856).

Bergk, Th.: Philologus xiv. 186, 389-390 (1859), xxx. 682 (1870), xxxii. 567 (1873), xxxiii. 281, 301-302, 311 (1874).

Bergk, Th.: Jahrbücher für classische Philologie lxxxiii. 317, 320-321, 333-334, 633-637 (1861); ci. 829-832, 841 (1870).

Bergk, Th.: Rheinisches Museum xx. 291 (1865).

Bergk, Th.: Kleine Philologische Schriften (Halle, 1884); passim, reprinting most of the articles listed above.

Birt, Th.: Rheinisches Museum liv. 50 (1899).

Birt, Th.: Philologus lxxxiii. 40-41 (1928).

Boissier, Gaston: Étude sur la vie et les ouvrages de M. T. Varron; Paris, 1861, 2nd ed. 1875.

Boot, J. C. G.: Mnemosyne xxii. 409-412 (1894).

Brakmann, C.: Mnemosyne lx. 1-19 (1932).

ten Brink, B.: M. Terentii Varronis Locus de Urbe Roma; Traiecti ad Rhenum, 1855.

Brinkmann, A.: Simpuvium—simpulum; Archiv für lateinische Lexikographie xv. 139-143 (1908).

Buecheler, F.: Rheinisches Museum xxvii. 475 (1872). Buecheler, F.: Archiv für lateinische Lexikographie ii. 119, 619-624 (1885).

Christ, Wilhelm: Philologus xvi. 450-464 (1860), xvii. 59-63 (1861).

Christ, Wilhelm: Archiv für lateinische Lexikographie ii. 619-624 (1885).

Dahlmann, Hellfried: Varro und die hellenistische Sprachtheorie; Berlin, 1932 (Forschungen zur klass. Phil. v.).

Dahlmann, Hellfried: M. Terentius Varro, article in Pauly-Wissowa's Real-Encyc. d. class. Altertumswiss. Suppl. vol. vi. 1172-1277 (1935).

Dam, R. J.: De Analogia, observationes in Varronem grammaticamque Romanorum; Campis, 1930.

Ellis, Robinson: Journal of Philology xix. 38, 178-179 (1891).

Ellis, Robinson: Hermathena xi. 353-363 (1901).

Fay, Edwin W.: Varroniana; American Journal of Philology xxxv. 149-162, 245-267 (1914).

Foat, W. G.: Classical Review xxix. 79 (1915). Fraccaro, Plinio: Studi Varroniani; Padova, 1907.

xxxvi

- Funaioli, Hyginus: Grammaticae Romanae Fragmenta; Leipzig, 1907.
- Galdi, M.: Rivista Indo-Greco-Italica xi. 3-4, 21-22 (1927).
- Georges, K. E.: Philologus xxxiii. 226 (1874).
- Goetz, Georg: Berliner Philologische Wochenschrift, 1886, 779-783.
- Goetz, Georg: Quaestiones Varronianae; Index Scholarum in Univ. Ienensi, 1886–1887.
- Goetz, Georg: Aelius Stilo, article in Pauly-Wissowa's Real-Enc. d. cl. Altw. i. 532-533 (1894), Suppl. vol. i. 15 (1903).
- Goetz, Georg: Göttingische Gelehrte Anzeigen, 1908, 815-827.
- Goetz, Georg: Zur Würdigung der grammatischen Arbeiten Varros; Abhandl. der kön. sächs. Gesellschaft d. Wiss. xxvii. 3, 67-89 (1909).
- Goetz, Georg: Berliner Philologische Wochenschrift, 1910, 1367-1368.
- Groth, Adolfus: De M. Terenti Varronis de Lingua Latina librorum codice Florentino; Argentorati, 1880.
- Haupt, Moritz: Hermes i. 401-403 (1866), iii. 147-148 (1869), iv. 332-334 (1870).
- Haupt, Moritz: Opuscula (3 vols., 1875, 1876, 1876), ii. 192-195, iii. 355-357, 477.
- Heidrich, Georg: Der Gebrauch des Gerundiums und Gerundivums bei Varro; Jahresbericht, Gymn. Melk, 1890.
- Heidrich, Georg: Bemerkungen über den Stil des Varro; Jahresbericht, Gymn. Melk, 1891.
- Henry, Victor: De sermonis humani origine et natura M. Terentius Varro quid senserit; Insulis, 1883.

Hertz, M.: Jahrbücher für classische Philologie cix. 249-255 (1874).

Hirschfeld, O.: Hermes viii. 469 (1874). Hultsch, Fr.: Philologus xxii. 346 (1865).

Hultsch, Fr.: Metrologicorum Scriptorum reliquiae ii. 49-51; Leipzig, 1866.

Jacobs: Varietas lectionum in Varronis libris de Lingua Latina; Beiträge zur älteren Litteratur ii. 217-222 (1836).

Jahn, Otto: Hermes ii. 246-247 (1867).

Jeep, J. W. L.: Zur Geschichte der Lehre von den Redeteilen bei den lateinischen Grammatikern; Leipzig, 1893.

Jonas, Richard: Zum Gebrauch der Verba frequentativa und intensiva in der älteren lateinischen Prosa;

Gymn. Posen, 1879.

Jordan, Heinrich: Hermes ii. 83, 89 (1867), xv. 118-

121 (1880).

Jordan, Heinrich: Topographie der Stadt Rom im Alterthum, vol. i. 1, 1878; i. 2, 1885; i. 3, revised by Ch. Huelsen, 1907; vol. ii. 1871, especially pages 237-290, 599-603; Berlin.

Jordan, Heinrich: Kritische Beiträge zur Geschichte der lateinischen Sprache, Berlin, 1879; passim, esp. pages 90-91, 96-103, 131, 138, 224, 321.

Keil, Heinrich: Das Fragmentum Casinense des Varro de Lingua Latina; Rheinisches Museum vi. 142-145 (1847).

Kent, R. G.: On the Text of Varro, de Lingua Latina; Trans. Am. Philol. Assn. lxvii. 64-82 (1936).

Kowalski, G.: Studia Rhetorica; Eos xxxi. 141-168 (1928).

xxxviii

Kriegshammer, Robert: De Varronis et Verrii Fontibus quaestiones selectae; Leipzig, 1903.

Krumbiegel, Richard: De Varroniano Scribendi

Genere quaestiones; Leipzig, 1892.

Lachmann, Karl: Rheinisches Museum vi. 106-125 (1839); new series, ii. 356-365 (1842), iii. 610-611 (1845); reprinted in Kleinere Schriften ii. 162-187 (1876).

Lachmann, Karl: In T. Lucretii Cari de Rerum Natura libros Commentarius (1850), passim; 4th ed., 1882, with index.

Lahmeyer, Gustav: Philologus xxii. 100-105 (1865).

Lersch, Laurenz: Die Sprachphilosophie der Alten i. 117-127 (1838), ii. 143-153 (1840), iii. 169-172 (1841); Bonn.

Lobeck, Chr. Aug.: Aglaophamus ii. 1002-1004;

Königsberg, 1829.

Luebbert, Ed.: Commentationes Pontificales; Berlin, 1859.

Madvig, J. N.: Adversaria Critica i. 178, ii. 166-178; Copenhagen, 1871 and 1873.

Mercklin, Ludwig: De Junio Gracchano commentatio; particulae duae, Dorpat, 1840, 1841.

Mercklin, Ludwig: Quaestiones Varronianae; Index

Scholarum in Univ. Dorpat. 1852.

Mercklin, Ludwig: De Varronis tralaticio scribendi genere quaestiones; Index Scholarum in Univ. Dorpat. 1858.

Mette, H. J.: De Cratete Mallota seu Pergameno;

Berlin, 1931.

Mette, H. J.: Varroniana (supplement to preceding); Berlin, 1931.

Mueller, August: De Priscis Verborum Formis Varronianis; Halle, 1877.

Mueller, C. F. W.: Zeitschrift für das Gymnasialwesen xix. 421-424, 792-800, 867-874 (1865).

Mueller, K. O.: Zur Topographie Roms: Über die Fragmente der Sacra Argeorum bei Varro, de Lingua Latina V (IV), 8; in Böttiger, Archäologie und Kunst i. 69-94; Breslau, 1828.

Mueller, K. O.: Sextus Pompeius Festus, edition, page

xliv; Leipzig, 1839.

Mueller, Lucian: Jahrbücher für classische Philologie xcvii. 427 (1868).

Mueller, Lucian: Rheinisches Museum xxiv. 553-557

(1869).

- Muller Jzn, Fridericus: De veterum imprimis Romanorum studiis etymologicis, pages 115-248; Utrecht, 1910.
- Nettleship, H.: Latin Grammar in the First Century; Journal of Philology xv. 189-214 (1886).
- Neukirch, J. H.: De Fabula Togata Komanorum, pages 71, 83, 89, 96, 99, 122, 188, 278; Leipzig, 1833.
- Norden, Eduard: Rheinisches Museum xlviii. 348-354 (1893).
- Norden, Eduard: De Stilone Cosconio Varrone grammaticis commentatio; Index Scholarum in Univ. Greifswald. 1895.
- Norden, Eduard: Die antike Kunstprosa vom VI. Jahrhundert vor Christus bis in die Zeit der Renaissance i. 194-200; Leipzig, 1898.
- Oxé, C. E. L.: De M. Ter. Varronis etymis quibusdam commentatio; Gymn. Programm, Kreuznach, 1859.

- Oxé, C. E. L.: M. Terenti Varronis librorum de lingua Latina argumentum; Gymn. Programm, Kreuznach, 1871.
- Pape, Wilhelm: Lectiones Varronianae; Berlin, 1829. Plasberg, O.: Rheinisches Museum liii. 70, 75-76 (1898).

Reiter, Hugo: Quaestiones Varronianae grammaticae; Königsberg, 1882.

Reiter, Hugo: Observationes criticae in M. Terenti Varronis de lingua Latina libros; Jahresbericht, Gymn. Braunsberg, 1884.

Reitzenstein, R.: M. Terentius Varro und Johannes Mauropus von Euchaita; Leipzig, 1901.

Ribbeck, Otto: Die Composition der Varronischen Bücher V-VII de lingua Latina; Rheinisches Museum xli. 618-626 (1886).

Riese, Alexander: Philologus xxvii. 305-306 (1868). Ritschl, Fr. W.: Jahrbücher für classische Philologie xevii. 341-343 (1868).

Roehrscheidt, K.: review of Reitzenstein; Göttingische Gelehrte Anzeigen, 1908, 791-814.
Roessner, Otto: De praepositionum ab de ex usu Varroniano; Halle, 1888.

Roth, K. L.: Über das Leben des M. Terentius Varro; Gymn. Programm, Basel, 1857 (also separately issued).

Roth, K. L.: Philologus xvii. 175-176 (1861).

Samter, Ernest: Quaestiones Varronianae; Berlin, 1891.

Schwabe, L.: Jahrbücher für Philologie ci. 350-352 (1870).

Sitzler, Johann: Über den Kasusgebrauch bei Varro; Beilage zum Gymn. Programm, Tauberbischofsheim, 1889.

Skutsch, F.: Hermes xxxii. 96-97 (1897).

Skutsch, F.: Rheinisches Museum 1xi. 603-609

(1906).

Spengel, Andreas: Bemerkungen zu Varro de lingua Latina; Sitzungsber. d. kön. bayer. Akad. d. Wiss., phil.-hist. Cl. 1885, 243-272.

Spengel, Leonhard: Emendationum Varronianarum

Specimen I; Munich, 1830.

Spengel, L.: review of Mueller's edition; Jahrbücher für Philologie xi. 1-20 (1834).

Spengel, L.: Zeitschrift für die Altertumswissenschaft iv. 142-144 (1846).

Spengel, L.: Über die Kritik der Varronischen Bücher de Lingua Latina; Abhandl. d. kön. bayer. Akad.

d. Wiss. vii. 2. 1-54 (1854).

Spengel, L.: Commentatio de emendanda ratione librorum M. Terentii Varronis de lingua Latina; Munich, 1858 (to F. Thiersch, on semicentennial of the doctorate).

Spengel, L.: Philologus xvii. 288-306 (1861).

Spengel, L.: Die sacra Argeorum bei Varro; Philologus xxxii. 92-105 (1873).

Stieber, G. M.: Varroniana: Die griechischen Fremdwörter bei Varro de Lingua Latina, Orthographie, Lautlehre, Index der bei Varro befindlichen Fremdwörter; typed dissertation, Würzburg, 1921.

Stowasser, J. M.: Wiener Studien, vii. 38-39 (1885). Stroux, Johannes: Antidoron, Festschrift Jacob Wacker-nagel 309-325; Göttingen, 1924.

Stuenkel, Ludwig: De Varroniana verborum formatione; Strassburg, 1875.

· Usener, H.: Ein altes Lehrgebäude der Philologie; Sitzungsber. d. kön. bayr. Akad. d. Wiss. zu München, phil.-hist. Cl. 1892, 582-648.

van der Vliet, J.: Mnemosyne xx. 416 (1892).

Voigt, Moritz: Rheinisches Museum xxiv. 332-335 (1869), xxxiii. 150 (1878).

W-, H.: Jahrbücher für classische Philologie lxxxvii. 740 (1863).

Wackernagel, J.: Hermes lviii. 460 (1923).

Walter, Fritz: Philologus lxxv. 484-485 (1919).

Walter, F.: Philologische Wochenschrift l. 827 (1930).

Weber, Julius: Quaestionum Grammaticarum Specimen: Jena, 1914.

Wilmanns, August: De M. Terenti Varronis libris grammaticis particula; Bonn, 1863.

Wilmanns, August: De M. Terenti Varronis libris grammaticis; Berlin, 1864 (the preceding, with addition of the fragments).

Wölfflin, Eduard: Archiv für lateinische Lexikographie ii. 5, 89, 324 (1885), viii. 411-440, 563-585 (1898).

Zander, K. M.: Versus italici antiqui, page 24; Lund, 1890.

Zippmann, A.: De loco Varroniano qui est de Lingua Latina viii. 44; Gymn. Programm, Scheidemühl, Zumpt: review of L. Spengel's edition; Jahrbücher für wissenschaftliche Kritik, 1827, 1513-1527.

OUR TEXT OF THE DE LINGUA LATINA

When a text is to be confronted by a translation, that text must be presented in an intelligible wording, xliii with emendations of corrupt passages and the filling up of the gaps. It happens that while some of the corrupt passages in this work are quite desperate, many can be restored, and many gaps can be filled, with some degree of confidence, since Festus, Nonius Marcellus, and others have quoted practically verbatim from Varro; with the aid of their testimonia, many obscure passages can be restored to clarity. This has been the procedure in the present volumes; if any departures from the manuscript authority seem violent, they are required as a basis for a translation. Yet the present text is throughout as conservative as is consistent with the situation.

The text has in fact been so arranged as to show, with least machinery, its relation to the best tradition. With the use of italics and of pointed brackets, and the aid of the critical apparatus, any reader may see for himself exactly what stands in the manuscript. The use of symbols and the like is explained on pages viix-l.

THE CRITICAL APPARATUS

The critical apparatus is intended to show how the text is derived from the best manuscript tradition, namely F, or where F fails, then Fv or other good codices.

In each item, there is given first the name of the scholar making the emendation which is in the text, after which the reading of F is given. It is therefore not necessary to name F except in a few places where there might be confusion; if the reading is not that of F, then the manuscript is specified. Where the emendation of a scholar has been anticipated by a xliv copyist of some manuscript, the reference to this manuscript is commonly given. If several successive emendations have been necessary to reach the best reading, the intermediate stages are given in reverse order, working back to the manuscript. For ease of typography, manuscript abbreviations are mostly presented in expanded form.

The reader may therefore evaluate the text which is here presented; but the present editor has made no attempt to present the almost countless emendations which have been made by scholars and which have not been adopted here.

THE TRANSLATION OF THE DE LINGUA LATINA

The translation of the De Lingua Latina presents problems which are hardly to be found in any other of the works translated for the Loeb Classical Library. For the constant (and inevitable) interpretations of one Latin word by another, which Varro had to present in order to expound its origin, requires the translator to keep the Latin words in the translation, glossed with an English equivalent. In this way only can the translation be made intelligible.

Because of the technical nature of the subject it has been necessary to follow the Latin with some degree of closeness, or the points made by Varro will be lost. If the translation is at times difficult to understand, it is because most of us are not accustomed to dealing with matters of technical linguistics; and even though Varro lacks the method of modern scholars in the subject, he has his own technique and must be followed in his own way.

The numerous metrical citations which Varro gives from Latin authors are translated in the same metre, though sometimes the translation is slightly shorter or longer than the Latin.

There are only two translations of the De Lingua Latina into a modern language: that of Huot into French, a mere paraphrase which often omits whole sentences, and that of Canal into Italian (Nos. 20 and 21 in our list of Editions). There is no translation into German, nor any into English before the present volumes.

THE NOTES TO THE TRANSLATION

The notes are planned to give all needed help to the understanding of a difficult subject matter; they cover matters of technical linguistics, historical and geographical references, points of public and private life. They explain briefly any unusual word-forms and syntactical uses, and label as incorrect all false etymologies (of which there are many), either explicitly or by indicating the correct etymology. They state the sources of quotations from other authors and works, giving references to a standard collection of fragments if the entire work is not extant. They name the metres of metrical quotations, if the metre is other than dactylic, or iambic, or trochaic.

The fragments of Greek and Latin authors are cited in the notes according to the following scheme: Festus (and the excerpts of Paulus Diaconus), by xlvi page and line, edition of K. O. Mueller, Leipzig, 1839.

Grammatici Latini, by volume, page, and line, edition of H. Keil, Leipzig, 1855-1880.

Nonius Marcellus, by page and line, edition of J. Mercier, 1589; 2nd ed., 1614; reprinted 1825.

For the following authors:

Accius: see Ribbeck and Warmington, below.

Ennius: see Vahlen and Warmington, below.

Lucilius: C. Lucilii Carminum Reliquiae, ed. F. Marx, 2 vols., Leipzig, 1904-1905.

Naevius: see Ribbeck, Warmington, Baehrens, Morel, below.

Pacuvius: see Ribbeck and Warmington, below.

Plautus, fragments: edition of F. Ritschl, Leipzig, 1894; the same numbering in G. Goetz and F. Schoell, Leipzig, 1901.

von Arnim, J.: Stoicorum Veterum Reliquiae; Leipzig, 1903.

Baehrens, Emil: Fragmenta Poetarum Romanorum; Leipzig, 1886.

Bremer, F. P.: Iurisprudentiae Antehadrianae quae

supersunt; Leipzig, 1896-1901.

Bruns, Georg: Fontes Iuris Romani Antiqui; revised by Th. Mommsen; 7th ed., revised by O. Gradenwitz, Tübingen, 1909.

Buettner, Richard: Porcius Licinus und der litterarische Kreis des Q. Lutatius Catulus; Leipzig, 1893.

Funaioli, Hyginus: Grammaticae Romanae Fragmenta; Leipzig, 1907.

Hultsch, Friedrich: Polybii Historiae; Berlin, 1867-

1872.

Huschke, P. E.: Iurisprudentiae Anteiustinianae Reliquiae; 6th ed., revised by E. Seckel and B. Kuebler, Leipzig, 1908.

Jordan, Heinrich: M. Catonis praeter librum de re rustica quae extant; Leipzig, 1860.

Kaibel, G.: Comicorum Graecorum Fragmenta, vol. i.

Part I; Berlin, 1899.

Maurenbrecher, Bertold: Carminum Saliarium reliquiae; Jahrbücher für classische Philologie, Suppl., vol. xxi. 313-352 (1894).

Morel, Willy: Fragmenta Poetarum Latinorum; Leipzig, 1927.

Mueller, Karl, and Theodor Mueller: Fragmenta Historicorum Graecorum; Paris, 1841-1870.

Nauck, August: Aristophanis Byzantii Grammatici Alexandrini Fragmenta; Halle, 1848.

Peter, Hermann: Historicorum Romanorum Fragmenta; Leipzig, 1883.

Preibisch, Paul: Fragmenta Librorum Pontificiorum;

Tilsit, 1878.

Regell, Paul: Fragmenta Auguralia; Gymn. Hirsch-berg, 1882.

Ribbeck, Otto: Scaenicae Romanorum Poesis Fragmenta: vol. i., Tragicorum Romanorum Fragmenta, 3rd ed., Leipzig, 1897; vol. ii., Comicorum Romanorum Fragmenta, 3rd ed., Leipzig, 1898 (occasional references to the 2nd ed.).

Rose, Valentin: Aristotelis qui ferebantur librorum fragmenta; Leipzig, 1886.

Rowoldt, Walther: Librorum Pontificiorum Romanorum de Caerimoniis Sacrificiorum Reliquiae; Halle, 1906.

Schneider, Otto: Callimachea; Leipzig, 1870.

Schoell, Rudolph: Legis Duodecim Tabularum Reliquiae; Leipzig, 1866.

xlviii

Usener, Hermann: Epicurea; Leipzig, 1887. Vahlen, J.: Ennianae Poesis Reliquiae, 2nd ed., Leipzig, 1903 (the 3rd ed., 1928, is an unchanged reprint).

Warmington, E. H.: Remains of Old Latin, in the Loeb Classical Library; vol. i. (Ennius, Caecilius), 1935; vol. ii. (Livius Andronicus, Naevius, Pacuvius, Accius), 1936; Cambridge (Mass.) and London.

SYMBOLS AND ABBREVIATIONS

Letters and words not in the manuscript, but added in the text, are set in  $\langle \rangle$ , except as noted below.

Letters changed from the manuscript reading are printed in italics.

Some obvious additions, and the following changes, are sometimes not further explained by critical notes:

ae with italic a, for manuscript e.
oe, with italic o, for manuscript ae or e.
italic b and v, for manuscript u and b.
italic f and ph, for manuscript ph and f.
italic i and y, for manuscript y and i.
italic h, for an h omitted in the manuscript.

The manuscripts are referred to as follows; readings without specification of the manuscript are from F:

F = Laurentianus li. 10; No. 1 in our list.

 $F^1$  or  $m^1$ , the original writer of F, or the first hand.

 $F^2$  or  $m^2$ , the corrector of F, or the second hand. Fv=readings from the lost quaternion of F, as recorded by Victorius; our No. 2.

xlix

Frag. Cass. = Cassinensis 361; our No. 3.

f = Laurentianus li. 5; our No. 5.

H = Havniensis; our No. 6.

G = Gothanus; our No. 7.

a = Parisinus 7489; our No. 8.

b = Parisinus 6142; our No. 9.

c = Parisinus 7535; our No. 10.

V = Vindobonensis lxiii.; our No. 11.

p = Basiliensis F iv. 13 ; our No. 12.

 $\dot{M}$  = Guelferbytanus 896; our No. 13.

B =that used by Augustinus; our No. 14.

The following abbreviations are used for editors and editions (others are referred to by their full names):

Laetus = editio princeps of Pomponius Laetus.

Rhol. = Rholandellus, whose first edition was in 1475.

Pius = Baptista Pius, edition of 1510.

Aug. = Antonius Augustinus, editor of the Vulgate edition 1554, reprinted 1557.

Sciop. = Gaspar Scioppius, edition of 1602, reprinted 1605.

L. Sp. = Leonhard Spengel, edition of 1826 (and articles).

Mue. = Karl Ottfried Mueller, edition of 1833.

A. Sp. = Andreas Spengel, edition of 1885 (and articles).

GS. = G. Goetz and F. Schoell, edition of 1910.

VARRO

M. TERENTI VARRONIS DE LINGUA LATINA

DE DISCIPLINA ORIGINUM VERBORUM AD CICERONEM

LIBER IIII EXPLICIT; INCIPIT

LIBER V

I. 1. Quemadmodum vocabula essent imposita rebus in lingua Latina, sex libris exponere institui. De his tris ante hunc feci quos Septumio misi: in quibus est de disciplina, quam vocant ἐτυμολογικήν¹: quae contra ea⟨m⟩² dicerentur, volumine primo, quae pro ea, secundo, quae de ea, tertio. In his ad te scribam, a quibus rebus vocabula imposita sint in lingua Latina, et ea quae sunt in consuetudine apud ⟨populum et ea quae inveniuntur apud⟩³ poetas.

2. Cumi unius cuiusque verbi naturae sint duae, a qua re et in qua re vocabulum sit impositum (itaque

$ 1.  $^1$  For ethimologicen.  $^2$  Rhol., for ea.  $^3$  Added by A. Sp. $ 2.  $^1$  Rhol., for cui.

<sup>§ 1. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup>Books II.-VII.; Book I. was introductory. <sup>b</sup>Books II.-IV. <sup>c</sup>Quaestor to Varro, cf. vii. 109; but when or where is not known. Possibly he was the writer on architecture mentioned by Vitruvius, de Arch. vii. praef. 14, and even the composer of the Libri Observationum men-

MARCUS TERENTIUS VARRO'S ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE

On the Science of the Origin of Words, Addressed to Cicero

BOOK IV ENDS HERE, AND HERE BEGINS

BOOK V

I. I. In what way names were applied to things in Latin, I have undertaken to expound, in six books. <sup>a</sup> Of these, I have already composed three <sup>b</sup> before this one, and have addressed them to Septumius <sup>c</sup>; in them I treat of the branch of learning which is called Etymology. The considerations which might be raised against it, I have put in the first book; those adduced in its favour, in the second; those merely describing it, in the third. In the following books, addressed to you, <sup>d</sup> I shall discuss the problem from what things names were applied in Latin, both those which are habitual with the ordinary folk, and those which are found in the poets.

2. Inasmuch as each and every word has two innate features, from what thing and to what thing tioned by Quintilian, Inst. Orat. iv. 1. 19. <sup>d</sup> Cicero, to whom Varro addresses the balance of the work, Books V.-XXV., written apparently in 47–45 B.c.

a qua re sit pertinacia cum requi $\langle ri \rangle$ tur,² ostenditur³ esse a perten $\langle den \rangle do^4$ ; in qua re sit impositum dicitur cum demonstratur, in quo non debet pertendi et pertendit, pertinaciam esse, quod in quo oporteat manere, si in eo perstet, perseverantia sit), priorem illam partem, ubi cur et unde sint verba scrutantur, Graeci vocant ἐτυμολογίαν,⁵ illam alteram  $\pi \epsilon \rho \langle i \rangle$  σημαινομένων. De quibus duabus rebus in his libris promiscue dicam, sed exilius de posteriore.

3. Quae ideo sunt obscuriora, quod neque omnis impositio verborum extat,¹ quod vetustas quasdam delevit, nec quae extat sine mendo omnis imposita, nec quae recte est imposita, cuncta manet (multa enim verba li⟨t⟩teris commutatis sunt interpolata), neque omnis origo est nostrae linguae e vernaculis verbis, et multa verba aliud nunc ostendunt, aliud ante significabant, ut hostis: nam tum eo verbo dicebant peregrinum qui suis legibus uteretur, nunc dicunt eum quem tum dicebant perduellem.

4. In quo genere verborum aut casu erit illustrius unde videri possit origo, inde repetam. Ita fieri oportere apparet, quod recto casu quom¹ dicimus inpos,² obscurius est esse a potentia qua⟨m⟩³ cum

 $<sup>^2</sup>$  GS., for sequitur.  $^3$  For hostenditur.  $^4$  Rhol., for pertendo.  $^5$  For ethimologiam.

<sup>§ 3. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> For exstat.

<sup>§ 4. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for quem. <sup>2</sup> p, Laetus, for ineos. <sup>3</sup> For qua.

<sup>§ 2. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Properly an abstract formed from pertinax, itself a compound of tenax 'tenacious,' derived from tenere 'to hold.' § 3. <sup>a</sup> Cf. vii. 49.

<sup>§ 4.</sup> a Not from potentia; but both from radical pot-.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 2-4

the name is applied (therefore, when the question is raised from what thing pertinacia 'obstinacy' is,a it is shown to be from pertendere 'to persist': to what thing it is applied, is told when it is explained that it is pertinacia 'obstinacy' in a matter in which there ought not to be persistence but there is, because it is perseverantia 'steadfastness' if a person persists in that in which he ought to hold firm), that former part, where they examine why and whence words are, the Greeks call Etymology, that other part they call Semantics. Of these two matters I shall speak in the following books, not keeping them apart, but giving less attention to the second.

3. These relations are often rather obscure for the following reasons: Not every word that has been applied, still exists, because lapse of time has blotted out some. Not every word that is in use, has been applied without inaccuracy of some kind, nor does every word which has been applied correctly remain as it originally was; for many words are disguised by change of the letters. There are some whose origin is not from native words of our own language. Many words indicate one thing now, but formerly meant something else, as is the case with hostis 'enemy': for in olden times by this word they meant a foreigner from a country independent of Roman laws, but now they give the name to him whom they then called perduellis 'enemy.' a

4. I shall take as starting-point of my discussion that derivative or case-form of the words in which the origin can be more clearly seen. It is evident that we ought to operate in this way, because when we say inpos 'lacking power' in the nominative, it is less clear that it is from potentia a 'power' than when we dicimus inpotem<sup>4</sup>; et eo obscurius fit, si dicas pos quam<sup>5</sup> inpos: videtur enim pos significare potius pontem quam potentem.

5. Vetustas pauca non depravat, multa tollit. Quem puerum vidisti formosum, hunc vides deformem in senecta. Tertium seculum non videt eum hominem quem vidit primum. Quare illa quae iam maioribus nostris ademit oblivio, fugitiva secuta sedulitas Muci¹ et Bruti retrahere nequit. Non, si non potuero indagare, eo ero tardior, sed velocior ideo, si quivero. Non mediocres² enim tenebrae in silva ubi haec captanda neque eo quo pervenire volumus semitae tritae, neque non in tramitibus quaedam obiecta³ quae euntem retinere possent.

6. Quorum verborum novorum ac veterum discordia omnis in consuetudine com\(m\)uni, quot modis¹ commutatio sit facta qui animadverterit, facilius scrutari origines patietur verborum: reperiet enim esse commutata, ut in superioribus libris ostendi, maxime propter bis quaternas causas. Litterarum enim fit demptione aut additione et propter earum tra\(ie\)ctionem² aut commutationem, item syllabarum productione \(aut\) correptione, denique adiectione aut

&lt;sup>4</sup> Aug., for inpotentem. <sup>5</sup> Aug., with B, for postquam. § 5. <sup>1</sup> For muti. <sup>2</sup> For mediocris. <sup>3</sup> For oblecta. § 6. <sup>1</sup> After modis, Fr. Fritzsche deleted litterarum. <sup>2</sup> Scaliger and Popma, for tractationem.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Avoided in practice, in favour of dissyllabic potis. <sup>c</sup> Because the nasal was almost or quite lost before s; cf. the regular inscriptional spelling cosol = consul.

<sup>§ 5. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> P. Mucius Scaevola and M. Junius Brutus, distinguished jurists and writers on law in the period 150–130 B.c. Mucius, as pontifex maximus, seems to have collected and say inpotem in the accusative; and it becomes the more obscure, if you say pos b' having power' rather than inpos; for pos c seems to mean rather pons bridge' than potens powerful.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 4-6

5. There are few things which lapse of time does not distort, there are many which it removes. Whom you saw beautiful as a boy, him you see unsightly in his old age. The third generation does not see a person such as the first generation saw him. Therefore those that oblivion has taken away even from our ancestors, the painstaking of Mucius and Brutus,a though it has pursued the runaways, cannot bring back. As for me, even if I cannot track them down, I shall not be the slower for this, but even for this I shall be the swifter in the chase, if I can. For there is no slight darkness in the wood where these things are to be caught, and there are no trodden paths to the place which we wish to attain, nor do there fail to be obstacles in the paths, which could hold back the hunter on his way.

6. Now he who has observed in how many ways the changing has taken place in those words, new and old, in which there is any and every manner of variation in popular usage, will find the examination of the origin of the words an easier task; for he will find that words have been changed, as I have shown in the preceding books, essentially on account of two sets of four causes. For the alterations come about by the loss or the addition of single letters and on account of the transposition or the change of them, and likewise by the lengthening or the shortening of syllables, and their addition or loss: since I have adequately shown published the Annales Pontificum, and to have put an end to the further writing of them by the pontifex maximus.

VARRO

detrectione)3; quae quoniam in superioribus libris4 cuiusmodi essent exemplis satis demonstravi, hic ammonendum esse modo putavi.

7. Nunc singulorum verborum origines expediam, quorum quattuor explanandi gradus. Infimus¹ quo populus etiam venit: quis enim non videt unde ar\g\e\n\tifodinae2 et viocurus? Secundus quo grammatica escendit<sup>3</sup> antiqua, quae ostendit, quemadmodum quodque poeta finxerit verbum, quod confinxerit, quod declinarit; hic Pacui:

Rudentum sibilus.

hic:

Incurvicervicum4 pecus, hie:

Clamide clupeat b(r)acchium.5

8. Tertius gradus, quo philosophia ascendens pervenit atque ea quae in consuetudine communi essent aperire coepit,1 ut a quo dictum esset oppidum, vicus, via. Quartus, ubi est adytum² et initia regis : quo si non perveniam (ad)3 scientiam, at4 opinionem aucupabor, quod etiam in salute nostra nonnunquam facit<sup>5</sup> cum aegrotamus medicus.

3 Added by Kent, after Scaliger, Mue., GS.; cf. Quintilian, Inst. Orat. i. 6. 32. 4 After libris, Aug. deleted qui.

§ 7. <sup>1</sup> After infimus, Sciop. deleted in. <sup>2</sup> Canal, for etofodine. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for descendit. <sup>4</sup> G, Aldus, for aretofodine. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for descendit. inceruice ruicum. <sup>5</sup> For bacchium.

L. Sp. 4 Sciop., for ad. 5 Aldus, with p, for fecit.

<sup>§ 7.</sup> a Cf. viii. 62. <sup>b</sup> Teucer, Trag. Rom. Frag. 336 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 296-297 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Ex inc. fab. xliv, verse 408, Trag. Rom. Frag. Ribbeck3, R.O.L. ii. 292-293 Warmington, referring to the dolphins of Nereus; the entire by examples, in the preceding books, of what sort these phenomena are, I have thought that here I need only set a reminder of that previous discussion.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 6-8

7. Now I shall set forth the origins of the individual words, of which there are four levels of explanation. The lowest is that to which even the common folk has come; who does not see the sources of argentifodinae a 'silver-mines' and of viocurus 'road-overseer'? The second is that to which old-time grammar has mounted, which shows how the poet has made each word which he has fashioned and derived. Here belongs Pacuvius's b

The whistling of the ropes,

here his c

Incurvate-neckèd flock.

here his d

With his mantle he beshields his arm.

8. The third level is that to which philosophy ascended, and on arrival began to reveal the nature of those words which are in common use, as, for example, from what oppidum 'town' was named, and vicus' row of houses,' a and via 'street.' The fourth is that where the sanctuary is, and the mysteries of the high-priest: if I shall not arrive at full knowledge there, at any rate I shall cast about for a conjecture, which even in matters of our health the physician sometimes does when we are ill.

verse in Quintilian, Inst. Orat. i. 5. 67, Nerei repandirostrum incurvicervicum pecus.

<sup>d</sup> Hermiona, Trag. Rom. Frag. 186
Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>, R.O.L. ii. 232-233 Warmington; the entire verse in Nonius Marcellus, 87. 23 M.: currum liquit, clamide contorta astu clipeat braccium.

§ 8. 's From this meaning, either an entire small 'village' or a 'street' in a large city.

9. Quodsi summum gradum non attigero, tamen secundum praeteribo, quod non solum ad Aristophanis lucernam, sed etiam ad Cleanthis lucubravi. Volui praeterire eos, qui poetarum modo verba ut sint ficta expediunt. Non enim videbatur consentaneum qua(e)re(re)¹ me in eo verbo quod finxisset Ennius causam, neglegere quod ante rex Latinus finxisset, cum poeticis multis verbis magis delecter quam utar, antiquis magis utar quam delecter. An non potius mea verba illa quae hereditate a Romulo rege venerunt quam quae a poeta Livio relicta?

10. Igitur quoniam in haec sunt tripertita verba, quae sunt aut nostra aut aliena aut oblivia, de nostris dicam cur sint, de alienis unde sint, de obliviis relinquam: quorum partim quid ta(men) invenerim aut opiner¹ scribam. In hoc libro dicam de vocabulis locorum et quae in his sunt, in secundo de temporum et quae in his fiunt, in tertio de utraque re a poetis comprehensa.

11. Pythagoras Samius ait omnium rerum initia esse bina ut finitum et infinitum, bonum et malum, § 9. 1 Aug., for quare.

§ 10. <sup>1</sup> After A. Sp., with tamen from Fay's quo loco tamen; for quo ita inuenerim ita opiner.

<sup>§ 9. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Aristophanes of Byzantium, 262–185 s.c., pupil of Zenodotus and Callimachus at Alexandria, and himself one of the greatest of the Alexandrian grammarians, who busied himself especially with the textual correction and editing of the Greek authors, notably Homer, Hesiod, and the lyric poets. <sup>b</sup> Frag. 485 von Arnim; Cleanthes of Assos, 331–232 s.c., pupil and successor of Zeno, founder of the Stoic school of philosophy (died 264), as head of the school, at Athens, and author of many works on all phases of the Stoic teaching. <sup>c</sup> L. Livius Andronicus, c. 284–202 s.c., born at Tarentum; first epic and dramatic poet of the Romans.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 9-11

9. But if I have not reached the highest level, I shall none the less go farther up than the second, because I have studied not only by the lamp of Aristophanes,<sup>a</sup> but also by that of Cleanthes.<sup>b</sup> I have desired to go farther than those who expound only how the words of the poets are made up. For it did not seem meet that I seek the source in the case of the word which Ennius had made, and neglect that which long before King Latinus had made, in view of the fact that I get pleasure rather than utility from many words of the poets, and more utility than pleasure from the ancient words. And in fact are not those words mine which have come to me by inheritance from King Romulus, rather than those which were left behind by the poet Livius? <sup>c</sup>

10. Therefore since words are divided into these three groups, those which are our own, those which are of foreign origin, and those which are obsolete and of forgotten sources, I shall set forth about our own why they are, about those of foreign origin whence they are, and as to the obsolete I shall let them alone: except that concerning some of them I shall none the less write what I have found or myself conjecture. In this book I shall tell about the words denoting places and those things which are in them; in the following book I shall tell of the words denoting times and those things which take place in them; in the third I shall tell of both these as expressed by the poets.

11. Pythagoras the Samian a says that the primal elements of all things are in pairs, as finite and infinite, removed to Croton in South Italy about 529 and was there the founder of the philosophic-political school of belief which attaches to his name. His teachings were oral only, and were reduced to writing by his followers.

VARRO

vitam et mortem, diem et noctem. Quare item duo status et motus, (utrumque quadripertitum)1: quod stat aut agitatur, corpus, ubi agitatur, locus, dum agitatur, tempus, quod est in agitatu, actio. Quadripertitio magis sic apparebit: corpus est ut cursor, locus stadium qua currit, tempus hora qua currit, actio cursio.

- 12. Quare fit, ut ideo fere omnia sint quadripertita et ea aeterna, quod neque unquam tempus, quin fuerit1 motus: eius enim2 intervallum tempus; neque motus, ubi non locus et corpus, quod alterum est quod movetur, alterum ubi; neque ubi is agitatus, non actio ibi. Igitur initiorum quadrigae locus et corpus, tempus et actio.
- 13. Quare quod quattuor genera prima rerum, totidem verborum : e quis (de) locis et iis1 rebus quae in his videntur in hoc libro summatim ponam. Sed qua cognatio eius erit verbi quae radices egerit extra fines suas, persequemur. Saepe enim ad limitem arboris radices sub vicini prodierunt segetem. Quare non, cum de locis dicam, si ab agro ad agrarium<sup>2</sup> hominem, ad agricolam pervenero, aberraro. Multa

 <sup>§ 11. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Added by L. Sp.
 § 12. <sup>1</sup> For fuerint. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for animi.
 § 13. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for uerborum enim horum dequis locis et § 13. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for uerborumhis. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for agrosium.

<sup>§ 13.</sup> a Celebrated on April 23 and August 19, when an offering of new wine was made to Jupiter; cf. vi. 16 and vi. 20.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 11-13

good and bad, life and death, day and night. Therefore likewise there are the two fundamentals, station and motion, each divided into four kinds: what is stationary or is in motion, is body; where it is in motion, is place; while it is in motion, is time; what is inherent in the motion, is action. The fourfold division will be clearer in this way: body is, so to speak, the runner, place is the race-course where he runs, time is the period during which he runs, action is the running.

12. Therefore it comes about that for this reason all things, in general, are divided into four phases, and these universal; because there is never time without there being motion—for even an intermission of motion is time—; nor is there motion where there is not place and body, because the latter is that which is moved, and the former is where; nor where this motion is, does there fail to be action. Therefore place and body, time and action are the four-horse team of the elements.

13. Therefore because the primal classes of things are four in number, so many are the primal classes of words. From among these, concerning places and those things which are seen in them, I shall put a summary account in this book; but we shall follow them up wherever the kin of the word under discussion is, even if it has driven its roots beyond its own territory. For often the roots of a tree which is close to the line of the property have gone out under the neighbour's cornfield. Wherefore, when I speak of places, I shall not have gone astray, if from ager 'field' I pass to an agrarius 'agrarian' man, and to an agricola 'farmer.' The partnership of words is one of many members: the Wine Festival a cannot be set societas verborum, nec Vinalia sine vino expediri nec

Curia Calabra sine calatione potest aperiri.

II. 14. Incipiam de locis ab1 ipsius loci origine. Locus est, ubi locatum quid esse potest, ut nunc dicunt, collocatum. Veteres id dicere solitos apparet apud Plautum:

> Filiam habeo grandem dote cassa(m) atque inlocabile(m)2 Neque eam queo locare cuiquam.

Apud Ennium:

O Terra Thraeca, ubi Liberi fanum inclutum³ Maro4 locavi(t).5

- 15. Ubi quidque consistit, locus. Ab eo praeco dicitur locare, quod usque idem it,1 quoad in aliquo constitit pretium. In(de)2 locarium quod datur in stabulo et taberna, ubi consistant. Sic loci muliebres, ubi nascendi initia consistunt.
- III. 16. Loca natura(e) secundum antiquam divisionem prima duo, terra et caelum, deinde particulatim utriusque multa. Caeli dicuntur loca su-
- $\S$  14.  $^1$  Sciop., for sub.  $^2$  So Plautus, for cassa dote atque inlocabili F; Plautus also has virginem for filiam. Wilhelm, for inciuium.
   For miro F<sup>2</sup>, ma
   Ribbeck, for locaui.
   § 15.
   Turnebus, for id emit.
   Laetus, for in. <sup>4</sup> For miro  $F^2$ , maro  $F^1$ .

§ 16. 1 Aug., for natura.

<sup>b</sup> A place on the Capitoline Hill, near the cottage of Romulus, and also the meeting held there on the Kalends, when the priests announced the number of days until the Nones; cf. vi. 27, and Macrobius, Saturnalia, i. 15. 7.

§ 14. a The uncompounded word; which, like its compound, meant both 'established in a fixed position 'and 'established in a marriage.' b Aulularia, 191-192. That is, in marriage. d Trag. Rom. Frag. 347-348 Ribbeck3; R.O.L.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 13-16

on its way without wine, nor can the Curia Calabra 'Announcement Hall' be opened without the calatio 'proclamation.'

II. 14. Among places, I shall begin with the origin of the word locus' place 'itself. Locus is where something can be locatum a 'placed,' or as they say nowadays, collocatum 'established.' That the ancients were wont to use the word in this meaning, is clear in Plautus b:

I have a grown-up daughter, lacking dower, unplaceable,<sup>c</sup> Nor can I place her now with anyone.

In Ennius we find d:

O Thracian Land, where Bacchus' fane renowned Did Maro place.

15. Where anything comes to a standstill, is a locus 'place.' From this the auctioneer is said locare 'to place 'because he is all the time likewise going on until the price comes to a standstill on someone. Thence also is locarium 'place-rent,' which is given for a lodging or a shop, where the payers take their stand. So also loci muliebres 'woman's places,' where the beginnings of birth are situated.

III. 16. The primal places of the universe, according to the ancient division, are two, terra 'earth' and caelum' sky,' and then, according to the division into items, there are many places in each. The places of the sky are called loca supera 'upper places,' and i. 376-377 Warmington. Maro, son of Euanthes and priest of Apollo in the Thracian Ismaros, in thanks for protection for himself and his followers, gave Ulysses a present of excellent wine (Odyssey, ix. 197 ff.). Because of this, later legend drew him into the Dionysiac circle, as son or grandson of Bacchus, or otherwise. There were even cults of Maro himself in Maroneia, Samothrace, and elsewhere.

pera et ea deorum, terrae loca infera et ea hominum. Ut Asia sic caelum dicitur modis duobus. Nam et Asia, quae non Europa, in quo etiam Syria, et Asia dicitur prioris pars Asiae, in qua est Ionia ac provincia nostra.

17. Sic caelum et pars eius, summum ubi stellae, et id quod Pacuvius cum demonstrat dicit:

Hoc vide circum supraque quod complexu continet Terram.

Cui subiungit:

Id quod nostri caelum memorant.

A qua bipertita divisione Lucilius¹ suorum un(i)us² et viginti librorum initium fecit hoc:

Aetheris et terrae genitabile quaerere tempus.

18. Caelum dictum scribit Aelius, quod est caelatum, aut contrario nomine, celatum quod apertum est; non male, quod (im)positor1 multo potius (caelare)2 a caelo quam caelum a caelando. Sed non

§ 17. <sup>1</sup> Scaliger, for lucretius. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for unum. § 18. <sup>1</sup> GS., for posterior. <sup>2</sup> Added by Scaliger.

§ 16. <sup>a</sup> Asia originally designated probably only a town or small district in Lydia, and then came to be what we now call Asia Minor, and finally the entire continent. <sup>b</sup> Ionia was a coastal region of Asia Minor, including Smyrna, Ephesus, Miletus, etc., and was included within provincia nostra. But 'our province 'ran much farther inland, comprising Phrygia, Mysia, Lydia, Caria (Cicero, Pro Flacco, 27.65), which explains the 'and.'

§ 17. a Chryses, Trag. Rom. Frag. 87-88 and 90 Ribbeck3; R.O.L. 2. 202-203, lines 107-108, 111 Warmington. b Satirae, verse 1 Marx. As there were thirty books of Lucilius's Satires, the limitation to twenty-one by Varro must be based on another division (for which there is evidence), thus: Books XXVI.-XXX. were written first, in various metres; I.-XXI.,

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 16-18

these belong to the gods; the places of the earth are loca infera 'lower places,' and these belong to mankind. Caelum 'sky' is used in two ways, just as is Asia. For Asia means the Asia, which is not Europe, wherein is even Syria; and Asia means also that part <sup>a</sup> of the aforementioned Asia, in which is Ionia <sup>b</sup> and our province.

17. So caelum' sky' is both a part of itself, the top where the stars are, and that which Pacuvius means when he points it out a:

See this around and above, which holds in its embrace The earth.

To which he adds:

.That which the men of our days call the sky.

From this division into two, Lucilius set this as the start of his twenty-one books  $^b$ :

Seeking the time when the ether above and the earth were created.

18. Caelum, Aelius writes, a was so called because it is caelatum 'raised above the surface,' or from the opposite of its idea, celatum 'hidden' because it is exposed; not ill the remark, that the one who applied the term took caelare 'to raise' much rather from caelum than caelum from caelare. But that second to which Varro here alludes, were a second volume, in dactylic hexameters, which Lucilius had found to be the best vehicle for his work; XXII.-XXV. were a third part, in elegiacs, probably not published until after their author's death.

§ 18. a Page 59 Funaioli. Caelum is probably connected with a root seen in German heiter 'bright,' and not with the words mentioned by Varro. Derivation by the contrary of the meaning, as in ludus, in quo minime luditur' school, in which there is very little playing' (Festus, 122. 16 M.).

minus illud alterum de celando ab eo potuit dici, quod interdiu celatur, quam quod noctu non celatur.

19. Omnino e\langleg\rangleo^1 magis puto a chao cho\langleum ca\ranglevum² et hinc caelum, quoniam, ut dixi, "hoc circum supraque quod complexu continet terram," cavum caelum. Itaque dicit Androm\langleed\ranglea3 Nocti:

Quae<sup>4</sup> cava caeli Signitenentibus conficis bigis;

et Agamemno:

In altisono caeli clipeo:

cavum enim clipeum; et Ennius item ad cavationem:

Caeli ingentes fornices.

20. Quare ut a cavo cavea et caullae¹ et convallis, cavata vallis, et cave⟨rn⟩ae² ⟨a⟩³ cavatione⁴ ut cavum,⁵ sic ortum, unde omnia apud Hesiodum, a chao cavo caelum.

IV. 21. Terra dicta ab eo, ut Aelius scribit, quod

§ 19. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for eo. <sup>2</sup> GS.; choum hinc cavum Mue.; for chouum. <sup>3</sup> Scaliger, for androma. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for noctique.

§ 20. <sup>1</sup> Scaliger, for cauile. <sup>2</sup> GS., for cauea e. <sup>3</sup> Added by Mue. <sup>4</sup> Mue., for cauitione. <sup>6</sup> Vertranius, for cauium.

§ 20. <sup>a</sup> Commonly meaning the spectators' part of the theatre; but also 'stall, bird-cage, bee-hive.' <sup>b</sup> Also

<sup>§ 19. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Latin cavum is not related to Greek chaos, but it is the source of all the Latin words in § 19 and § 20, except caslum and convallis. <sup>b</sup> Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 95-96 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 256-257 Warmington; anapaestic. <sup>c</sup> Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 177-178 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 300-301 Warmington; anapaestic. <sup>d</sup> Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 374 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 364-365 Warmington.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 18-21

origin, from celare 'to hide,' could be said from this fact, that by day it celatur 'is hidden,' no less than that by night it is not hidden.

19. On the whole I rather think that from chaos came choum and then cavum a 'hollow,' and from this caelum 'sky,' since, as I have said, "this around and above, which holds in its embrace the earth," is the cavum caelum 'hollow sky.' And so Andromeda says to Night,<sup>b</sup>

You who traverse the hollows of sky With your chariot marked by the stars.

And Agamemnon says,

In the shield of the sky, that soundeth on high, for a shield is a hollow thing. And Ennius likewise, with reference to a cavern.

Enormous arches of the sky.

20. Wherefore as from cavum 'hollow' come cavea a 'cavity,' and caullae b 'hole or passage,' and convallis c 'enclosed valley' as being a cavata vallis 'hollowed valley,' and cavernae 'caverns' from the cavatio 'hollowing,' as a cavum 'hollow thing,' d so developed caelum' sky' from cavum, which itself was from chaos, from which, in Hesiod, c come all things.

IV. 21. Terra a 'earth' is—as Aelius b writes—named from this fact, that it teritur 'is trodden';

'sheepfold.' Apparently out of place; but perhaps Varro had in mind a pronunciation with only a slight nasal sound, virtually covallis, cf. contio from coventio (coventionid occurs in an old inscription). This text is a desperate attempt to bring sense into the passage. Theogony, 123 ff.

§ 21. <sup>a</sup> From tersā 'dry'; tritura and tribulum are the only words in the section connected with tero. <sup>b</sup> Page 67 Funaioli.

VARRO

teritur. Itaque tera in augurum libris scripta cum R uno. Ab eo colonis locus com $\langle m \rangle$ unis qui prope oppidum relinquitur teritorium, quod maxime teritur. Hinc linteum quod teritur corpore extermentarium. Hinc in messi tritura, quod tum frumentum teritur, et tribulum,¹ qui teritur. Hinc fines agrorum termini, quod eae partes² propter limitare iter maxime teruntur; itaque hoc cum I³ in Latio aliquot locis dicitur, ut apud Accium, non terminus, sed ter $\langle i \rangle$ men $^4$ ; hoc Graeci quod  $\tau \epsilon \rho \mu \rho \nu \nu a$ . Pote vel illine; Euander enim, qui venit in Palatium, e Graecia Arcas.

22. Via¹ quidem iter, quod ea vehendo teritur, iter item² actus, quod agendo teritur; etiam ambitus ⟨i⟩ter,³ quod circumeundo teritur: nam ambitus circuitus; ab eoque Duodecim Tabularum interpretes 'ambitus parietis' circuitum esse describunt. Igitur tera terra et ab eo poetae appellarunt summa terrae quae sola teri possunt, 'sola terrae.'

§ 21. ¹ For triuolum. ² For partis. ³ L. Sp., for is. ⁴ L. Sp., for termen. § 22. ¹ Lachmann, for uias. ² A. Sp., for iterum. ³ Groth, for ter.

§ 22. a Of uncertain etymology, but not from vehere. b Amb-itus=circu-itus in meaning; -itus and iter both from the root in ire 'to go.' a The fundamental Roman laws, traditionally drawn up by the Decemvirs of 451-450 B.C. a Page 136 Schoell; page 113 Funaioli. a Cf. Ennius, Ann. 455 Vahlen²; R.O.L. ii. 208-209 Warmington; page 20

&lt;sup>c</sup> No consonants were doubled in the writing of Latin until about 200 B.C., and then not regularly for some decades; before 200 B.C., terra was necessarily written tera. <sup>d</sup> Page 16 Regell. <sup>e</sup> Derivative of terra. <sup>f</sup> From extergere 'to wipe off.' <sup>g</sup> From a different root ter- 'to cross over.' <sup>h</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag., page 262 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 599 Warmington. <sup>e</sup> See Livy, i. 5.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 21-22

therefore it is written terac in the Books of the Augurs,<sup>d</sup> with one R. From this, the place which is left near a town as common property for the farmers, is the territorium e 'territory,' because it teritur 'is trodden 'most. From this, the linen garment which teritur 'is rubbed' by the body, is an extermentarium. From this, in the harvest, is the tritura 'threshing,' because then the grain teritur ' is rubbed out,' and the tribulum 'threshing-sledge,' with which it teritur 'is rubbed out.' From this the boundaries of the fields are called termini, because those parts teruntur ' are trodden' most, on account of the boundary-lane. Therefore this word is pronounced with I in some places in Latium, not terminus, but terimen, and this form is found in Accius h: it is the same word which the Greeks call τέρμων. Perhaps the Latin word comes from the Greek; for Evander, who came to the Palatine, was an Arcadian from Greece.i

22. A via a 'road' is indeed an iter 'way,' because it teritur 'is worn down' by vehendo 'carrying in wagons'; an actus 'driving-passage' is likewise an iter, because it is worn down by agendo 'driving of cattle.' Moreover an ambitus b' edge-road' is an iter 'way,' because it teritur' is worn' by the going around: for an edge-road is a circuit; from this the interpreters of the Trelve Tables c define the ambitus of the wall a sits circuit. Therefore tera, terra; and from this the poets have called the surface of the earth, which sola 'alone' can be trod, the sola 'soil' of the earth.

<sup>75</sup> Funaioli; Lucretius, ii. 592; Catullus, 63. 7. 'Though solus 'lone' has a long vowel, and solum 'soil' has a short vowel; but Varro normally disregards the differences of quantity.

23. Terra, ut putant, eadem et humus; ideo Ennium in terram cadentis dicere:

Cubitis pinsibant humum;

et quod terra sit humus, ideo is humatus mortuus, qui terra obrutus; ab eo qui Romanus combustus est,  $\langle \sin \rangle^1$  in sepulcrum² eius abiecta gleba non est aut si os exceptum est mortui ad familiam purgandam, donec in purgando humo³ est opertum (ut pontifices dicunt, quod inhumatus sit), familia funesta manet. Et dicitur humilior, qui⁴ ad humum⁵ demissior, infimus humillimus, quod in mundo infima humus.

24. Humor hinc. Itaque ideo Lucilius:

Terra abiit in nimbos humoremque.1

Pacuvius:

Terra exhalat² auram atque auroram humidam;

(humidam)<sup>3</sup> humectam; hinc ager uliginosus humidissimus; hinc udus uvidus; hinc sudor et udor.

§ 23. ¹ Added by Turnebus. ² For sepulchrum. ³ Aldus, for homo. ⁴ Mue., for quae. ⁵ After humum in F, is found the passage ut Sabini § 32 to Septimontium § 41; Mue., following G. Buchanan and Turnebus, recognized the interchange of two leaves of the archetype of F and restored the text to its proper order.

§ 24. <sup>1</sup> Kent, for imbremque, for without humor or a derivative the citation is irrelevant. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for exalat.

<sup>3</sup> Added by Fay.

§ 23. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 396 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 376-377 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Gleba in a collective sense. <sup>c</sup> Cf. frag. 170 Rowoldt. <sup>d</sup> Quod, contracted for quoad.

<sup>§ 24. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Humor, properly umor, got its h by popular association with humus, with which it is not etymologically connected. <sup>b</sup> 1308 Marx; five feet of a spondaic dactylic 22.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 23-24

23. Humus 'soil' is, as they think, the same as terra 'earth'; therefore, they say, Ennius meant men falling to the earth when he said, a

With their elbows the soil they were smiting.

And because humus 'soil' is terra 'earth,' therefore he who is dead and covered with terra is humatus' inhumed.' From this fact, if on the burial-mound of a Roman who has been burned on the pyre clods b are not thrown, or if a bone of the dead man has been kept out for the ceremony of purifying the household, the household remains in mourning; in the latter case, until in the purification the bone is covered with humus—as the pontifices say, as long as he is in-humatus' not inhumed.' Also he is called humilior 'more humble,' who is more downcast toward the humus; the lowest is said to be humillimus 'most humble,' because the humus is the lowest thing in the world.

24. From this comes also humor a 'moisture.' So therefore Lucilius says b:

Gone is the earth, disappeared into clouds and moisture. Pacuvius says <sup>c</sup>:

The land exhales a breeze and dawning damp;

humida,<sup>d</sup> the same as humecta 'damp.' From this, a marshy field is humidissimus 'most damp'; from this, udus and uvidus 'damp'; from this, sudor 'sweat' and udor 'dampness.'

hexameter. <sup>c</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 363 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 322-323 Warmington. <sup>d</sup> From same base as humor; so also humeetus. <sup>e</sup> Syncopated form of uvidus, which, with its abstract substantive udor, contains the base of humor in a simpler form (without the m). <sup>f</sup> Akin to English sweat, and not connected with the other Latin words here discussed.

25. Is si quamvis deorsum in terra, unde sumi¹ pote, puteus; nisi potius quod Aeolis dicebant ut  $\pi \dot{v} \tau a \mu o v$  sic  $\pi \dot{v} \tau \epsilon o v$  a potu,² non ut nunc  $\phi \rho \dot{\epsilon} \langle a \rho \rangle$ .³ A puteis oppidum ut Puteoli, quod incircum eum locum aquae frigidae et caldae multae, nisi a putore potius, quod putidus odoribus saepe ex sulphure et alumine. Extra oppida a puteis puticuli, quod ibi in puteis obruebantur homines, nisi potius, ut Aelius scribit, puticuli⁴ quod putescebant ibi cadavera proiecta, qui locus publicus ultra Esquilias.⁵ Itaque eum Afranius putilucos⁴ in Togata appellat, quod inde suspiciunt per puteos² lumen.

26. Lacus lacuna magna, ubi aqua contineri potest. Palus paululum aquae in altitudinem et palam latius diffusae. Stagnum a Graeco, quod ii στεγνόν quod non habet rimam. Hinc ad villas rutundas stagna, quod rutundum facillime continet, anguli maxime laborant.

§ 25. ¹ For summi. ² Buttmann, for potamon sic po tura potu. ³ Victorius, for φρε. ⁴ Mue., for puticulae. ⁵ For exquilias. ⁶ Scaliger, for cuticulos. っ Canal, for perpetuos.

§ 26. 1 For Il. 2 Scaliger, for nomen habet primam.

<sup>3</sup> B, for rutundas.

<sup>§ 25. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Or 'pit'; derivative of root in putare 'to cut, think,' cf. amputare 'to cut off.' <sup>b</sup> Aeolis, nom. pl. = Greek Aloλeis. <sup>c</sup> This and  $\pi \acute{v}$  fees are unknown in the extant remains of Aeolic Greek, but a number of Aeolic words show the change:  $\acute{a}\pi v$  for  $\acute{a}\pi \acute{o}, \acute{v}\mu o \iota \omega s$  for  $\acute{o}\mu o \iota \omega s$ . <sup>d</sup> The modern Pozzuoli, on the Bay of Naples, in a locality characterized by volcanic springs and exhalations; Varro's derivation is correct. <sup>e</sup> Page 65 Funaioli. <sup>f</sup> The Roman 'potters' field,' for the poor and the slaves. <sup>e</sup> Com. Rom. Frag. 430 Ribbeck³; with a jesting transposition of the consonants. Cf. for a similar effect 'pit-lets' and 'pit-lights.' The description suggests that they were constructed like the Catacombs.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 25-26

25. If this moisture is in the ground no matter how far down, in a place from which it pote 'can' be taken, it is a puteus 'well'a; unless rather because the Aeolians bused to say, like πύταμος c for ποταμός 'river,' so also πύτεος 'well' for ποτέος 'drinkable,' from potus 'act of drinking,' and not  $\phi \rho \epsilon a \rho$  'well' as they do now. From putei 'wells' comes the townname, such as Puteoli, d because around this place there are many hot and cold spring-waters; unless rather from putor 'stench,' because the place is often putidus 'stinking' with smells of sulphur and alum. Outside the towns there are puticuli 'little pits,' named from putei' pits,' because there the people used to be buried in putei 'pits'; unless rather, as Aelius writes, the puticuli are so called because the corpses which had been thrown out putescebant 'used to rot' there, in the public burial-place f which is beyond the Esquiline. This place Afranius g in a comedy of Roman life calls the Putiluci 'pit-lights,' for the reason that from it they look up through putei 'pits' to the lumen 'light.'

26. A lacus 'lake' is a large lacuna a 'hollow,' where water can be confined. A palus b 'swamp' is a paululum 'small amount' of water as to depth, but spread quite widely palam 'in plain sight.' A stagnum c'pool' is from Greek, because they gave the name  $\sigma \tau \epsilon \gamma \nu \acute{o} s$  'waterproof' to that which has no fissure. From this, at farmhouses the stagna 'pools' are round, because a round shape most easily holds water in, but corners are extremely troublesome.

<sup>§ 26. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Lacuna is a derivative of lacus. <sup>b</sup> Palus, paululum, palam are all etymologically distinct. <sup>c</sup> Properly, a pool without an outlet; perhaps akin to Greek σταγών 'drop (of liquid).' <sup>d</sup> Original meaning, 'covered.'

27. Fluvius, quod fluit, item flumen : a quo lege praediorum urbanorum scribitur<sup>1</sup> :

Stillicidia fluminaque<sup>2</sup> ut(i nunc, ut) ita<sup>3</sup> cadant fluantque;

inter haec hoc inter(est), quod stillicidium eo quod stillatim cadit,4 flumen quod fluit continue.

28. Amnis id flumen quod circuit aliquod: nam ab ambitu amnis. Ab hoc qui circum Aternum¹ habitant, Amiternini appellati. Ab eo qui populum candidatus circum it,² ambit, et qui aliter facit, indagabili ex ambitu causam dicit. Itaque Tiberis amnis, quod ambit Martium Campum et urbem; oppidum Interamna dictum, quod inter amnis est constitutum; item Antemnae, quod ante amnis, qu⟨a⟩ Anio³ influit in Tiberim, quod bello male acceptum consenuit.

29. Tiberis quod caput extra Latium, si inde nomen quoque exfluit in linguam nostram, nihil ⟨ad⟩¹ ἐτυμολόγον Latinum, ut, quod oritur ex Samnio, § 27. <sup>1</sup> For scribitur scribitur. <sup>2</sup> For flumina quae. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., after Gothofredus, for ut ita. <sup>4</sup> a, Pape, for cadet.

§ 28. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for alterunum. <sup>2</sup> For id.

<sup>3</sup> Canal, for quanto. § 29. <sup>1</sup> Added by Thiersch.

§ 27. <sup>a</sup> Cf. Digest. viii. 2. 17. <sup>b</sup> That is, rain-waters dripping from roofs and streams resulting from rain shall in city properties not be diverted from their present courses. Such supplies of water were in early days a real asset.

<sup>§ 28. **</sup> Probably to be associated with English Avon (from Celtic word for 'river'), and not with ambire' to go around. Of Good etymology; Amiternum was an old city in the Sabine country, on the Aternus River; with ambi- 'around' in the form am-, as in amicire' to place (a garment) around.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 27-29

27. Fluvius 'river' is so named because it fluit 'flows,' and likewise flumen 'river': from which is written, according to the law of city estates,<sup>a</sup>

Stillicidia 'rain-waters' and flumina 'rivers' shall be allowed to fall and to flow without interference.

Between these there is this difference, that stillicidium 'rain-water' is so named because it cadit 'falls' stillatim' drop by drop,' and flumen' river' because it fluit 'flows' uninterruptedly.

28. An amnis a is that river which goes around something; for amnis is named from ambitus 'circuit.' From this, those who dwell around the Aternus are called Amiternini 'men of Amiternum.' From this, he who circum it 'goes around 'the people as a candidate, ambit 'canvasses,' and he who does otherwise than he should, pleads his case in court as a result of his investigable ambitus 'canvassing.' Therefore the Tiber is called an amnis, because it ambit 'goes around' the Campus Martius and the City a; the town Interamna gets its name from its position inter amnis 'between rivers'; likewise Antemnae, because it lies ante amnis in front of the rivers,' where the Anio flows into the Tiber—a town which suffered in war and wasted away until it perished.

29. The Tiber, because its source is outside Latium, if the name as well flows forth from there into our language, does not concern the Latin etymologist; just as the Volturnus, because it starts from § 29. <sup>a</sup> Adjective from voltur 'vulture'; there was a Mt. Voltur farther south, on the boundary between Samnium and Apulia.

&lt;sup>c</sup> That is, for corrupt electioneering methods. <sup>d</sup> The Tiber swings to the west at Rome, forming a virtual semicircle. <sup>e</sup> A city in Umbria, almost encircled by the river Nar.

Volturnus nihil ad Latinam linguam: at² quod proximum oppidum ab eo secundum mare Volturnum, ad nos, iam³ Latinum vocabulum, ut Tiberinus no⟨me⟩n.⁴ Et colonia enim nostra Volturnum⁵ et deus Tiberinus.

- 30. Sed de Tiberis nomine anceps historia. Nam et suum Etruria et Latium suum esse credit, quod fuerunt qui ab Thebri vicino regulo Veientum¹ dixerint appellatum,² primo Thebrim. Sunt qui Tiberim priscum nomen Latinum Albulam vocitatum litteris tradiderint, posterius propter Tiberinum regem Latinorum mutatum, quod ibi interierit: nam hoc eius ut tradunt sepulcrum.³
- V. 31. Ut omnis natura in caelum et terram divisa est, sic caeli regionibus terra in Asiam et Europam. Asia enim iacet ad meridiem et austrum, Europa ad septemtriones et aquilonem. Asia dicta ab nympha, a qua et Iapeto traditur Prometheus. Europa ab Europa Agenoris, quam ex Ph(o)enice<sup>1</sup> Manlius

<sup>2</sup> For ad. <sup>3</sup> After iam, A. Sp. deleted ad. <sup>4</sup> A. Sp., for non. <sup>5</sup> Aug., with B, for uolturnus.

§ 30. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for uenientum. <sup>2</sup> For appellatam. <sup>3</sup> For sepulchrum.

§ 31. <sup>1</sup> For fenice.

<sup>b</sup> The god of the river Tiber.

<sup>§ 30. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> No probable etymology has been proposed. <sup>b</sup> Veii was one of the twelve cities of Etruria, about twelve miles north of Rome; it was taken and destroyed by the Romans under Camillus in 396 B.C. <sup>c</sup> Page 117 Funaioli. <sup>a</sup> 'Whitish,' from albus 'white'; or perhaps more probably 'the mountain stream,' containing a pre-Italic word seen in Alpes 'Alps.' <sup>e</sup> King of Alba Longa, ninth in descent from Aeneas, and great-grandfather of Numitor and Amulius; he lost his life in crossing the river (Livy, i. 3).

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 29-31

Samnium, has nothing to do with the Latin language; but because the nearest town to it along the sea is Volturnum, it has come to us and is now a Latin name, as also the name Tiberinus. For we have both a colony named Volturnum and a god named Tiberinus.<sup>b</sup>

30. But about the name of the Tiber <sup>a</sup> there are two accounts. For Etruria believes it is hers, and so does Latium, because there have been those who said that at first, from Thebris, the near-by chieftain of the Veians,<sup>b</sup> it was called the Thebris. There are also those who in their writings <sup>c</sup> have handed down the story that the Tiber was called Albula <sup>d</sup> as its early Latin name, and that later it was changed on account of Tiberinus <sup>c</sup> king of the Latins, because he died there; for, as they relate, it was his burial-place.

V. 31. As all natura is divided into sky and earth, so with reference to the regions of the sky the earth is divided into Asia and Europe. For Asia is that part which lies toward the noonday sun and the south wind, Europe that which lies toward the Wain and the north wind. Asia was named from the nymph who, according to tradition, bore Prometheus to Iapetus. Europe was named from Europa the daughter of Agenor, who, Manlius writes, was carried off from Phoenicia by the Bull; a remarkable <sup>§ 31.</sup> a In America usually called the Dipper. b The points of the compass are here, as often with the ancients, somewhat distorted. c Concerning Asia, see Hesiod, Theogony, 359; and cf. Herodotus, iv. 45. d Concerning Europa, see Herodotus, iv. 45; Horace, Odes, iii. 27. 25-76; Ovid, Metamorphoses, ii. 833-875. Or Mallius, or Manilius; the names are often confused in the manuscripts. He cannot be identified. See Frag. Poet. Rom., page 284 Baehrens, and Gram. Rom. Frag. 85 Funajoli.

scribit taurum exportasse, quorum egregiam imaginem ex aere Pythagoras Tarenti.

32. Europae loca multae incolunt nationes. Ea fere nominata aut translaticio nomine ab hominibus1 ut Sabini et Lucani, aut declinato ab hominibus, ut Apulia et Latium, (aut)2 utrumque, ut Etruria et Tusci.3 Qua regnum fuit Latini, universus ager dictus Latius, particulatim oppidis cognominatus, ut a Praeneste Praenestinus, ab Aricia Aricinus.

33. Ut nostri augures publici disserunt, agrorum sunt genera quinque: Romanus, Gabinus, peregrinus, hosticus, incertus. Romanus dictus unde Roma ab Rom(ul)o1; Gabinus ab oppido Gabi(i)s; peregrinus ager pacatus, qui extra Romanum et Gabinum, quod uno modo in his serv(a)ntur2 auspicia; dictus peregrinus a pergendo, id est a progrediendo: eo enim3 ex agro Romano primum progrediebantur: quocirca Gabinus quoque4 peregrinus, sed quod5 auspicia habet6 singularia, ab reliquo discretus; § 32.  $^1$  Cf. § 23, crit. note 5.  $^2$  Added by Aug.

§ Scaliger, for Tuscia.
§ 33.  $^1$  Rhol., for Romo; cf. viii. 80.  $^2$  Laetus, for seruntur.
§ For eo quod enim.  $^4$  Scaliger, for quo siue.
§ Turnebus, for quos.
§ Turnebus, for habent.

§ 32. a Such names as Sabini, Lucani, Tusci meant

Pythagoras of Rhegium, distinguished for his statues of athletes, flourished in the middle of the fifth century B.C.

originally the people and not the countries. § 33. <sup>a</sup> Page 19 Regell. <sup>b</sup> Or possibly Romus (Romo F); for Festus, 266 b 23-27 M., states that according to Antigonus, an Alexandrian writer, Rome received its name from Rhomus, a son of Jupiter, who founded a city on the Palatine.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 31-33

bronze group of the two was made by Pythagoras f at Tarentum.

32. The various localities of Europe are inhabited by many different nations. They are in general denominated by names transferred from the men, like Sabini 'the Sabine country,' and Lucani 'the country of the Lucanians,' or derived from the names of the men, like Apulia and Latium, or both, like Etruria and Tusci.<sup>a</sup> Where Latinus once had his kingdom, the field-lands as a whole are called Latian; but when taken piecemeal, they are named after the towns, as Praenestine from Praeneste, and Arician from Aricia.

33. As our State Augurs set forth,<sup>a</sup> there are five kinds of fields: Roman, Gabine, peregrine, hostic, uncertain. 'Roman' field-land is so called from Romulus,<sup>b</sup> from whom Rome got its name. 'Gabine' is named from the town Gabii.<sup>c</sup> The 'peregrine' is field-land won in war and reduced to peace, which is apart from the Roman and the Gabine, because in these latter the auspices are observed in one uniform manner: 'peregrine' is named from pergere' to go ahead,' that is, from progredi' to advance'; for into it their first advance was made out of the Roman field-land. By the same reasoning, the Gabine also is peregrine, but because it has auspices of its own special sort it is held separate from the rest.

An ancient Latin city midway between Rome and Praeneste, where Sextus Tarquinius took refuge after his expulsion from Rome. It fought against Rome at Lake Regillus, and thereafter declined into poverty and was almost deserted, though it was revived by the emperors of the first two Christian centuries. <sup>a</sup> Derivative of peregri 'abroad, away from home; to, from, or in a foreign land,' which is either prep. per 'through '+loc. agri, or a loc. of a compound pero-agro-' distant field-land.'

hosticus dictus ab hostibus; incertus is, qui de his quattuor qui sit ignoratur.

- VI. 34. Ager dictus in quam terram quid agebant, et unde quid agebant fructus causa; ali $\langle i \rangle$ , quod¹ id Graeci dicunt  $\mathring{a}\gamma\rho\delta\langle\nu\rangle$ . Ut ager quo² agi poterat, sic qua agi actus. Eius finis minimus constitutus in latitudinem pedes quattuor (fortasse an ab eo quattuor, quod ea quadrupes agitur); in longitudinem pedes centum viginti; in quadratum actum et latum et longum esset centum viginti. Multa antiqui duodenario numero finierunt ut duodecim decuriis actum.
- 35. Iugerum dictum iunctis duobus actibus quadratis. Centuria prim $\langle um \rangle$  a¹ centum iugeribus dicta, post duplicata retinuit nomen, ut tribus a  $p\langle ar \rangle$ tibus²  $\langle populi tripartito divisi dictae nunc \rangle$ ³ multiplicatae idem tenent nomen. Ut qua⁴ agebant actus, sic qua vehebant, viae⁵ dictae; quo⁶ fructus convehebant, villae. Qua ibant, ab itu² iter appellarunt; qua id anguste, semita, ut semiter dictum.

 $\S$  34.  $^1$  L. Sp., for aliquod.  $^2$  Turnebus, for quod.  $\S$  35.  $^1$  L. Sp., for prima.  $^2$  GS., for actibus.  $^3$  Added by GS., cf. Columella, v. 1. 7.  $^4$  Aug., for quo.  $^5$  Laetus, for actus viae.  $^6$  Aldus, for quod.  $^7$  Laetus, for habitu.

§ 35. <sup>a</sup> About two-thirds of an acre. <sup>b</sup> Abstract noun from centum 'hundred'; applied chiefly to a company of soldiers. <sup>c</sup> From tri-bhu-s 'being three'; the final number of tribes was thirty-five. <sup>d</sup> Not from vehere. <sup>e</sup> From

<sup>§ 34. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Connexion of ager with agere doubtful, for the original meaning was wild land, not subjected to human use; but this had been replaced even in early Latin by the meaning of tilled land or land used for grazing animals. The equation with the Greek word is correct. <sup>b</sup> Page 114 Funaioli.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 33-35

'Hostic' is named from the hostes 'enemies.' 'Uncertain' field-land is that of which it is not known to which of these four classes it belongs.

VI. 34. Ager 'field' is the name given to land into which they used agere' to drive' something, or from which they used to drive something, a for the sake of the produce; but others say b that it is because the Greeks call it  $d\gamma\rho\delta s$ . As an ager' field' is that to which driving can be done, so that whereby driving can be done is an actus' driveway.' Its least limit is set at four feet in width—four perhaps from the fact that by it a four-footed animal is driven—and one hundred and twenty feet in length. For a square actus, both in breadth and in length, the limit would be one hundred and twenty feet. There are many things which the ancients delimited with a multiple of twelve, like the actus of twelve ten-foot measures.

35. A iugerum a is the name given to two square actus, iuncti 'joined' together. A centuria b 'century' was named originally from centum 'one hundred' iugera, and later, when doubled, kept its name, just as the tribus c' tribes,' which got their name from the three parts into which the people were divided, still keep the same name though their number has been multiplied. As where they agebant 'drove' were actus' driveways,'so where they vehebant 'transported' were viae d' highways'; whither they convehebant 'transported' their produce were villae c' farmhouses.' Whereby they went, they called an iter 'road' from itus 'going'; where the going was narrow, was a semita f' by-path,' as though it were called a semiter 'half-road.'

vicus 'dwelling-place.' 'From sed 'apart' + mita, from meare' to go.'

VARRO

36. Ager cultus ab eo quod ibi cum terra semina coalescebant, et ubi  $n\langle on \rangle$  consitus¹ incultus. Quod primum ex agro plano fructus capiebant, campus dictus; posteaquam proxuma superiora loca colere  $c\langle o \rangle$ eperunt, a colendo colles appellarunt; quos agros non colebant propter silvas aut id genus, ubi pecus possit pasci, et possidebant, ab usu s $\langle al \rangle$ vo² saltus nominarunt. Haec etiam Graeci  $v \epsilon \mu \eta$ ,³ nostri nemora.

37. Ager quod videbatur pecudum¹ ac pecuniae esse fundamentum, fundus dictus, aut quod fundit quotquot annis multa. Vineta ac vineae a vite multa. Vitis a vino, id a vi; hinc vindemia, quod est vinidemia aut vitidemia. Seges ab satu, id est semine. Semen, quod non plane id quod inde; hinc seminaria, sementes,² item alia. Quod segetes ferunt, fruges, § 36. <sup>1</sup> Wissowa, for ab inconsitus. <sup>2</sup> Lachmann, for suo. <sup>3</sup> Lachmann, for NhMh.

§ 37. <sup>1</sup> For pecodum. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for sementem.

§ 37. <sup>a</sup> Derivative of fundus; fundere is unrelated. <sup>b</sup> Vinum, vinetum, vinea, vin-demia (demere 'to take off') go together; vitis and vis are unrelated. <sup>c</sup> Satus, semen,

<sup>§ 36.</sup> a Participle of colere' to till, cultivate. b Not from capere. Not from colere. d A 'leap,' from salire' to leap'; then a 'narrow passage (which can be leapt across),' defile'; then a 'valley of mixed woods and pasture-land.' Like saltus, a mixture of woods and pasture-land, but not necessarily in a valley between hills or mountains.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 36-37

36. Ager cultus  $^a$  'cultivated field-land' is so named from the fact that there the seeds coalescebant 'united' with the land, and where it is not consitus 'sown' it is called incultus 'uncultivated.' Because they first used capere' to take 'the products from the level field-land, it was called campus  $^b$  'plain'; after they began to till the adjacent higher places, they called them colles  $^c$  'hills' from colere 'to till.' The fields which they did not till on account of woods or that kind where flocks can be grazed, but still they took them for private use, they called saltus  $^a$  'wood-land-pastures' from the fact that their use was salvus 'saved.' These moreover the Greeks call  $^{\nu}\epsilon\mu\eta$

'glades' and we call nemora e' groves.'

37. Field-land, because it seemed to be the fundamentuma 'foundation' of animal flocks and of money, was called fundus 'estate,' or else because it fundit 'pours out' many things every year. Vineta and vineae 'vineyards,' from the many vites 'grape-vines.' Vitis b' grapevine 'from vinum' wine,' this from vis 'strength'; from this, vindemia 'vintage,' because it is vinidemia 'wine-removal' or vitidemia 'vine-removal.' Seges c' standing grain' from satus 'sowing,' that is, semen 'seed.' Semen a' seed,' because it is not completely that which comes from it; from this, seminaria 'nursery-gardens,' sementes 'sowings,' and likewise other words. What the segetes 'fields of grain' ferum 'bear,' are fruges c' field-produce';

seminaria, sementes go together, but seges probably is not related to them. de Varro takes semen as from semis 'half,' because the semen is less in quantity than that which grows from it; an incorrect etymology. Fruges, frui, fructus belong together, but ferre is unrelated; Varro takes fruges from ferre, frui from fruges, fructus from frui.

a fruendo fructus, a spe spicae, ubi et culmi, quod in summo campo nascuntur et sum(m)um culmen.

38. Ubi frumenta secta, ut terantur, arescunt,¹ area. Propter horum similitudinem in urbe loca pura areae; a quo potest etiam ara deum, quod pura, nisi potius ab ardore, ad quem ut sit fit ara; a quo ipsa area non abest, quod qui arefacit ardor est solis.

39. Ager restibilis, qui restituitur ac reseritur quotquot annis; contra qui intermittitur, a novando novalis ager. Arvus et arationes ab arando; ab eo quod aratri vomer sustulit, sulcus; quo ea terra iacta, id est proiecta, porca.

40. Prata dicta ab eo, quod sine opere parata. Quod in agris quotquot annis rursum¹ facienda eadem, ut rursum capias fructus, appellata rura. Dividi t⟨am⟩en esse ius² scribit Sulpicius plebei rura largiter ad ⟨ad⟩oream.³ Praedia dicta, item ut praedes, a § 38.  $^{1}$  L. Sp., for et arescant.

§ 39. 1 Laetus, for sulcos.

§ 40. <sup>1</sup> For rursum rursum. <sup>2</sup> Lachmann, for dividit in eos eius. <sup>3</sup> Fay, for ad aream.

<sup>f</sup> Spes and spica are unrelated; Varro was misled by the rustic pronunciation speca, mentioned by him in De Re Rustica, i. 48. 2. <sup>g</sup> Culmus and culmen are unrelated.

§ 38. <sup>a</sup> Arescunt, area, ara, ardor, arefacit belong together. <sup>b</sup> Unoccupied by buildings or the like; in the country, free also of bushes and trees. <sup>e</sup> Applied in the city to building lots, courtyards, and free spaces before a temple or other building, and around an altar.

§ 39. <sup>a</sup> That is, re+stabilis 'again standing firm'; while restituere is re+statuere, ultimately to same root as stabilis. <sup>b</sup> Properly from a root meaning 'draw, pull.' <sup>c</sup> Not connected with proiecta, but with English furrow.

§ 40. ° Incorrect etymologies. b i. 241 Bremer; perhaps Servius Sulpicius Rufus, a legal authority, contemporary with Cicero. ° Praedium is a derivative of praes (pl.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 37-40

from frui 'to enjoy' comes fructus 'fruits'; from spes 'hope' comes spicae 'ears of grain,' where are also the culmi 'g' grain-stalks,' because they grow on the top of the plain, and a top is a culmen.

38. Where the cut grain-sheaves arescunt a 'dry out' for threshing, is an area 'threshing-floor.' On account of the likeness to these, clean places b in the city are called areae; from which may be also the Gods' ara 'altar,' because it is clean —unless rather from ardor 'fire'; for the intention of using it for an ardor makes it an ara; and from this the area itself is not far away, because it is the ardor of the sun which arefacit 'does the drying.'

39. Ager restibilis a 'land that withstands use' is that which restituitur' is restored' and replanted yearly; on the other hand, that which receives an intermission is called novalis ager 'renewable field-land,' from novare 'to renew.' Arvus 'ploughable' and arationes 'ploughings,' from arare 'to plough'; from this, what the ploughshare sustulit 'has removed' is a sulcus b' furrow'; whither that earth is thrown, that is, proiecta 'thrown forth,' is the porca c' ridge.'

40. Prata a 'meadows' are named from this, that they are parata 'prepared' without labour. Rura a 'country-lands' are so called because in the fields the same operations must be done every year rursum 'again,' that you may again get their fruits. Sulpicius b writes, however, that it is a just right for the country-lands of the populace to be divided for lavish distribution as bonus to discharged soldiers. Praedia c 'estates' are named, as also praedes 'bondsmen,' praedes), a compound of prae+vas 'guarantor'; praestare has the same prefix, but a different root.

praestando, quod ea pignore data publice mancupis4 fidem praestent.

VII. 41. Ubi nunc est Roma, Septimontium<sup>1</sup> nominatum ab tot montibus quos postea urbs muris comprehendit; e quis Capitolinum dictum, quod hic, cum fundamenta foderentur acdis Iovis, caput humanum dicitur inventum. Hic2 mons ante Tarpeius dictus a virgine Vestale Tarpeia, quae ibi ab Sabinis necata armis et sepulta: cuius nominis monimentum relictum, quod etiam nunc eius rupes Tarpeium appellatur saxum.

42. Hunc antea montem Saturnium appellatum prodiderunt et ab co Lati(um)1 Saturniam terram, ut etiam Ennius appellat. Antiquum oppidum in hoc fuisse Saturnia(m)2 scribitur. Eius vestigia etiam nune manent tria, quod Saturni fanum in faucibus, quod Saturnia Porta quam Iunius scribit ibi, quam nunc vocant Pandanam, quod post aedem Saturni in acdificiorum legibus privatis parietes postici "muri (Saturnii) "3 sunt scripti.

43. Aventinum aliquot de causis dicunt. Naevius

<sup>4</sup> Gesner, for mancapes. § 41. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for septem montium; cf. also § 23, crit. note 5. 2 For hinc.

§ 42. ¹ Ten Brink, for late. ² Aug., with B, for hac fuisse saturnia. ³ Added by ten Brink; Frag. Cass. has murisssunt.

§ 41. a Somehow a derivative of caput; but the story of finding a head was invented to explain the name.

<sup>§ 42. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 25 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 12-13 Warmington; the metre demands the nominative case. GS. think that Ennius may have written Saturnia tellus, as Vergil does in Aen. viii. 329; but Ovid, Fasti, v. 625, 38 from praestare 'to offer as security,' because these, when given as pledge to the official authorities, praestent 'guarantee' the good faith of the party in the case.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 40-43

VII. 41. Where Rome now is, was called the Septimontium from the same number of hills which the City afterwards embraced within its walls; of which the Capitoline <sup>a</sup> got its name because here, it is said, when the foundations of the temple of Jupiter were being dug, a human caput 'head' was found. This hill was previously called the Tarpeian, from the Vestal Virgin Tarpeia, who was there killed by the Sabines with their shields and buried; of her name a reminder is left, that even now its cliff is called the Tarpeian Rock.

42. This hill was previously called the Saturnian Hill, we are informed by the writers, and from this Latium has been called the Saturnian Land, as in fact Ennius <sup>a</sup> calls it. It is recorded that on this hill was an old town, named Saturnia. Even now there remain three evidences of it: that there is a temple of Saturn by the passage leading to the hill; that there is a Saturnian gate which Junius writes <sup>b</sup> of as there, which they now call Pandana <sup>c</sup>; that behind the temple of Saturn, in the laws for the buildings of private persons, the back walls of the houses are mentioned as "Saturnian walls." <sup>d</sup>

43. The name of the Aventine is referred to has Saturnia terra. b i. 38 Bremer. c So called quod semper pateret (Festus, 220. 17 M.), because it was always open' (cf. pandere 'to throw open'). d The third point becomes clear only by ten Brink's insertion of Saturnii; the use of muri 'city-walls' for parietes 'building-walls' shows that the walls at this place had once formed part of a set of city-walls.

ab avibus, quod eo se ab Tiberi ferrent aves, alii ab rege Aventino Albano, quod (ibi)¹ sit sepultus, alii A⟨d⟩ventinum² ab adventu hominum, quod co⟨m⟩mune Latinorum ibi Dianac templum sit constitutum. Ego maxime puto, quod ab advectu: nam olim paludibus mons erat ab reliquis disclusus. Itaque eo ex urbe advehebantur ratibus, cuius vestigia, quod ea qua tum ⟨advectum⟩³ dicitur Velabrum, et unde escendebant ad ⟨in⟩fimam⁴ Novam Viam locus sacellum ⟨Ve⟩labrum.⁵

44. Velabrum a vehendo. Velaturam facere etiam nunc dicuntur qui id mercede faciunt. Merces (dicitur a merendo et aere) huic vecturae qui ratibus transibant quadrans. Ab eo Lucilius scripsit:

Quadrantis ratiti.

VIII. 45. Reliqua urbis loca olim discreta, cum Argeorum sacraria septem et viginti in (quattuor)

§ 43. <sup>1</sup> Added by Laetus. <sup>2</sup> Mue., with M, for auentinum. <sup>3</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for fimam. <sup>5</sup> Mue., for labrum.

<sup>§ 43. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Page 115 Funaioli. Etymologies of place-names are particularly treacherous; none of those given here explains Aventinus. Varro elsewhere (de gente populi Romani, quoted by Servius in Aen. vii. 657) says that some Sabines established here by Romulus called it Aventinus from the Avens, a river of the district from which they had come. <sup>b</sup> Frag. Poet. Rom. 27 Baehrens; R.O.L. ii. 56-57 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> The spelling with d is required by the sense. <sup>d</sup> Varro says that a ferry-raft was called a velabrum, and that this name was transferred to the passage on which the rafts had plied, when it was filled in and had become a street; but that there survived a chapel in honour of the ferry-rafts. § 44. <sup>a</sup> Correct etymology. <sup>b</sup> Incorrect etymology.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 43-45

several origins.a Naevius b says that it is from the aves 'birds,' because the birds went thither from the Tiber; others, that it is from King Aventinus the Alban, because he is buried there; others that it is the Adventine c Hill, from the adventus coming of people, because there a temple of Diana was established in which all the Latins had rights in common. I am decidedly of the opinion, that it is from advectus 'transport by water'; for of old the hill was cut off from everything else by swampy pools and streams. Therefore they advehebantur 'were conveyed' thither by rafts; and traces of this survive, in that the way by which they were then transported is now called Velabrum 'ferry,' and the place from which they landed at the bottom of New Street is a chapel of the Velabra.d

44. Velabrum <sup>a</sup> is from vehere 'to convey.' Even now, those persons are said to do velatura 'ferrying,' who do this for pay. The merces <sup>b</sup> 'pay ' (so called from mercre 'to earn 'and aes 'copper money ') for this ferrying of those who crossed by rafts was a farthing. From this Lucilius wrote <sup>c</sup>:

Of a raft-marked farthing.d

VIII. 45. The remaining localities of the City were long ago divided off, when the twenty-seven <sup>a</sup>

c 1272 Marx. d The quadrans or fourth of an as was marked with the figure of a raft.

§ 45. a It would seem simpler if the shrines numbered twenty-four, six in each of the four sections of Rome. But both here and in vii. 44 the number is given as twenty-seven. It is hardly likely that in both places XXUII (= XXVII) has been miswritten for XXIIII; yet this supposition must be made by those who think that the correct number is twenty-four.

partis¹ urbi⟨s⟩² sunt disposita. Argeos dictos putant a principibus, qui cum Hercule Argivo venerunt Romam et in Saturnia subsederunt. E quis prima scripta est regio Suburana,³ secunda′ Esquilina, tertia Collina, quarta Palatina.

- 46. In Suburanae¹ regionis parte princeps est Caelius mons a Caele Vibenna,² Tusco duce nobili, qui cum sua manu dicitur Romulo venisse auxilio contra Tatium³ regem. Hinc post Caelis⁴ obitum, quod nimis munita loca tenerent neque sine suspicione essent, deducti dicuntur in planum. Ab eis dictus Vicus Tuscus, et ideo ibi Vortumnum stare, quod is deus Etruriae princeps; de Caelianis qui a suspicione liberi essent, traductos in eum locum qui vocatur Caeliolum.
- 47. Cum Caclio¹ coniunctum Carinae et inter eas quem locum Caer(i)olensem² appellatum apparet, § 45. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for sacraria in septem et uiginti partis. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for urbi. <sup>3</sup> Aug., for suburbana F<sup>1</sup>, subura F<sup>2</sup>. § 46. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for suburbanae. <sup>2</sup> Frag. Cass., for uibenno; cf. Tacitus, Ann. iv. 65. <sup>3</sup> Puccius, with Servius in Aen. v. 560, for latinum. <sup>4</sup> Coelis Aug., for celii.

§ 47. <sup>1</sup> Lactus, for celion. <sup>2</sup> Kent; Cacliolensem ten Brink (and similarly through the section); for ceroniensem.

§ 46. Comparison with § 47, § 50, § 52, § 54, shows that

&lt;sup>b</sup> Puppets or dolls made of rushes, thrown into the Tiber from the Pons Sublicius every year on May 14, as a sacrifice of purification; the distribution of the shrines from which they were brought was to enable them to take up the pollution of the entire city. Possibly the dolls were a substitute for human victims. The name Argei clearly indicates that the ceremony was brought from Greece.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 45-47

shrines of the Argei <sup>b</sup> were distributed among the four sections of the City. The Argei, they think, were named from the chieftains who came to Rome with Hercules the Argive, and settled down in Saturnia. Of these sections, the first is recorded as the Suburan region, the second the Esquiline, the third the Colline, the fourth the Palatine.

46. In the section of the Suburan region, the first shrine <sup>a</sup> is located on the Caelian Hill, named from Caeles Vibenna, a Tuscan leader of distinction, who is said to have come with his followers to help Romulus against King Tatius. From this hill the followers of Caeles are said, after his death, to have been brought down into the level ground, because they were in possession of a location which was too strongly fortified and their loyalty was somewhat under suspicion. From them was named the Vicus Tuscus 'Tuscan Row,' and therefore, they say, the statue of Vertumnus stands there, because he is the chief god of Etruria; but those of the Caelians who were free from suspicion were removed to that place which is called Caeliolum 'the little Caelian.' <sup>b</sup>

47. Joined to the Caelian is Carinae 'the Keels'; and between them is the place which is called Caeriothe sacra Argeorum (§ 50) used princeps, terticeps, etc., to designate numerically the shrines in each pars; and that the place-name was set in the nominative alongside the neuter numeral: therefore "the first is the Caelian Hill" means that the first shrine is located on that hill. Cf. K. O. Mueller, Zur Topographie Roms: über die Fragmenta der Sacra Argeorum bei Varro, de Lingua Latina, v. 8 (pp. 69-94 in C. A. Böttiger, Archäologie und Kunst, vol. i., Breslau, 1828). b The Caeliolum, spoken of also as the Caeliculus (or -um) by Cicero, De Har. Resp. 15. 32, and as the Caelius Minor by Martial, xii. 18. 6, seems to have been a smaller and less important section of the Caelian Hill.

VARRO

quod primae regionis quartum sacrarium scriptum sic est:

Caer(i)olens $is^3$ : quarticeps $^4$  circa Minervium qua in Caeliu(m) monte $(m)^5$  itur: in tabernola est.

Caer\(\)i\rangle olensis\(^6\) a Carinarum\(^7\) iunctu dictus; Carinae pote a\(^8\) caeri\(\)m\(\)onia\(^9\) quod hinc oritur caput Sacrae Viae ab Streniae sacello quae pertinet in arce\(\)m\(\),\(^{10}\) qua sacra quotquot mensibus feruntur in arcem et per quam augures ex arce profecti solent inaugurare. Huius Sacrae Viae pars haec sola volgo nota, quae est a Foro eunti primore\(^{11}\) clivo.

48. Eidem regioni adtributa Subura, quod sub muro terreo Carinarum; in eo est Argeorum sacellum sextum. Subura $\langle m \rangle^1$  Iunius scribit ab eo, quod fuerit sub antiqua urbe; cui testimonium potest esse, quod subest  $ei^2$  loco qui terreus murus vocatur. Sed  $\langle \text{ego a} \rangle^3$  pago potius Succusano dictam puto Succusam:  $\langle \text{quod in nota etiam} \rangle^4$  nunc scribitur  $\langle \text{SVC} \rangle^5$ 11 Aldus, for primoro.

§ 48. Wissowa, for subura.

§ 48. Wissowa, for subura.

§ 4 Added by Mue.,
after Quintilian, Inst. Orat. i. 7. 29.

§ 5 Added by Mercklin, to fill a gap capable of holding three letters, in F; cf.
Quintilian, loc. cit.

&lt;sup>3</sup> Kent, for cerolienses. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for quae triceps. <sup>5</sup> Aug., for celio monte. <sup>6</sup> Kent, for cerulensis. <sup>7</sup> For carinaerum. <sup>8</sup> Jordan, for postea. <sup>9</sup> cerimonia Bekker, for cerionia. <sup>10</sup> Aug., and Frag. Cass., for arce. <sup>11</sup> Aldus, for primoro.

 $\S$  47. <sup>a</sup> That is, Caeliolensis 'pertaining to the Caeliolus.' Through separation in meaning from the primitive, the r has been subject to regular dissimilation as in caerulus for \*caelu-44.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 47-48

lensis, a obviously because the fourth shrine of the first region is thus written in the records:

Coeriolensis: fourth b shrine, near the temple of Minerva, in the street by which you go up the Caelian Hill; it is in a booth.

Caeriolensis is so called from the joining of the Carinae with the Caelian. Carinae is perhaps from caerimonia 'ceremony,' because from here starts the beginning of the Sacred Way, which extends from the Chapel of Strenia d to the citadel, by which the offerings are brought every year to the citadel, and by which the augurs regularly set out from the citadel for the observation of the birds. Of this Sacred Way, this is the only part commonly known, namely the part which is at the beginning of the Ascent as you go from the Forum.

48. To the same region is assigned the Subura,<sup>a</sup> which is beneath the earth-wall of the Carinae; in it is the sixth chapel of the Argei. Junius <sup>b</sup> writes that Subura is so named because it was at the foot of the old city (sub urbe); proof of which may be in the fact that it is under that place which is called the earth-wall. But I rather think that from the Succusan district it was called Succusa; for even now when abbreviated it is written SVC, with C and not B as third lus, Parilia for Palilia; possibly association with Carinae furthered the change. b Cf. § 46, note a. c The words sinistra via or dexteriore via may have been lost before in tabernola; cf. ten Brink's note. d A goddess of health and physical well-being.

§ 48. a Etymology entirely uncertain. The neuters quod and in eo, referring to Subura, mutually support each other. b M. Junius Gracchanus, contemporary and partisan of the Gracchi; page 11 Huschke. He wrote an antiquarian work De Potestatibus.

VARRO

tertia littera C, non B. Pagus Succusanus, quod succurrit Carinis.

49. Secundae regionis Esquiliae.¹ Alii has scripserunt ab excubiis regis dictas, alii ab eo quod ⟨aesculis⟩² excultae a rege Tullio essent. Huic origini magis concinunt loca vicina,³ quod ibi lucus dicitur Facutalis et Larum Querquetulanum sacellum et lucus⁴ Mefitis et Iunonis Lucinae, quorum angusti fines. Non mirum: iam diu enim late avaritia una ⟨domina⟩⁵ est.

50. Esquiliae duo montes habiti, quod pars (Oppius pars)<sup>1</sup> Cespius<sup>2</sup> mons suo antiquo nomine etiam nunc in sacris appellatur. In Sacris Argeorum scriptum sic est:

Oppius Mons: princeps  $\langle Es \rangle$ quili $\langle i \rangle$ s³ uls⁴ lucum Facutalem⁵; sinistra via6 secundum m $\langle o \rangle$ erum est.

Oppius Mons: terticeps cis7 lucum8 Esquilinum; dexterior (e) via in tabernola est.

Oppius Mons: quarticeps  $e(i)s^{10}$  lucum<sup>11</sup> Esquilinum; via dexteriore<sup>12</sup> in figlinis est.

§ 49. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for esquilinae. <sup>2</sup> Added by ten Brink. <sup>3</sup> GS., for uicini. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for lacus. <sup>5</sup> GS., for unae.

§ 50. ¹ Added by Mue. ² For cespeus. ³ Kent; Exquilis Mue., for quilis. ⁴ Lindsay; ouls Mue.; for ouls. ⁵ Laetus, for lacum facultalem. ⁶ Scaliger, for quae. ² Mue., for terticepsois. ⁵ Aldus, for lacum. ⁵ Kent, for dexterior. ¹⁰ Mue., for quatricepsos. ¹¹ Laetus, for lacum. ¹² Kent, for ulam dexteriorem.

° As stated by Quintilian, Inst. Orat. i. 7. 29. <sup>d</sup> This association was made easy by the fact that r was normally lost in Latin before ss: cf. rursum and rusum, dorsum and Dossennus. Hence one might take Succusa to be succur(s) $s\bar{a}$ ; but such an s, representing ss, could not become r as in Subura.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 48-50

letter. The Succusan district is so named because it succurrit d' runs up to ' the Carinae.

49. To the second region belongs the Esquiline.<sup>a</sup> Some <sup>b</sup> say that this was named from the king's excubiae 'watch-posts,' others that it was from the fact that it was planted with aesculi 'oaks' by King Tullius. With this second origin the near-by places agree better, because in that locality there is the so-called Beech Grove, <sup>c</sup> and the chapel of the Oak-Grove Lares, <sup>d</sup> and the Grove of Mefitis <sup>e</sup> and of Juno Lucina <sup>f</sup>—whose territories are narrow. And it is not astonishing; for now this long while, far and wide, Greed has been the one and only mistress.

50. The Esquiline includes two hills, inasmuch as the Oppian part and the Cespian <sup>a</sup> part of the hill are called by their own old names even now, in the sacrifices. In the Sacrifices of the Argei there is the following record b:

Oppian Hill: first shrine, on the Esquiline, beyond the Beech Grove; it is on the left side of the street along the wall.

Oppian Hill: third shrine, this side of the Esquiline Grove;

it is in a booth on the right-hand side of the street.

Oppian Hill: fourth shrine, this side of the Esquiline Grove; it is on the right-hand side of the street among the potteries.

§ 49. <sup>a</sup> By origin, ex-queliai 'dwelling-places outside,' in contrast to the inquilini 'dwellers inside' the walls of the city. <sup>b</sup> Page 115 Funaioli. <sup>c</sup> Facutalis has the C in its old use with the value of g. <sup>d</sup> Not otherwise known, but the emendations proposed seem violent; Querquetulanum is gen. pl. <sup>e</sup> Goddess of malodorous exhalations, with the function of averting their pestilential effect. <sup>f</sup> Juno as goddess of child-birth.

§ 50. a Usually spelled Cispius, but Varro has Cesp-.

<sup>b</sup> Page 6 Preibisch.

VARRO

Cespius<sup>13</sup> Mons: quinticeps cis<sup>14</sup> lucum<sup>15</sup> Poetelium; Esquiliis16 est.

Cespius Mons: sexticeps apud aedem Iunonis Lucinae, ubi aeditumus habere solet.

- 51. Tertiae regionis colles quinque ab deorum fanis appellati, e quis nobiles duo. Collis¹ Viminalis² a Iove Vimin(i)o,3 quod ibi ara e(ius).4 Sunt qui, quod ibi vimineta<sup>5</sup> fuerint. Collis<sup>6</sup> Quirinalis, (quod ibi)7 Quirini fanum. Sunt qui a Quiritibus, qui cum Tatio Curibus venerunt ad Roma(m),8 quod ibi habuerint castra.
- 52. Quod vocabulum coniunctarum regionum nomina obliteravit. Dictos enim collis pluris apparet ex Argeorum Sacrificiis, in quibus scriptum sic est:

Collis Quirinalis: terticeps cis1 aedem Quirini. Collis Salutaris: quarticeps adversum est <A>pol<l>inar cis<sup>2</sup> aedem Salutis.

 $^{13}$  Mue., for sceptius.  $^{14}$  Mue., for quinticepsois.  $^{15}$  Laetus, for lacum.  $^{16}$  Scaliger, for esquilinis.  $\S$  51.  $^{1}$  L. Sp., for colles.  $^{2}$  Laetus, for uiminales.  $^{3}$  Aug., with B, for uimino ; cf. Festus, 376 a 10 M.  $^{4}$  L. Sp., after ten Brink (arae eius), for arae. 5 G, Aug., for niminata. 6 Lactus, for colles. 7 Added by L. Sp. 8 Ten Brink; Romam Lactus; for ab Roma.

§ 52. <sup>1</sup> Mue., for terticepsois. <sup>2</sup> Apollinar cis Mue.,

for pilonarois.

Apparently to be associated with putidus 'stinking,' because of the mention of Mefitis a few lines before; but if so, the oe is a false archaic spelling, out of place in putidus and its kin. Another possibility is that it is to be connected with the plebeian gens Poetelia; one of this name was a member of the Second Decemvirate, 450 B.c. d That is, adjacent to the sacristan's dwelling.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 50-52

Cespian Hill: fifth shrine, this side of the Poetelian of Grove; it is on the Esquiline.

Cespian Hill: sixth shrine, at the temple of Juno Lucina, where the sacristan customarily dwells.d

51. To the third region belong five hills, named from sanctuaries of gods; among these hills are two that are well-known. The Viminal Hill got its name from Jupiter Viminius of the Osiers, because there was his altar; but there are some who assign its name to the fact that there were vimineta willow-copses there. The Quirinal Hill was so named because there was the sanctuary of Quirinus others say that it is derived from the Quirites, who came with Tatius from Cures to the vicinity of Rome, because there they established their camp.

52. This name has caused the names of the adjacent localities to be forgotten. For that there were other hills with their own names, is clear from the Sacrifices of the Argei, in which there is a record to this effect a:

Quirinal Hill: third shrine, this side of the temple of Quirinus.

Salutary Hill b: fourth shrine, opposite the temple of Apollo, this side of the temple of Salus.

§ 51. <sup>a</sup> Page 118 Funaioli. <sup>b</sup> Quirinalis, Quirinus, Quirites belong together; but Cures is probably to be kept apart. <sup>c</sup> Page 116 Funaioli. <sup>d</sup> An ancient city of the Sabines, about twenty-four miles from Rome, the city of Tatius and the birthplace of Numa Pompilius, successor of Romulus; cf. Livy, i. 13, 18.

§ 52. a Page 6 Preibisch. b Salutaris, from salus preservation; the temple perhaps marked the place of a victory in a critical battle, or commemorated the end of a pestilence. We do not know whether this Salus was the same as Iuppiter Salutaris, mentioned by Cicero, De Finibus, iii. 20. 66; cf. the Greek Zevs cartip 'Zeus the Saviour.'

VARRO

Collis Mucialis: quinticeps apud aedem Dei Fidi<sup>3</sup>; in delubro, ubi aeditumus habere solet.

Collis<sup>4</sup> Latiaris<sup>5</sup>: sexticeps in Vico Insteiano<sup>6</sup> summo, apud au(gu)raculum<sup>7</sup>; aedificium solum est.

Horum deorum arae, a quibus cognomina habent, in cius regionis partibus sunt.

53. Quartae regionis Palatium, quod Pallantes cum Euandro venerunt, qui et Palatini; (alii quod Palatini),¹ aborigines ex agro Reatino, qui appellatur Palatium, ibi conse(de)runt²; sed hoc alii a Palanto³ uxore Latini putarunt. Eundem hune locum a pecore dictum putant quidam; itaque Naevius Balatium appellat.

54. Huic Cermalum et Velias¹ coniunxerunt, quod in hac regione2 scriptum est:

Germalense: quinticeps apud aedem Romuli.

Et

Veliense<sup>3</sup>: sexticeps in Velia apud aedem deum Penatium.

<sup>3</sup> For de i de fidi. <sup>4</sup> For colles. <sup>5</sup> M, Laetus, for latioris. <sup>6</sup> Jordan, for instelano; cf. Livy, xxiv. 10. 8, in vico Insteio. <sup>7</sup> Turnebus, for auraculum.

in vico Insteio. <sup>7</sup> Turnebus, for auraculum. § 53. <sup>1</sup> Added by A. Sp. <sup>2</sup> Frag. Cass., M, Laetus, for conserunt. <sup>3</sup> Mue., (Palantho L. Sp.), for palantio;

cf. Fest. 220. 6 M.

§ 54. <sup>1</sup> For uellias. <sup>2</sup> M, Laetus, for religione. <sup>3</sup> Bentinus, for uelienses.

&lt;sup>e</sup> Mucialis, apparently from the gens Mucia; the first known Mucius was the one who on failing to assassinate Porsenna, the Etruscan king who was besieging Rome, burned his right hand over the altar-fire and thus gained the cognomen Scaevola 'Lefty.' Several Mucii with the cognomen Scaevola were prominent in the political and legal life of Rome from 215 to 82 B.C. <sup>d</sup> Deus Fidius was an aspect of Jupiter; cf. Greek Zebs πίστος. <sup>e</sup> Latiaris 'pertaining to Latium'; luppiter Latiaris was the guardian deity of the Latin Confederation, cf. Cicero, Pro Milone, 31. 85.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 52-54

Mucial Hill :: fifth shrine, at the temple of the God of Faith, in the chapel where the sacristan customarily dwells. Latiary Hill :: sixth shrine, at the top of Insteian Row, at the augurs' place of observation; it is the only building.

The altars of these gods, from which they have their surnames, are in the various parts of this region.

53. To the fourth region belongs the Palatine, a so called because the Pallantes came there with Evander, and they were called also Palatines; others think that it was because Palatines, aboriginal inhabitants of a Reatine district called Palatium, settled there; but others thought that it was from Palanto, wife of Latinus. This same place certain authorities think was named from the pecus flocks; therefore Naevius calls it the Balatium f Bleat-ine.

54. To this they joined the Cermalus <sup>a</sup> and the Veliae, <sup>b</sup> because in the account of this region it is thus recorded c:

Germalian: fifth shrine, at the temple of Romulus, and Velian: sixth shrine, on the Velia, at the temple of the deified Penates.

§ 53. <sup>a</sup> For Palatium, there is no convincing etymology. <sup>b</sup> An ancient city of the Sabines, on the Via Salaria, fortycight miles from Rome, on the banks of the river Velinus. <sup>c</sup> Page 116 Funaioli. <sup>d</sup> According to Festus, 220. 5 M., Palanto was the mother of Latinus; she is called Pallantia by Servius in Aen. viii. 51. <sup>e</sup> Frag. Poet. Rom. 28 Baehrens; R.O.L. ii. 56-57 Warmington. <sup>f</sup> As though from balare 'to bleat.'

§ 54. <sup>a</sup> There is no etymology for Cermalus; the word began with C, but for etymological purposes Varro begins it with G, relying on the fact that in older Latin C represented two sounds, c and g. <sup>b</sup> Apparently used both in the singular, Velia, and in the plural, Veliae; there is no etymology. Page 7 Preibisch.

Germalum a germanis Romulo et Remo, quod ad ficum ruminalem, et ii ibi inventi, quo aqua hiberna Tiberis eos detulerat in alveolo expositos. Veliae unde essent plures accepi causas, in quis quod ibi pastores Palatini ex ovibus<sup>4</sup> ante tonsuram inventam vellere lanam sint soliti, a quo vellera<sup>5</sup> dicuntur.

IX. 55. Ager Romanus primum divisus in partis tris, a quo tribus appellata Titiensium, Ramnium, Lucerum. Nominatae, ut ait Ennius, Titienses ab Tatio, Ramnenses ab Romulo, Luceres, ut Iunius, ab Lucumone; sed omnia haec vocabula Tusca, ut Volnius, qui tragoedias Tuscas scripsit, dicebat.

56. Ab hoc partes¹ quoque quattuor urbis tribus dictae, ab locis Suburana, Palatina, Esquilina, Collina; quinta, quod sub Roma, Romilia; sic reliquae² tri⟨gin⟩ta³ ab his rebus quibus in Tribu⟨u⟩m Libro⁴ scripsi.

X. 57. Quod ad loca quaeque his coniuncta fuerunt,

<sup>4</sup> Victorius, for quibus. <sup>5</sup> Laetus, for uelleinera (uellaera Frag. Cass.).

§ 55. <sup>1</sup> Groth, for tatiensium. <sup>2</sup> For tragaedias.

§ 56. <sup>1</sup> For partis, <sup>2</sup> For reliqua, altered from reliquae. <sup>3</sup> Turnebus, for trita. <sup>4</sup> Frag. Cass., L. Sp., for libros.

<sup>d</sup> Page 118 Funaioli.

§ 56. <sup>a</sup> The four urbanae tribus 'city tribes.' <sup>b</sup> The

<sup>§ 55. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Roman possessions in land, both state property and private estates; as opposed to ager peregrinus 'foreign land.' <sup>b</sup> None of the etymologies is probable, which is not surprising, as they were of non-Latin origin, whether or not they were Etruscan. <sup>c</sup> Ann. i. frag. lix. Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 38-39 Warmington. <sup>d</sup> Page 121 Funaioli; page 11 Huschke. <sup>e</sup> Page 126 Funaioli; Volnius is not mentioned elsewhere.

Germalus, they say, is from the germani 'brothers' Romulus and Remus, because it is beside the Fig-tree of the Suckling, and they were found there, where the Tiber's winter flood had brought them when they had been put out in a basket. For the source of the name Veliae I have found several reasons, a among them, that there the shepherds of the Palatine, before the invention of shearing, used to vellere pluck the wool from the sheep, from which the vellera fleeces were named.

IX. 55. The Roman field-land a was at first divided into tris 'three' parts, from which they called the Titienses, the Ramnes, and the Luceres each a tribus 'tribe.' These tribes were named, as Ennius says, the Titienses from Tatius, the Ramnenses from Romulus, the Luceres, according to Junius, from Lucumo; but all these words are Etruscan, as Volnius, who wrote tragedies in Etruscan, stated.

56. From this, four parts of the City also were used as names of tribes, the Suburan, the Palatine, the Esquiline, the Colline, a from the places; a fifth, because it was sub Roma beneath the walls of Rome, was called Romilian b; so also the remaining thirty from those causes which I wrote in the Book of the Tribes.

X. 57. I have told what pertains to places and those things which are connected with them; now of first of the rusticae tribus 'country tribes,' called also Romulia; Festus, 271. 1 M., attributes the name to their being inhabitants of a district which Romulus had taken from Veii. Thirty-five tribes in all, some named from their places of origin, others from Roman gentes. The three original names, given in § 55, went out of use as tribe names long before the time of Varro.

**Quibus for quas**, attracted to the case of its antecedent.

VARRO

dixi; nune de his quae in locis esse solent immortalia et mortalia expediam, ita ut prius quod ad deos pertinet dicam. Principes dei Caelum et Terra. Hi dei idem qui Aegypti<sup>1</sup> Serapis et Isis, etsi Harpocrates digito significat, ut taceam.<sup>2</sup> Idem principes in Latio Saturnus et Ops.<sup>3</sup>

58. Terra enim et Caelum, ut ⟨Sa⟩mothracum¹ initia docent, sunt dei magni, et hi quos dixi multis nominibus, non quas ⟨S⟩amo⟨th⟩racia² ante portas statuit duas virilis species aeneas dei magni,³ neque ut volgus putat, hi Samothraces dii, qui Castor et Pollux, sed hi mas et femina et hi quos Augurum Libri scriptos habent sic "divi potes,"⁴ pro illo quod Samothraces θεοὶ δυνατοί,⁵

59. Haee duo Caelum et Terra, quod anima et corpus. Humidum et frigidum terra, sive

Ova parire¹ solet genus pennis condecoratum, Non animam,

§ 57. <sup>1</sup> For quia egipti. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for tata seam. <sup>3</sup> For obs.

<sup>§ 58. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Laetus, for mothracum. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for ambracia. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for imagini. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for diui qui potes. <sup>5</sup> Aug., for THεOεδΥΝΛΤΟε. § 59. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for parere.

<sup>§ 57. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The chief gods of the Egyptians; their last child was Harpocrates, the youthful aspect of the Sun-God Horus. Harpocrates was commonly represented with his finger on his lips, imposing silence (cf. Catullus, 74. 4); the passage seems 54

these things which are wont to be in places, I shall explain those which deal with immortals and with mortals, in such a way that first I shall tell what pertains to the gods. The first gods were Caelum 'Sky' and Terra' Earth.' These gods are the same as those who in Egypt are called Serapis and Isis, a though Harpocrates with his finger make a sign to me to be silent. The same first gods were in Latium called Saturn and Ops.

58. For Earth and Sky, as the mysteries of the Samothracians <sup>a</sup> teach, are Great Gods, and these whom I have mentioned under many names, are not those Great Gods whom Samothrace <sup>b</sup> represents by two male statues of bronze which she has set up before the city-gates, nor are they, as the populace thinks, the Samothracian gods, <sup>c</sup> who are really Castor and Pollux; but these are a male and a female, these are those whom the Books of the Augurs <sup>d</sup> mention in writing as "potent deities," for what the Samothracians call "powerful gods."

59. These two, Sky and Earth, are a pair like life <sup>a</sup> and body. Earth is a damp cold thing, whether Eggs the flock that is feather-adorned is wont to give birth to,

Not to a life,

to indicate that some orthodox Romans scorned the Egyptian deities and objected to their identification with the Roman gods, a prejudice which the scholar Varro did not share.

§ 58. Mystic rites in honour of the Cabiri. An island in the northern Aegean, off the coast of Thrace. The Cabiri, popularly identified with Castor and Pollux, since they were all youthful male deities to whom protective powers were attributed.

4 Page 16 Regell.

§ 59. a Not quite 'soul,' though it is that which distinguishes the living body from the dead body.

VARRO

ut ait Ennius, et

Post inde venit divinitus pullis

Ipsa anima,

sive, ut Zenon Cit(ie)us,2

Animalium semen ignis is qui anima<sup>3</sup> ac mens.

Qui caldor e caelo, quod huic innumerabiles et immortales ignes. Itaque Epicharmus (cum) dicit de mente humana ait

Istic est de sole sumptus ignis;

idem (de) sole6:

Isque totus mentis est,

ut humores frigidae sunt humi, ut supra ostendi.

60. Quibus iuncti Caelum et Terra omnia ex \se\ genuerunt,¹ quod per hos natura Frigori miscet calorem atque humori<sup>2</sup> aritudinem. Recte igitur Pacuius quod ait Animam aether adjugat, et Ennius

terram corpus quae dederit,³ ipsam capere, neque dispendi facere hilum.

Aug., for citus.
 Laetus, for animam.
 Lachmann, for hinc.
 Added by L. Sp.
 L. Sp., for idem solem.
 60.
 Laetus, for exgenuerunt.
 For homori.
 Scaliger, for deperit.

b Ann. 10-12 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 6-7 Warmington. c Frag. 126 von Arnim. Zeno, of Citium in Cyprus, removed to Athens, where he became the founder of the Stoic school of philosophy; he lived about 331-264 B.C. 56

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 59-60

as Ennius says,b and Thereafter by providence comes to the fledglings Life itself, or, as Zeno of Citium says,6

The seed of animals is that fire which is life and mind.

This warmth is from the Sky, because it has countless undying fires. Therefore Epicharmus, when he is speaking of the human mind, says  $^d$

That is fire taken from the Sun, and likewise of the sun,

And it is all composed of mind, just as moistures are composed of cold earth, as I have shown above.

60. United with these, a Sky and Earth produced everything from themselves, because by means of them nature

Mixes heat with cold, and dryness with the wet.<sup>b</sup> Pacuvius is right then in saying <sup>c</sup>

And heaven adds the life, and Ennius in saying that d

The body she's given Earth does herself take back, and of loss not a whit does she suffer.

<sup>d</sup> Ennius, Varia, 52-53 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 412-413 Warmington. <sup>e</sup> Cf. v. 24.

§ 60. <sup>a</sup> That is, heat and moisture. <sup>b</sup> Ennius. Varia, 46 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>: R.O.L. i. 410-411 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 94 Ribbeck<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 204-205 Warmington. <sup>d</sup> Ann. 13-14 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 6-7 Warmington; indirectly quoted, and therefore not metrical; cf. ix. 54.

Animae et corporis discessus quod natis is exi\(\tau\), inde exitium, ut cum in unum ineunt, initia.

61. Inde omne corpus, ubi nimius ardor aut humor, aut interit aut, si manet, sterile. Cui testis aestas et hiems, quod in altera¹ aer ardet et spica aret, in altera natura ad nascenda cum imbre et frigore luctare non volt et potius ver² expectat. Igitur causa nascendi duplex: ignis et aqua. Ideo ea nuptiis in limine adhibentur, quod coniungit⟨ur⟩³ hic, et mas⁴ ignis, quod ibi semen, aqua femina, quod fetus⁵ ab eius humore, et horum vinctions vis⁶ Venus.

62. Hinc comicus1:

Huic victrix Venus, videsne haec?

Non quod vincere velit Venus, sed vincire. Ipsa Victoria ab eo quod superati vinciuntur. Utrique testis² poesis, quod et Victoria et Venus dicitur caeligena: Tellus enim quod prima vincta Caelo, Victoria ex co. Ideo haec cum corona et palma, quod corona vinclum

4 Sciop., for nati sis exius.

§ 62. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for comicos. <sup>2</sup> For testes.

§ 62. a Com. Rom. Frag., page 133 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. b It is morphologically possible, but not likely, that victrix stands for the agent noun to vincire; vincere 'to conquer' and vincire 'to bind' seem to be distinct etymologically.

<sup>§ 61. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Mue., for altero. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for totius uere. <sup>3</sup> A. Sp., for coniungit. <sup>4</sup> G, II, a for mars. <sup>5</sup> For factus. <sup>6</sup> Pape; iunctionis vis Turnebus; for uinctione suis.

<sup>§ 61. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> On arrival at her husband's house, the Roman bride was required to touch fire and water (or perhaps was sprinkled with water), as initiation into the family worship. <sup>b</sup> Apparently Venus is said to be the basis of the word vinctio; wrong.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 60-62

Inasmuch as the separation of life and body is the exitus 'way out' for all creatures born, from that comes exitium' destruction,' just as when they ineunt' go into 'unity, it is their initia' beginnings.'

61. From this fact, every body, when there is excessive heat or excessive moisture, perishes, or if it survives, is barren. Summer and winter are witnesses to this: in the one the air is blazing hot and the wheat-ears dry up; in the other, nature has no wish to struggle with rain and cold for purposes of birth, and rather waits for spring. Therefore the conditions of procreation are two: fire and water. Thus these are used at the threshold in weddings, because there is union here, and fire is male, which the semen is in the other case, and the water is the female, because the embryo develops from her moisture, and the force that brings their vinctio binding is Venus barrens.

62. Hence the comic poet says,

Venus is his victress, do you see it?

not because Venus wishes vincere 'to conquer,' but vincire' to bind.' b' Victory herself is named from the fact that the overpowered vinciuntur 'are bound.' c' Poetry bears testimony to both, because both Victory and Venus are called heaven-born; for Tellus' Earth,' because she was the first one bound to the Sky, is from that called Victory. Therefore she is connected with the corona 'garland' and the palma 'palm,' c' because the garland is a binder of the head and is c Victoria belongs to vincere 'to conquer.' d Earth as a productive, nourishing divinity; identification with Victoria is not found elsewhere. d The customary symbols of victory.

VARRO

capitis et ipsa a vinctura dicitur vieri, (id) est vinciri³; a quo est in Sota Enni:

Ibant malaci viere Veneriam corollam.

Palma,<sup>4</sup> quod ex utraque parte natura vincta habet paria folia.

63. Poetae de Caelo quod semen igneum cecidisse dicunt in mare ac natam "e spumis" Venerem, coniunctione ignis et humoris, quam habent vim significant esse Ve(ne)ris.¹ A qua vi natis dicta vita et illud a Lucilio:

Vis est vita, vides, vis nos facere omnia cogit.

64. Quare quod caelum principium, ab satu est dictus Saturnus, et quod ignis, Saturnalibus cerei superioribus mittuntur. Terra Ops, quod hic omne opus et hac opus ad vivendum, et ideo dicitur Ops mater, quod terra mater. Haec enim

Terris gentis omnis peperit et resumit denuo, quae

Dat cibaria,

<sup>8</sup> Sciop., for ulere est uincere. <sup>4</sup> Scaliger, for palmam. § 63. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp.; significantes Veneris Laetus; for significantes se ueris.

§ 63. <sup>a</sup> A Greek legend, invented to connect the name of Aphrodite with ἀφρός 'foam'; cf. Hesiod, Theogony, 188-198. The name Aphrodite is probably of Semitic origin.

&lt;sup>f</sup> Vincire is in fact derived from an extension of the root seen in viere. <sup>g</sup> 25 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 404-405 Warmington. <sup>h</sup> Palma and paria are etymologically separate.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 62-64

itself, from vinctura 'binding,' said vieri 'to be plaited,' that is, vinciri 'to be bound 'f; whence there is the line in Ennius's Sota g:

The lustful pair were going, to plait the Love-god's garland.

Palma 'palm' is so named because, being naturally bound on both sides, it has paria 'equal' leaves.h

63. The poets, in that they say that the fiery seed fell from the Sky into the sea and Venus was born "from the foam-masses," a through the conjunction of fire and moisture, are indicating that the vis 'force' which they have is that of Venus. Those born of this vis have what is called vita b' life,' and that was meant by Lucilius c:

Life is force, you see; to do everything force doth compel us.

64. Wherefore because the Sky is the beginning, Saturn was named from satus a 'sowing'; and because fire is a beginning, waxlights are presented to patrons at the Saturnalia. Ops c is the Earth, because in it is every opus 'work' and there is opus 'need' of it for living, and therefore Ops is called mother, because the Earth is the mother. For she d

All men hath produced in all the lands, and takes them back again, she who

Gives the rations,

b Vis and vita are not connected etymologically. c 1340 Marx.

§ 64. <sup>a</sup> This etymology is unlikely. <sup>b</sup> Confirmed by Festus, 54. 16 M. <sup>c</sup> Ops and opus are connected etymologically. <sup>d</sup> Ennius, Varia, 48 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 412-413 Warmington.

VARRO

ut ait Ennius, quae

Quod gerit fruges, Ceres;

antiquis enim quod nunc G C.1

65. Idem hi dei Caelum et Terra Iupiter et Iuno, quod ut ait Ennius:

Istic est is Iupiter quem dico, quem Graeci vocant Aerem, qui ventus est et nubes, imber postea, Atque ex imbre frigus, ventus¹ post fit, aer denuo. Hacc⟨e⟩² propter lupiter sunt ista quae dico tibi, Qui³ mortalis, ⟨arva⟩⁴ atque urbes beluasque omnis iuvat.

Quod hi⟨n⟩c⁵ omnes et sub hoc, eundem appellans dicit :

Divumque hominumque pater rex.

Pater, quod patefacit semen: nam tum esse<sup>6</sup> con-ceptum (pat)et,7 inde cum exit quod oritur.

66. Hoc idem magis ostendit antiquius Iovis nomen: nam olim Diovis et Di(e)spiter¹ dictus, id est dies pater; a quo dei dicti qui inde, et dius² et

 $\S$  64.  $^1$  Lachmann; C quod nunc G Mue.; for quod nunc et.

§ 65. ¹ Laetus, for uentis. ² Mor. Haupt; haecce Mue.; for haec. ³ Aug., with B, for qua. ⁴ Added by Schoell. ⁵ L. Sp., for hic. ⁶ Mue., for est. ² Mue., for et.

§ 66. Laetus, for dispiter. Bentinus, for dies.

§ 65. a Varia, 54-58 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 414-415 Warmington. b Iupiter and iuvare are not related. c An-

* Varia, 49-50 Vahlen*; R.O.L. i. 412-413 Warmington; gerit and Ceres are not connected. * There was a time when C had its original value g (as in Greek, where the third letter is gamma) and had taken over also the value of K. The use of the symbol G for the sound g was later. C in the value g survived in C.=Gaius, Cn.=Gnaeus.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 64-66

as Ennius says,e who Is Ceres, since she brings (gerit) the fruits.

For with the ancients, what is now G, was written C.<sup>f</sup> 65. These same gods Sky and Earth are Jupiter and Juno, because, as Ennius says,<sup>a</sup>

That one is the Jupiter of whom I speak, whom Grecians call

Air; who is the windy blast and cloud, and afterwards the rain;

After rain, the cold; he then becomes again the wind and air.

This is why those things of which I speak to you are Jupiter:

Help he gives b to men, to fields and cities, and to beasties all.

Because all come from him and are under him, he addresses him with the words  $^c$ :

O father and king of the gods and the mortals.

Pater 'father' because he patefacit a' makes evident' the seed; for then it patet 'is evident' that conception has taken place, when that which is born comes out from it.

66. This same thing the more ancient name of Jupiter <sup>a</sup> shows even better: for of old he was called Diovis and Diespiter, that is, dies pater 'Father Day' <sup>b</sup>; from which they who come from him are called dei 'deities,' and dius 'god' and divum 'sky,' whence sub divo 'under the sky,' and Dius Fidius 'god of nales, 580 Vahlen2; R.O.L. i. 168-169 Warmington.

<sup>d</sup> Pater and patere are not related.

§ 66. a lu- in Iupiter, Diovis, Dies, deus, Dins, divum belong together by etymology. b K. O. Mueller thought that Varro meant dies as the old genitive, 'father of the day,' instead of as a nominative in apposition; but this is hardly likely.

divum, unde sub divo, Dius Fidius. Itaque inde eius perforatum tectum, ut ea videatur divum, id est caelum. Quidam negant sub tecto per hunc deierare oportere. Aelius Dium Fid(i)um dicebat Diovis filium, ut Graeci Διόσκορον Castorem, et putabat³ hunc esse Sancum⁴ ab Sabina lingua et Herculem a Graeca. Idem hic Dis⁵ pater dicitur infimus, qui est coniunctus terrae, ubi omnia ⟨ut⟩⁵ oriuntur ita⁻ aboriuntur; quorum quod finis ortu⟨u⟩m, Orcus⁵ dictus.

67. Quod Iovis Iuno coniunx et is Caelum, haec Terra, quae eadem Tellus, et ca dicta, quod una iuvat cum Iove, Iuno, et Regina, quod huius omnia terrestria.

68. Sol¹ vel quod ita Sabini, vel ⟨quod⟩² solus³ ita lucet, ut ex eo deo dies sit. Luna, vel quod sola lucet noctu. Itaque ea dieta Noctiluca in Palatio: nam ibi noctu lucet templum. Hanc ut Solem Apollinem quidam Dianam vocant (Apollinis vocabulum Graecum alterum, alterum Latinum), et hinc quod luna in altitudinem et latitudinem simul it,⁴ Diviana appellata. Hinc Epicharmus Ennii Proserpinam quoque

§ 68. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, with M, for sola. <sup>2</sup> Added by Aug., with B. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for solum. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for et.

Puccius, for putabant.
 Scaliger, for sanctum.
 Mue., for dies.
 Added by Mue.
 Mue., for ui.
 Turnebus, for ortus.

&lt;sup>e</sup> Page 60 Funaioli. <sup>d</sup> Sabine Sancus and the Umbrian divine epithet Sançio- are connected with Latin sancire 'to make sacred,' sacer 'sacred.' <sup>e</sup> Dis is the short form of dives 'rich,' cf. the genitive divitis or ditis, and is not connected with dies; it is a translation of the Greek Πλούτων 'Pluto,' as 'the rich one,' from πλοῦτος 'wealth.' <sup>f</sup> The Italic god of death, not connected with ortus, but perhaps with arcere 'to hem in,' as 'the one who restrains the dead.' § 67. <sup>e</sup> Not connected either with Iupiter or with iuvare.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 66-68

faith.' Thus from this reason the roof of his temple is pierced with holes, that in this way the divum, which is the caelum 'sky,' may be seen. Some say that it is improper to take an oath by his name, when you are under a roof. Aelius said that Dius Fidius was a son of Diovis, just as the Greeks call Castor the son of Zeus, and he thought that he was Sancus in the Sabine tongue, and Hercules in Greek. He is likewise called Dispater in his lowest capacity, when he is joined to the earth, where all things vanish away even as they originate; and because he is the end of these ortus creations, he is called Orcus.

67. Because Juno is Jupiter's wife, and he is Sky, she Terra 'Earth,' the same as Tellus 'Earth,' she also, because she iuvat 'helps' una 'along' with Jupiter, is called Juno,<sup>a</sup> and Regina 'Queen,' because all earthly things are hers.

68. Sol a 'Sun' is so named either because the Sabines called him thus, or because he solus 'alone' shines in such a way that from this god there is the daylight. Luna 'Moon' is so named certainly because she alone 'lucet' shines at night. Therefore she is called Noctiluca 'Night-Shiner' on the Palatine; for there her temple noctu lucet 'shines by night.' b Certain persons call her Diana, just as they call the Sun Apollo (the one name, that of Apollo, is Greek, the other Latin); and from the fact that the Moon goes both high and widely, she is called Diviana. From the fact that the Moon is wont to be under the appellat, quod solet esse sub terris. Dicta Proserpina, quod haec ut serpens modo in dexteram modo in sinisteram partem late movetur. Serpere et proserpere idem dicebant, ut Plautus quod scribit:

<sup>§ 68.</sup> a Not connected with solus. b Either because the white marble gleams in the moonlight, or because a light was kept burning there all night. An artificially prolonged form of Diana; Varro seems to have had in mind deviare to go aside as its basis.

Quasi proserpens bestia.

69. Quae ideo quoque videtur ab Latinis Iuno Lucina dicta vel quod est e(t)1 Terra, ut physici dicunt, et lucet; vel quod2 ab luce eius qua quis conceptus est usque ad eam, qua partus quis in lucem, (l)una³ iuvat, donec mensibus actis produxit in lucem, ficta ab iuvando et luce Iuno Lucina. A quo parientes eam invocant: luna enim nascentium dux quod menses huius. Hoc vidisse antiquas apparet, quod mulieres potissimum supercilia sua attribuerunt ei deae. Hic enim debuit maxime collocari Iuno Lucina, ubi ab diis lux datur oculis.

70. Ignis a \( \g\) nascendo,\( ^1\) quod hinc nascitur et omne quod nascitur ignis s(uc)cendit2; ideo calet, ut qui denascitur eum amittit ac frigescit. Ab ignis iam maiore vi ac violentia Volcanus dictus. Ab eo quod

§ 69. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for e. <sup>2</sup> For quod uel. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for una. § 70. <sup>1</sup> Mue., for nascendo. <sup>2</sup> GS., for scindit.

66

 $^d$  Ennius, Varia, 59 Vahlen². Proserpina is really borrowed from Greek Περοεφόνη, but transformed in popular speech into a word seemingly of Latin antecedents. *Poenulus 1034, Stichus 724; in both passages meaning a snake. § 69. *Lucina, from lux 'light,' indicates Juno as goddess of child-birth. *Equal to 'full moon,' or 'month.'

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 68-70

lands as well as over them, Ennius's Epicharmus calls her Proserpina.<sup>d</sup> Proserpina received her name because she, like a serpens 'creeper,' moves widely now to the right, now to the left. Serpere 'to creep' and proserpere 'to creep forward' meant the same thing, as Plautus means in what he writes <sup>e</sup>:

Like a forward-creeping beast.

69. She appears therefore to be called by the Latins also Juno Lucina, either because she is also the Earth, as the natural scientists say, and lucet shines'; or because from that light of hers b in which a conception takes place until that one in which there is a birth into the light, the Moon continues to help, until she has brought it forth into the light when the months are past, the name Juno Lucina was made from iuvare 'to help' and lux' light.' From this fact women in child-birth invoke her; for the Moon is the guide of those that are born, since the months belong to her. It is clear that the women of olden times observed this, because women have given this goddess credit notably for their eyebrows.c For Juno Lucina ought especially to be established in places where the gods give light to our eyes.

70. Ignis 'fire' is named from gnascia' 'to be born,' because from it there is birth, and everything which is born the fire enkindles; therefore it is hot, just as he who dies loses the fire and becomes cold. From the fire's vis ac violentia' force and violence,' now in greater measure, Vulcan was named. From the fact that fire on account of its brightness fulget

§ 70. a False etymologies.

 $^{\circ}$  Because the eyebrows protect the eyes by which we enjoy the light (Festus, 305 b 10 M.).

ignis propter splendorem fulget, fulgur³ et fulmen, et fulgur(itum)4 quod fulmine ictum.

71. (In) contrariis diis, ab aquae lapsu lubrico lympha. Lympha Iuturna quae iuvaret: itaque multi aegroti propter id nomen hinc aquam petere solent. A fontibus et fluminibus ac ceteris aquis² dei, ut Tiberinus ab Tiberi, et ab lacu Velini Velinia, et Lymphae Com(m)otil(e)s3 ad lacum Cutiliensem a commotu, quod ibi insula in aqua commovetur.

72. Neptunus, quod mare terras obnubit ut nubes caelum, ab nuptu, id est opertione, ut antiqui, a quo nuptiae, nuptus dictus. Salacia Neptuni ab salo. Venilia a veniendo ac vento illo, quem Plautus dicit:

> Quod ille2 dixit qui secundo vento vectus est Tranquillo mari,3 ventum gaudeo.

73. Bellona ab bello nunc, quae Duellona a duello.

<sup>3</sup> Canal, for fulgor. <sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for fulgur.

§ 71. Added by Madvig, who began the sentence here instead of after diis. <sup>2</sup> V, p, for ceteras aquas. for comitiis.

§ 72. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for uenelia. <sup>2</sup> MSS. of Plautus, for i F. <sup>3</sup> MSS. of Plautus have mare.

ibi F.

b The three words are from fulgere 'to flash'; but the -itum of fulguritum is suffixal only, and is not connected with ictum.

§ 72. a Neptunus is not connected with the other words, though nubes may perhaps be related to nubere and its

<sup>§ 71. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Properly from the Greek νύμφη, with dissimilative change of the first consonant. b The first part may be the same element seen in Iupiter, but is certainly not connected with iuvare. A lake in the Sabine country, formed by the spreading out of the Avens River a few miles southeast of Interamna. d A lake in the Sabine country, a few miles east of Reate, in which there was a floating island which drifted with the wind.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 70-73

'flashes,' come fulgur 'lightning-flash' and fulmen thunderbolt,' and what has been fulmine ictum ' hit by a thunderbolt 'is called fulguritum.b

71. Among deities of an opposite kind, Lympha a 'water-nymph' is derived from the water's lapsus lubricus 'slippery gliding.' Juturna b was a nymph whose function was iuvare 'to give help'; therefore many sick persons, on account of this name, are wont to seek water from her spring. From springs and rivers and the other waters gods are named, as Tiberinus from the river Tiber, and Velinia from the lake of the Velinus, and the Commotiles 'Restless' Nymphs at the Cutilian Lake,d from the commotus motion,' because there an island commovetur 'moves about ' in the water.

72. Neptune, because the sea veils the lands as the clouds veil the sky, gets his name from nuptus 'veiling,' that is, opertio 'covering,' as the ancients said; from which nuptiae 'wedding,' nuptus 'wedlock ' are derived. Salacia, b wife of Neptune, got her name from salum ' the surging sea.' Venilia c was named from venire 'to come 'and that ventus ' wind ' which Plantus mentions d:

As that one said who with a favouring wind was borne Over a placid sea: I'm glad I went.

73. Bellona 'Goddess of War' is said now, from bellum a 'war,' which formerly was Duellona, from derivatives. b Almost certainly an abstract substantive to salax 'fond of leaping, lustful, provoking lust'; though popularly associated with salum. There is a Venilia in the Aeneid, x. 76, a sea-nymph who is the mother of Turnus. d Cistellaria, 14-15. Punning on ventum: the last phrase may mean also "I'm glad there was a wind." § 73. Correct.

VARRO

Mars ab eo quod maribus in bello praeest, aut quod Sabinis acceptus ibi est Mamers. Quirinus a Quiritibus. Virtus ut viritus¹ a virilitate. Honos ab² onere: itaque honestum dicitur quod oneratum, et dictum:

Onus est honos qui sustinet rem publicam.

Castoris nomen Graecum, Pollucis a Graecis; in Latinis litteris veteribus nomen quod est, inscribitur ut  $\Pi o \lambda v \delta \epsilon \acute{v} \kappa \eta s^3$  Polluces, non ut nunc<sup>4</sup> Pollux. Concordia a corde congruente.

74. Feronia, Minerva, Novensides a Sabinis. Paulo aliter ab eisdem dicimus haec: Palem,¹ Vestam, Salutem, Fortunam, Fontem, Fidem. E⟨t⟩ arae² Sabinum linguam olent, quae Tati regis voto sunt Romae dedicatae: nam, ut annales dicunt, vovit Opi, Florae, Vediovi³ Saturnoque, Soli, Lunae, Volcano ct Summano, itemque Larundae, Termino, Quirino, Vortumno, Laribus, Dianae Lucinaeque; e quis nonnulla nomina in utraque lingua habent radices, ut arbores quae in confinio natae in utroque agro ser-

 $\S$  73.  $^1$  Scaliger, for uiri ius.  $^2$  After ab, Woelflin deleted honesto.  $^3$  For pollideuces.  $^4$  For nuns.  $^3$  Mue., for floreue dioioui.  $^2$  Mue., for ea re.  $^3$  Mue., for floreue dioioui.

§ 74. <sup>a</sup> An old Italian goddess, later identified with Juno. <sup>b</sup> Apparently 'new settlers,' from novus and insidere, used of the gods brought from elsewhere as distinct from the indigetes or native gods. <sup>c</sup> It is unlikely that all the deities of the

&lt;sup>b</sup> Mars and Mamers go together, but mares 'males' is quite distinct. <sup>c</sup> Virtus is in fact from vir. <sup>d</sup> Honos and onus are quite distinct. <sup>e</sup> Com. Rom. Frag., page 147 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. <sup>f</sup> As in inscriptions, where such spellings are found. <sup>e</sup> Essentially correct.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 73-74

duellum. Mars is named from the fact that he commands the mares 'males' in war, or that he is called Mamers b among the Sabines, with whom he is a favourite. Quirinus is from Quirites. Virtus 'valour,' as viritus, is from virilitas 'manhood.' c Honos 'honour, office' is said from onus d' burden'; therefore honestum 'honourable' is said of that which is oneratum 'loaded with burdens,' and it has been said:

Full onerous is the honour which maintains the state."

The name of Castor is Greek, that of Pollux likewise from the Greeks; the form of the name which is found in old Latin literature f is Polluces, like Greek  $\text{Ho} \lambda \nu \delta \epsilon \acute{\nu} \kappa \eta s$ , not Pollux as it is now. Concordia 'Concord' is from the cor congruens 'harmonious heart.' g

74. Feronia,<sup>a</sup> Minerva, the Novensides <sup>b</sup> are from the Sabines. With slight changes, we say the following, also from the same people <sup>c</sup>: Pales,<sup>d</sup> Vesta, Salus, Fortune, Fons,<sup>e</sup> Fides 'Faith.' There is scent of the speech of the Sabines about the altars also, which by the vow of King Tatius were dedicated at Rome: for, as the Annals tell, he vowed altars to Ops, Flora, Vediovis and Saturn, Sun, Moon, Vulcan and Summanus, fand likewise to Larunda, Terminus, Quirinus, Vertumnus, the Lares, Diana and Lucina; some of these names have roots in both languages, like trees which have sprung up on the boundary line and creep about next two lists were brought in from elsewhere; many of the names are perfectly Roman.

<sup>d</sup> Goddess of the shepherds, who protected them and their flocks.

<sup>e</sup> God of Springs; ef. vi. 22.

<sup>f</sup> A mysterious deity who was considered responsible for lightning at night.

<sup>g</sup> Called also Lara, a tale-bearing nymph whom Jupiter deprived of the power of speech.

<sup>h</sup> Quite possible, but very unlikely in the cases of Saturn and Diana.

punt4: potest enim Saturnus hic de alia causa esse dictus atque in Sabinis, et sic Diana,5 de quibus supra dictum est.

XI. 75. Quod ad immortalis attinet, haec; deinceps quod ad mortalis attinet videamus. De his animalia in tribus locis quod sunt, in aere, in aqua, in terra, a summa parte (ad) infimam descendam. Primum nomin(a) omnium<sup>2</sup>: alites (ab) alis,<sup>3</sup> volucres a volatu. Deinde generatim: de his pleraeque ab suis vocibus ut haec: upupa, cuculus, corvus, hirundo, ulula, bubo; item haec: pavo, anser, gallina, columba.

76. Sunt quae aliis de causis appellatae, ut noctua, quod noctu canit et vigilat, lusci(ni)ola,¹quod luctuose canere existimatur atque esse ex Attica Progne in luctu facta avis. Sic galeritus2 et motacilla, altera quod in capite habet plumam elatam, altera quod semper movet caudam. Merula, quod mera, id est sola, volitat; contra ab eo graguli, quod gregatim, <sup>4</sup> For serpent. <sup>5</sup> Aldus, for dianae.

§ 75. <sup>1</sup> Added by G, H. <sup>2</sup> Fay; nomen omnium Mue.; for nomen nominem. <sup>3</sup> Aug., for alii. § 76. <sup>1</sup> Victorius, for lusciola. <sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for galericus.

Saturn in § 64, Diana in § 68.

§ 75. The first six, except hirundo (of unknown etvmology), are onomatopoeic. Of the last four, pavo is borrowed from an Oriental language; anser is an old Indo-European word; gallina is 'the Gallic bird'; columba is named from its colour.

§ 76. <sup>a</sup> Perhaps correct, if from luges-cania 'sorrowsinger.' b Procne, daughter of Pandion king of Athens and wife of Tereus king of Thrace, killed her son Itys and served him to his father for food, in revenge for his ill-treatment and infidelity; see Ovid, Metamorphoses, vi. 424-674. <sup>c</sup> Literally 'hooded,' wearing a galerum or hood-like helmet. d If not correct, then a very reasonable popular etymology.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 74-76

in both fields: for Saturn might be used as the god's name from one source here, and from another among the Sabines, and so also Diana; these names I have discussed above.

XI. 75. This is what has to do with the immortals; next let us look at that which has to do with mortal creatures. Amongst these are the animals, and because they abide in three places—in the air, in the water, and on the land—I shall start from the highest place and come down to the lowest. First the names of them all, collectively: alites 'winged birds' from their alae' wings, 'volucres' fliers' from volatus' flight.' Next by kinds: of these, very many are named from their cries, as are these: upupa 'hoopoe,' cuculus' cuckoo,' corvus 'raven,' hirundo 'swallow,' ulula' 'screech-owl,' bubo 'horned owl'; likewise these: pavo 'peacock,' anser 'goose,' gallina 'hen,' columba' dove.' a

76. Some got their names from other reasons, such as the noctua' night-owl,' because it stays awake and hoots noctu' by night,' and the lusciniola' nightingale,' because it is thought to canere' sing' luctuose' sorrowfully' a and to have been transformed from the Athenian Procne b in her luctus' sorrow,' into a bird. Likewise the galeritus c' crested lark' and the motacilla' wagtail,' the one because it has a feather standing up on its head, the other because it is always moving its tail. The merula' blackbird' is so named because it flies mera' unmixed,' that is, alone c; on the other hand, the graguli' jackdaws' got their names because they fly gregatim' in flocks,' as certain ut quidam Graeci greges γέργερα. Ficedula(e)3 et miliariae a cibo, quod alterae fico, alterae milio fiunt pingues.

&lt;sup>6</sup> That is, without other birds, like wine without water: an absurd etymology. <sup>f</sup> Properly graculi; not connected with greges.

XII. 77. Aquatilium vocabula animalium partim sunt vernacula, partim peregrina. Foris muraena, quod μύραινα Gracce, cybium¹ et thynnus, cuius item partes Graecis vocabulis omnes, ut melander atque uraeon. Vocabula piscium pleraque translata a terrestribus ex aliqua parte similibus rebus, ut anguilla, lingulaca, sudis2; alia a coloribus, ut haec: asellus, umbra, turdus; alia a vi quadam, ut haec: lupus, canicula, torpedo. Item in conchyliis aliqua ex Graecis, ut peloris, ostrea, echinus. Vernacula ad similitudinem, ut surenae,3 pectunculi, ungues.

XIII. 78. Sunt etiam animalia in aqua, quae in terram interdum exeant: alia Graecis vocabulis, ut polypus, hippo(s) potamios, crocodilos, alia Latinis, g Correct; Varro, De Re Rustica, iii. 5. 2, speaks of miliariae as prized delicacies, raised and fattened for the table.

<sup>3</sup> Ed. Veneta, for ficedula.

§ 77. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for cytybium. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for lingula casudis. <sup>3</sup> For syrenae. § 78. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for yppo potamios. <sup>2</sup> For crocodillos.

§ 77. The identification of many animals and fishes is quite uncertain, and the translation is therefore tentative. But the etymological views in §77 and §78 are approximately b More precisely, the flesh of the young tunny salted in cubes. 'c Seemingly a variant form for melandryon, Greek μελάνδονον 'slice of the large tunny called μελάνδρνο or black-oak.'

<sup>a</sup> From Greek οὐραῖος 'pertaining to the tail (οὐραῖ).'

<sup>b</sup> Diminutive of anguis 'snake.'

<sup>c</sup> Diminutive of ingulaca means also

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 76-78

Greeks call greges 'flocks'  $\gamma \epsilon \rho \gamma \epsilon \rho a$ . Ficedulae 'figpeckers' and miliariae 'ortolans' are named from their food, because the ones become fat on the ficus 'fig,' the others on milium 'millet.'

XII. 77. The names of water animals are some native, some foreign.a From abroad come muraena 'moray,' because it is μύραινα in Greek, cybium 'young tunny 'b and thunnus 'tunny,' all whose parts likewise go by Greek names, as melandere 'black-oak-piece' and uraeon a 'tail-piece.' Very many names of fishes are transferred from land objects which are like them in some respect, as anguilla e 'eel,' lingulaca f 'sole,' sudis 9 'pike.' Others come from their colours, like these: asellus 'cod,' umbra 'grayling,' turdus 'seacarp.' h Others come from some physical power, like these: lupus 'wolf-fish,' canicula 'dogfish,' torpedo 'electric ray.' Likewise among the shellfish there are some from Greek, as peloris 'mussel,' ostrea ovster, echinus 'sea-urchin'; and also native words that point out a likeness, as surenae, pectunculik 'scallops,' ungues 1 'razor-clams.'

XIII. 78. There are also animals in the water, which at times come out on the land: some with Greek names, like the octopus, the hippopotamus, the crocodile; others with Latin names, like rana 'frog,' ut rana,  $\langle \text{anas} \rangle$ , mergus; a quo Graeci ea quae in aqua et terra possunt vivere vocant  $\partial \mu \phi i \beta \omega$ . E quis rana ab sua dicta voce, anas a nando, mergus quod mergendo in aquam captat escam.

&#x27;chatter-box, talkative woman.' On land, a 'stake.' On land, respectively 'little ass,' 'shadow,' 'thrush.' On land, respectively 'wolf,' 'little dog,' 'numbness.' Of unknown meaning, and perhaps a corrupt reading; Groth, De Codice Florentino, 27 (105), suggests pernae from Pliny, Nat. Hist. xxxii. 11. 54. 154, who mentions the perna as a sea-mussel standing on a high foot or stalk, like a haunch of ham with the leg. On land, 'little combs,' diminutive of peeten. 'Finger-nails'; perhaps not the razor-clam, but a small clam shaped like the finger-nail.

VARRO

79. Item alia¹ in hoc genere a Graecis, ut querquedula,  $\langle \text{quod} \rangle^2 \kappa \epsilon \rho \kappa \eta \delta \eta s$ ,³ alcedo,⁴ quod ea å $\lambda \kappa \nu \omega \nu$ ; Latina, ut testudo, quod testa tectum hoc animal, lolligo, quod subvolat, littera commutata, primo volligo. Ut Aegypti in flumine quadrupes sic in Latio, nominati  $lu\langle t\rangle$ ra⁵ et fiber.  $Lu\langle t\rangle$ ra,⁵ quod succidere dicitur arborum radiccs in ripa atque eas dissolvere: ab ⟨luere⟩ lutra.⁶ Fiber, ab extrema ora fluminis dextra et sinistra maxime quod solet videri, et antiqui februm dicebant extremum, a quo in sagis fimbr⟨i⟩ae et in iecore extremum fibra, fiber dictus.

XIV. 80. De animalibus in locis terrestribus quae sunt hominum propria primum, deinde de pecore, tertio de feris scribam. Incipiam ab honore publico.

Added by Aug.
 § 79.
 L. Šp., with B, for aliae.
 Added by Kent.
 GS., for cerceris.
 Groth; halcedo Laetus; for algedo.
 GS.; lytra Turnebus; for lira.
 Stroux; ab luere Scaliger; for ab litra.

<sup>§ 78. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Cf. § 77, note a. § 79. <sup>a</sup> Conjectural purely. <sup>b</sup> An absurd etymology. <sup>c</sup> Originally udra 'water-animal,' with l from association with lutum 'mud' or lutor 'washer.' Varro attributes to the otter the tree-felling habit of the beaver. <sup>d</sup> Properly 'the brown animal.' <sup>e</sup> Fiber, fimbriae, fibra have no etymological connexion.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 78-80

anas 'duck,' mergus 'diver.' Whence the Greeks give the name amphibia to those which can live both in the water and on the land. Of these, the rana is named from its voice, the anas from nare 'to swim,' the mergus because it catches its food by mergendo

'diving' into the water.a

79. Likewise there are other names in this class, that are from the Greeks, as querquedula 'teal,' because it is κερκήδης, and alcedo 'kingfisher,' because this is άλκιών: and Latin names, such as testudo 'tortoise,' because this animal is covered with a testa 'shell,' and lolligo 'cuttle-fish,' because it volat 'flies' up from under, b originally volligo, but now with one letter changed. Just as in Egypt there is a quadruped living in the river, so there are river quadrupeds in Latium, named lutra 'otter' and fiber 'beaver.' The lutra c is so named because it is said to cut off the roots of trees on the bank and set the trees loose: from luere 'to loose,' lutra. The beaver d was called fiber because it is usually seen very far off on the bank of the river to right or to left, and the ancients called a thing that was very far off a februm; from which in blankets the last part is called fimbriae 'fringe' and the last part in the liver is the fibra ' fibre.'

XIV. 80. Among the living beings on the land, I shall speak first of terms which apply to human beings, then of domestic animals, third of wild beasts. I shall start from the offices of the state. The Consul a was <sup>§ 80.</sup> a Properly, consulere is derived from consul. Of consul, at least four reasonable etymologies are proposed, the simplest being that it is from com+sed 'those who sit together,' as there were two consuls from the beginning; the I for d being a peculiarity taken from the dialect of the Sabines (cf. lingua for older diagua).

VARRO

Consu Inominatus qui consuleret populum et senatum, nisi illinc potius unde Accius1 ait in Bruto:

Qui recte consulat, consul fiat.2

Praetor dictus qui praeiret iure et exercitu; a quo id Lucilius:

Ergo praetorum est ante et praeire.

- 81. Censor ad cuius censionem, id est arbitrium, censeretur populus. Aedilis qui aedis sacras et privatas procuraret. Quaestores a quaerendo, qui conquirerent publicas pecunias et maleficia, quae triumviri capitales nunc conquirunt; ab his postea qui quaestionum iudicia exercent quaes(i)tores1 dicti. Tribuni militum, quod terni tribus tribubus Ramnium, Lucerum, Titium olim ad exercitum mittebantur. Tribuni plebei, quod ex tribunis militum primum tribuni plebei facti, qui plebem defenderent, in secessione Crustumerina.
- 82. Dictator, quod a consule dicebatur, cui dicto audientes omnes essent. Magister equitum, quod

§ 80. Later codices, for tatius  $F^1$ , H,  $p^2$ , taccius  $F^2$ , V, a. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for consulciat. § 81. <sup>1</sup> Mommsen, for quaestores.

<sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 39 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 564-565 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Iure is dative. <sup>d</sup> 1160 Marx.

<sup>§ 81.</sup> a The tribunus was by etymology merely the 'man of the tribus or tribe,' and therefore did not derive his name from the word for 'three,' except indirectly; cf. § 55. b That is, elected by the plebeians from among their military tribunes whom they had chosen to lead them in their Seces-sion to the Sacred Mount (which may have lain in the territory of Crustumerium), in 494 B.c. Their persons were 78

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 80-82

so named as the one who should consulere 'ask the advice of' people and senate, unless rather from this fact whence Accius takes it when he says in the Brutus <sup>b</sup>:

Let him who counsels right, become the Consul.

The Praetor was so named as the one who should praeire 'go before' the law and the army; whence Lucilius said this ':

Then to go out in front and before is the duty of praetors.

81. The Censor was so named as the one at whose censio 'rating,' that is, arbitrium 'judgement,' the people should be rated. The Aedile, as the one who was to look after aedes 'buildings' sacred and private. The Quaestors, from quaerere' to seek, who conquirerent 'should seek into' the public moneys and illegal doings, which the triumviri capitales 'the prison board' now investigate; from these, afterwards, those who pronounce judgement on the matters of investigation were named quaesitores 'inquisitors.' The Tribunia Militum ' tribunes of the soldiers,' because of old there were sent to the army three each on behalf of the three tribes of Ramnes, Luceres, and Tities. The Tribuni Plebei 'tribunes of the plebs,' because from among the tribunes of the soldiers tribunes of the plebs were first created, b in the Secession to Crustumerium, for the purpose of defending the plebs 'populace.'

82. The Dictator, because he was named by the consul as the one to whose dictum order all should be obedient.<sup>a</sup> The Magister Equitum master of the sacrosanct, enabling them to carry out their duty of protecting the plebeians against the injustice of the patrician officials. § 82. a Rather, because he dictat 'gives orders.'

summa potestas huius in equites et accensos, ut est summa populi dictator, a quo is quoque magister populi appellatus. Reliqui, quod minores quam hi magistri, dicti magistratus, ut ab albo albatus.

XV. 83. Sacerdotes universi a sacris dicti. Pontufices, ut¹ Scaevola Quintus pontufex maximus dicebat, a posse et facere, ut po⟨te⟩ntifices.² Ego a ponte arbitror: nam ab his Sublicius est factus primum ut restitutus saepe, cum ideo sacra et uls³ et cis Tiberim non mediocri ritu fiant. Curiones dicti a curiis, qui fiunt ut in his sacra faciant.

84. Flamines, quod in Latio capite velato erant semper ac caput cinctum habebant filo, f(i)lamines¹ dicti. Horum singuli cognomina habent ab eo deo cui sacra faciunt; sed partim sunt aperta, partim obscura: aperta ut Martialis, Volcanalis; obscura Dialis et Furinalis, cum Dialis ab Iove sit (Diovis enim), Furi⟨n⟩alis a Furrina,² cuius etiam in fastis

§ 83. <sup>1</sup> After ut, Ed. Veneta deleted a. <sup>2</sup> GS., for pontifices, cf. v. 4. <sup>3</sup> For uis. § 84. <sup>1</sup> Canal, for flamines, cf. Festus, 87. 15 M. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp.; Furina Aldus; for furrida.

<sup>b</sup> Not quite; for magistratus is a fourth declension substantive, 'office of magister,' then 'holder of such an office,' while albatus is a second declension adjective.

§ 83. <sup>a</sup> Q. Mucius Scaevola, consul 95 s.c., and subsequently Pontifex Maximus; proscribed and killed by the Marian party in 82. He was a man of the highest character and abilities, and made the first systematic compilation of the ius civile; see i. 19 Huschke. <sup>b</sup> Varro may be right, though perhaps it was the 'bridges' between this world and the next which originally the pontifices were to keep in repair; cf. Class. Philol. viii. 317-326 (1913). <sup>c</sup> The wooden bridge on piles, traditionally built by Ancus Marcius. <sup>d</sup> The curia

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 82-84

cavalry,' because he has supreme power over the cavalry and the replacement troops, just as the dictator is the highest authority over the people, from which he also is called magister, but of the people and not of the cavalry. The remaining officials, because they are inferior to these magistri 'masters,' are called magistratus 'magistrates,' derived just as albatus 'whitened, white-clad' is derived from albus 'white.' b

XV. 83. The sacerdotes 'priests' collectively were named from the sacra 'sacred rites.' The pontifices 'high-priests,' Quintus Scaevola a the Pontifex Maximus said, were 'named from posse ' to be able ' and facere ' to do,' as though potentifices. For my part I think that the name comes from pons 'bridge' b; for by them the Bridge-on-Piles a was made in the first place, and it was likewise repeatedly repaired by them, since in that connexion rites are performed on both sides of the Tiber with no small ceremony. The curiones were named from the curiae; they are created for conducting sacred rites in the curiae.

84. The flamines <sup>a</sup> 'flamens,' because in Latium they always kept their heads covered and had their hair girt with a woollen filum 'band,' were originally called filamines. Individually they have distinguishing epithets from that god whose rites they perform; but some are obvious, others obscure: obvious, like Martialis and Volcanalis; obscure are Dialis and Furinalis, since Dialis is from Jove, for he is called also Diovis, and Furinalis from Furrina, <sup>b</sup> who even has a was the fundamental political unit in the early Roman state; it was an organization of gentes, originally ten to the curia, and ten curiae to each of the three tribes.

§ 84. <sup>a</sup> Of uncertain etymology, but not from filamen.

<sup>b</sup> A goddess, practically unknown; cf. vi. 19.

VOL. I

feriae Furinales sunt. Sic flamen Falacer a divo patre Falacre.

85. Salii ab salitando, quod facere in comitiis in sacris quotannis et solent et debent. Luperci, quod Lupercalibus in Lupercali sacra faciunt. Fratres Arvales dicti qui sacra publica faciunt propterea ut fruges ferant arva: a ferendo et arvis Fratres Arvales dicti. Sunt qui a fratria dixerunt: fratria est Graecum vocabulum partis¹ hominum, ut (Ne)apoli² etiam nunc. Sodales Titii (ab avibus titiantibus)³ dicti, quas in auguriis certis observare solent.

86. Fetiales, quod fidei publicae inter populos praeerant: nam per hos fiebat ut iustum conciperetur bellum, et inde desitum, ut foedere fides pacis constitueretur. Ex his mittebantur, ante quam conciperetur, qui res repeterent, et per hos etiam nunc fit foedus,¹ quod fidus Ennius scribit dictum.

§ 85. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for patris. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for apoli. <sup>3</sup> Added by A. Sp., after Laetus (a titiis avibus). § 86. <sup>1</sup> For faedus.

<sup>c</sup> An old Italic mythical hero; quite obscure.

§ 85. <sup>a</sup> From salire 'to leap,' of which salitare is a derivative. <sup>b</sup> Priests of the God Lupercus, who arcet 'keeps away 'the lupi' wolves 'from the flocks. <sup>c</sup> Arcales from arca; but fratres has nothing to do with ferre. <sup>d</sup> Page 116 Funaioli. <sup>e</sup> 'Political brotherhood,' from φράτηρ 'clan brother'; any reference to it is here out of place. <sup>f</sup> According to Tacitus, Ann. i. 54, they were established by Titus Tatius for the preservation of certain Sabine religious practices.

§ 86. <sup>a</sup> Perhaps from an old word meaning 'law,' from the root seen in feci 'I made, established'; but without connexion with the words in the text. Foedus, fides, fidus are closely connected with one another. <sup>b</sup> In the early

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 84-86

Furinal Festival in the calendar. So also the Flamen Falacer from the divine father Falacer.

85. The Salii were named a from salitare 'to dance,' because they had the custom and the duty of dancing yearly in the assembly-places, in their ceremonies. The Luperci b were so named because they make offerings in the Lupercal at the festival of the Lupercalia. Fratres Arvales 'Arval Brothers' was the name given to those who perform public rites to the end that the ploughlands may bear fruits: from ferre' to bear 'and arva' ploughlands' they are called Fratres Arvales. But some have said that they were named from fratria brotherhood': fratria is the Greek name of a part of the people, as at Naples even now. The Sodales Titii 'Titian Comrades' are so named from the titiantes' twittering' birds which they are accustomed to watch in some of their augural observations.

86. The Fetiales a 'herald-priests,' because they were in charge of the state's word of honour in matters between peoples; for by them it was brought about that a war that was declared should be a just war, and by them the war was stopped, that by a foedus' treaty' the fides' honesty' of the peace might be established. Some of them were sent before war should be declared, to demand restitution of the stolen property, b and by them even now is made the foedus' treaty,' which Ennius writes c was pronounced fidus.

days wars started chiefly as the result of raids in which property, cattle, and persons had been carried off. Page 238 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 564 Warmington; Ennius probably wished by a pun to indicate a relation between foedus and the adjective fidus which, in his opinion, did not really exist (though it did).

XVI. 87. In re militari praetor dictus qui praeiret exercitui. Imperator, ab imperio populi qui eos, qui id attemptasse(n)t, oppressi(t)1 hostis. Legati qui lecti publice, quorum opera consilioque uteretur peregre magistratus, quive nuntii senatus aut populi essent. Exercitus, quod exercitando fit melior. Legio, quod leguntur milites in delectu.

88. Cohors, quod ut in villa ex pluribus tectis coniungitur ac quiddam fit unum, sic hic1 ex manipulis pluribus copulatur2: cohors quae in villa, quod circa eum locum pecus cooreretur, tametsi cohortem in villa Hypsicrates<sup>3</sup> dicit esse Graece χόρτον<sup>4</sup> apud poetas dictam. Manipulus exercitus minima manus quae unum sequitur signum. Centuria qui<sup>7</sup> sub uno centurione sunt, quorum centenarius iustus numerus.

89. Milites, quod trium milium primo legio fiebat ac singulae tribus Titiensium, Ramnium, Lucerum milia militum mittebant. Hastati dicti qui primi

 $\S$  87.  $^1$  Aug., with B, for oppressi.  $\S$  88.  $^1$  Mue., for his.  $^2$  G, H, Laetus, for populatur.  $^3$  Aldus, for ipsicrates.  $^4$  Turnebus, for cohorton.  $^5$  L. Sp., for manipulos.  $^6$  L. Sp., for minimas.  $^7$  Mue., for quae.

<sup>§ 87.</sup> a So named because he imperat 'gives orders'; in practice, it was a title conferred upon a general after a victory, by spontaneous acclamation of his soldiers. 'delegated,' participle of legare (akin to legere).

<sup>§ 88. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Prefix co-+hort-s, the second part being the same as hortus 'enclosed place as garden,' and Greek χόρτος.
<sup>b</sup> A grammarian, mentioned also by Gellius, xvi. 12. 6: see Funaioli, page 107. <sup>c</sup>A 'handful,' from manus + a derivative of the root in plere 'to fill.' <sup>d</sup> This and the following words are from centum 'hundred.'

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 87-89

XVI. 87. In military affairs, the practor was so called as the one who should praeire 'go at the head' of the army. The imperator a commander, from the imperium 'dominion' of the people, as the one who crushed those enemies who had attacked it. The legati b 'attachés,' those who were lecti 'chosen' officially, whose aid or counsel the magistrates should use when away from Rome, or who should be messengers of the senate or of the people. The exercitus army,' because by exercitando 'training' it is improved. The legio 'legion,' because the soldiers leguntur' are gathered' in the levy.

88. The cohors a 'cohort,' because, just as on the farm the cohors 'yard' coniungitur' is joined together' of several buildings and becomes a certain kind of unity, so in the army it copulatur ' is coupled together ' of several maniples: the cohors which is on the farm, is so called because around that place the flock cooritur 'assembles,' although Hypsicrates b says that the cohors on the farm, as said by the poets, is the word which in Greek is χόρτος 'farmyard.' The manipulus c' maniple ' is the smallest manus ' troop ' which has a standard of its own to follow. The centuria d' century ' consists of those who are under one centurio 'centurion,' whose proper number is centenarius ' one hundred each.'

89. Milites a 'soldiers,' because at first the legion was made of three milia 'thousands,' and the individual tribes of Titienses, Ramnes, and Luceres sent their milia 'thousands' of milites 'soldiers.' The hastati 'spearmen' were so called as those who in the first line fought with hastae 'spears,' the pilani 'javea Milites and milia are not connected etymologically.

hastis pugnabant, pilani qui pilis, principes qui a principio gladiis; ea post commutata re militari minus illustria sunt. Pilani triarii quoque dicti, quod in acie tertio ordine extremi subsidio deponebantur; quod hi subsidebant ab eo subsidium dictum, a quo Plautus:

Agite nunc, subsidite3 omnes quasi solent triarii.

- 90. Auxilium appellatum ab auctu, cum accesserant ei qui adiumento essent alienigenae. Praesidium dictum qui extra castra praesidebant in loco aliquo, quo tutior regio esset. Obsidium dictum ab obsidendo, quo minus hostis egredi posset. In-\(\si\)diae¹ item ab insidendo,² cum id ideo facerent quo facilius deminuerent hostis. Duplicarii dicti quibus ob virtutem duplicia cibaria ut darentur institutum.
- 91. Turma terima (E in U abiit), quod ter deni equites ex tribus tribubus Titiensium, Ramnium, Lucerum fiebant. Itaque primi singularum decuriarum decuriones dicti, qui ab eo in singulis turmis sunt etiam nunc terni. Quos hi primo administros

 $\S$  89.  $^1$  For triani.  $^2$  Aug. (quoting a friend), for extremis.  $^3$  Laetus, for subsidete.  $\S$  90.  $^1$  L. Sp., for indic.  $^2$  Studemund (quoted by Groth), for ab absidendo.

§ 91. <sup>a</sup> Etymology uncertain, but not as in the text.

&lt;sup>b</sup> By origin, the 'foremost' in the fight, the men of the first line, later shifted in position. <sup>c</sup> By origin, 'that which sits or remains close by, under the outer edge of something'; Varro's etymology is correct, except for his interpretation of the verb. <sup>d</sup> Frivolaria, frag. V Ritschl.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 89-91

lin-men' as being those who fought with pila' javelins,' the principes b' first-men' as those who from the principium' beginning' fought with swords; these words were less perspicuous later, when tactics had been changed. The pilani are called also triarii' third-line-men,' because in the battle arrangement they were set in the rear, in the third line, as reserves; because these men habitually subsidebant' sat' while waiting, from this fact the subsidium c' reserve force' got its name, whence Plautus says d:

Come now, all of you sit by as troopers in reserve are wont.

90. Auxilium 'auxiliaries' was so called from auctus 'increase,' when those foreigners who were intended to give help had added themselves to the fighters. Praesidium 'garrison' was said of those who praesidebant' sat in front 'outside the main camp somewhere, that the district might be safer. Obsidium 'siege' was said from obsidere 'to sit in the way,' that the enemy might not be able to sally forth. Insidiae 'ambush' likewise from insidere 'to sit in a place,' since they did this that they might more easily diminish the enemy's forces. Duplicarii 'doublers' were those to whom by order duplicia 'double' rations were given on account of their notable valour.

91. Turma a 'squadron' is from terima (the E has changed to U), because they were composed of ter 'three times' ten horsemen, from the three tribes of Titienses, Ramnes, and Luceres. Therefore the leaders of the individual decuriae 'groups of ten' were called decurions, who from this fact are even now three in each squadron. Those whom at first the decurions themselves adoptabant 'chose' as their ipsi sibi adoptabant, optiones vocari coepti,1 quos nunc propter ambitionem tribuni faciunt. Tubicines a tuba et canendo, similiter liticines.2 Classicus a classe, qui item cornu (aut lit)uo4 canit, ut tum cum classes comitiis ad comit(i)atum5 vocant.

XVII. 92. Quae a fortuna vocabula, in his quaedam minus aperta ut pauper, dives, miser, beatus, sic alia. Pauper a paulo lare. Mendicus a minus, cui cum opus est minus nullo est. Dives a divo qui ut deus nihil1 indigere videtur. Opulentus ab ope, cui eae opimae; ab eadem inops qui eius indiget, et ab eodem fonte copis² ac copiosus. Pecuniosus a pecunia magna, pecunia a pecu: a pastoribus enim horum vocabulorum origo.

XVIII. 93. Artificibus maxima causa ars, id est, ab arte medicina ut sit medicus dictus, a sutrina sutor, non a medendo ac suendo, quae omnino ultima huic rei: (hae enim)1 carum rerum radices, ut in proxumo § 93. Added by Reitzenstein.

§ 93. a Properly medicina from medicus, which is from mederi, etc.

&lt;sup>2</sup> Rhol., for litigines. § 91. <sup>1</sup> For caepti. 3 A. 4 A. Sp., for cornu uo. Sp., for classicos. 5 Vertranius, for comitatum. § 92. <sup>1</sup> For nichil. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for copiis.

b That is, from lituus 'cornet' and canere.

<sup>§ 92.</sup> a Pau-per has the same first element as pau-lus. b Derivative of mendum 'error, defect.' Quite possibly, since the gods were thought of as conferring wealth; dives is derived from divus as caeles is from caelum. d From co-"The earliest unit of value was a domestic animal; cf. English fee and German Vieh 'cattle,' both cognate to Latin pecu.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 91-93

assistants, were at the start called optiones 'choices'; but now the tribunes, to increase their influence, do the appointing of them. Tubicines 'trumpeters,' from tuba 'trumpet' and canere 'to sing or play'; in like fashion liticines 'cornetists.' The classicus 'classmusician' is named from the classis 'class of citizens'; he likewise plays on the horn or the cornet, for example when they call the classes to gather for an assembly.

XVII. 92. Among the words which have to do with personal fortune, some are not very clear, such as pauper 'poor,' dives 'rich,' miser 'wretched,' beatus blest,' and others as well. Pauper a is from paulus lar 'scantily equipped home.' Mendicus b 'beggar' is from minus 'less,' said of one who, when there is a need, has minus 'less' than nothing. Dives 'rich' is from divus c 'godlike person,' who, as being a deus god,' seems to lack nothing. Opulentus 'wealthy' is from ops' property,' said of one who has it in abundance; from the same, inops 'destitute' is said of him who lacks ops, and from the same source copis d 'well supplied 'and copiosus 'abundantly furnished.' Pecuniosus 'moneyed' is from a large amount of pecunia 'money'; pecunia is from pecu 'flock': for it was among keepers of flocks that these words originated.

XVIII. 93. For artisans the chief cause of the names is the art itself, that is, that from the ars medicina 'medical art' the medicus 'physician' should be named, and from the ars sutrina 'shoemaker's art' the sutor 'shoemaker,' and not directly from mederi 'to cure' and suere 'to sew,' though these are the absolutely final sources for such names.<sup>a</sup> For these are the roots of these things, as will be shown in the libro aperietur. Quare quod ab arte artifex dicitur nec multa in eo obscura, relinguam.

94. Similis causa quae ab scientia voca⟨n⟩tur¹ aliqua ut praestigiator, monitor, nomenclator; sie etiam quae a studio² quodam dicuntur, cursor, natator, pugil. Etiam in hoc genere quae sunt vocabula pleraque aperta, ut legulus, alter ab oleis, alter ab uvis. Haec si minus aperta vindemiator, vestigator et venator, tamen idem, quod vindemiator vel quod vinum legit³ dicitur vel quod de viti id demunt; vestigator a vestigiis ferarum quas indagatur; venator a vento,⁴ quod sequitur cervum⁵ ad ventum et in ventum.⁵

XIX. 95. Haec de hominibus: hic quod sequitur de pecore, haec. Pecus ab eo quod perpascebant, a quo pecora universa. Quod in pecore pecunia tum pastoribus consistebat et standi fundamentum pes (a quo dicitur in aedificiis area pes magnus et qui negotium instituit pedem posuisse), a pede pecudem appellarunt, ut ab eodem pedicam et pedisequum et pecul\(\cai\)\(\rangle\)ariae\(\cai\) oves aliudve quid: id enim peculium primum. Hinc peculatum publicum primo \(\cai\)

§ 95. Lachmann, for peculatoriae.

M. b Cf. v. 37, where vindemia is discussed.

<sup>§ 94. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup>B, M, Aug., for uocatur. <sup>2</sup> Sciop., for spatio. <sup>3</sup>L. Sp., for legere. <sup>4</sup> Aug. (quoting a friend), for uentu. <sup>5</sup> Scaliger, for uerbum. <sup>6</sup> Aug. (quoting a friend), for aduentum et inuentum.

&lt;sup>b</sup> This promise seems not to be kept. § 94. <sup>a</sup> For this meaning, cf. Festus, 138 b 29 and 139.

<sup>§ 95. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Pecus is an inherited word which cannot be further analysed; to it belong all the words here given, which begin with pec-. It has no connexion with pes' foot.' <sup>b</sup> To pes' foot' belong all the words here given which begin with ped-.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 93-95

next book.<sup>b</sup> Therefore, because an artisan is called from his art and not many names in this class are obscure, I shall leave them and go on.

94. There is a like origin for those names which are given from some special skill, such as praestigiator juggler,' monitor 'prompter,'a nomenclator 'namer'; so also those which are derived from a special interest, such as cursor 'runner,' natator 'swimmer,' pugil 'boxer.' The words which are in this class too, are generally obvious, like legulus 'picker,' one of olives and the other of grapes. If these are less obvious in the cases of vindemiator, vestigator, and venator, still the same principle holds, that vindemiator 'vintager' is said either because he gathers the vinum 'wine' or because they demunt 'take 'this from the vitis 'grapevine 'b; vestigator' tracker,' from the vestigia' tracks' of the beasts which he trails; venator 'hunter' from ventus 'wind,' because he follows the stag towards the wind and into the wind.

XIX. 95. So much about men: what comes next here is about cattle, as follows. Pecus a 'cattle,' from the fact that they perpascebant' grazed,' whence as a whole they were called pecora 'flocks and herds.' Because the herdsmen's pecunia 'wealth' then lay in their pecus 'flocks' and the base for standing is a pes 'foot' (from which in buildings the ground is called a great pes b' foot' and a man who has founded a business is said to have established his pes 'footing'), from pes 'foot' they gave the name pecus, pecudis 'one head of cattle,' just as from the same they said pedica 'fetter' and pedisequus 'footman' and peculiariae 'privately owned 'sheep or anything else: for this was the first private property. Hence they called it a peculatus 'peculation' from the state in the beginning, when coactum in publicum, si erat aversum.

 $xer u(n)t^2$  cum pecore diceretur multa et id esse $(t)^3$

96. Ex quo¹ fructus maior, hic² est qui Graecis usus:  $\langle sus \rangle$ , quod  $\delta s$ , bos, quod  $\beta o \hat{v} s$ , taurus, quod  $\langle \tau a \hat{v} \rho o s \rangle$ , item ovis, quod  $\delta \iota s$ : ita enim antiqui dicebant, non ut nunc  $\pi \rho \delta \beta a \tau o v$ . Possunt in Latio quoque ut in Graecia ab suis vocibus haec eadem ficta. Armenta, quod boves ideo maxime parabant, ut inde eligerent ad arandum; inde arimenta dicta, postea I tertia littera extrita. Vitulus, quod Graece antiquitus  $\partial \tau a \lambda \delta s$ , aut quod plerique vegeti, vegitulus. Iuvencus, iuvare qui iam ad agrum colendum posset.

97. Capra carpa, a quo scriptum

Omnicarpae caprae.

Hircus,¹ quod Sabini fircus; quod illic fedus,² in Latio rure hedus, qui in urbe ut in multis A addito haedus.³ Porcus, quod Sabini dicunt⁴ aprunu⟨m⟩ porcu⟨m⟩⁵; proi⟨n⟩de⁶ porcus, nisi si a Graecis, quod Athenis in libris sacrorum scripta est  $\pi \acute{o}\rho \kappa \eta$  e⟨t⟩  $\pi \acute{o}\rho \kappa o \langle s \rangle$ .⁵

<sup>2</sup> Fay, for ut. <sup>3</sup> Aug., for esse.

§ 96. 1 Mue., for qua. 2 Mue., for hinc. 3 Laetus, for uigitulus.

§ 97. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for ircus. <sup>2</sup> For faedus. <sup>3</sup> Aug., for aedus. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for dicto. <sup>5</sup> Kent; aprinum porcum L. Sp.; aprum porcum Scaliger; for apruno porco. <sup>6</sup> Turnebus, for poride. <sup>7</sup> Kent, for porcae porco.

§ 97. a Wrong. bAn old inherited word. cIden-

<sup>§ 96. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Correct equations; but the Latin words are not derived from the Greek: the four pairs are from the ancestral language, and only sus is likely to be onomatopoeic. <sup>b</sup> The Greek word is not the source of the Latin word, but is borrowed from it; there is no satisfactory etymology of vitulus. <sup>c</sup>Really 'youthful,' a derivative of iuvenis 'young man,' and not from iuvare.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 95-97

a fine was imposed in pecus 'cattle' and there was a collection into the state treasury, of what had been diverted.

96. Regarding cattle from which there is larger profit, there is the same use of names here as among the Greeks: sus 'swine,' the same as vs; bos 'cow,' the same as βους; taurus 'bull,' the same as ταυρος; likewise ovis 'sheep,' the same as ous a: for thus the ancients used to say, not πρόβατον as they do now. This identity of the names in Latium and in Greece may be the result of invention after the natural utterances of the animals. Armenta 'plough-oxen,' because they raised oxen especially that they might select some of them for arandum 'ploughing'; thence they were called arimenta, from which the third letter I was afterwards squeezed out. Vitulus 'calf,' because in Greek it was anciently ἐταλός b; or from vegitulus, a name given because most calves are vegeti' frisky.' A iuvencus c 'bullock ' was one which could now iuvare 'help' in tilling the fields.

97. Capra 'she-goat' was originally carpa 'crop-per,' a from which is written

All-cropping she-goats.

Hircus 'buck,' which the Sabines call fircus; and what there is fedus, in Latium is hedus 'kid' in the country, and in the City it is haedus, with an added A, as is the case with many words. Porcus 'pig,' because the Sabines say aprunus 'porcus' boar pig'; therefore porcus' pig,' unless it comes from the Greeks, because at Athens in the Books of the Sacrifices πόρκη' female pig' is written, and πόρκος 'male pig.'

tical with the Plautine aprugnus, from *apro-gnos ' born of the boar.'

98. Aries,  $\langle ut \rangle^1$  quidam² dicebant,  $\langle ab \rangle^3$  aris¹; veteres nostri ariuga, hinc ariugus.⁵ Haec sunt quarum⁵ in sacruficiis exta in olla,² non in veru coquuntur, quas et Accius scribit et in pontificiis libris videmus. In hosti⟨i⟩s eam dicunt ariugam⁵ quae cornua habeat; quoniam si⁵ cui ovi mari testiculi dempti et ideo vi¹o natura versa, verbex declinatum.

99. Pecori ovillo quod agnatus, agnus. Catulus a sagaci sensu et acuto, (ut Cato)¹ Catulus; hinc canis: nisi quod ut tuba ac cornu, a(li)quod² signum cum dent,³ cancre dicuntur, quod hic item et noctulucus in custodia et in venando signum voce dat, canis dictus.

XX. 100. Ferarum vocabula item partim peregrina, ut panthera, leo: utraque Graeca, a quo etiam et rete quoddam panther et leaena et muliercula Pantheris et Leaena. Tigris qui est ut leo varius, qui

<sup>3</sup> Victorius, for dentc.

<sup>§ 98. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Added by Kent. <sup>2</sup> GS., for qui cam.

<sup>3</sup> Added by Kent. <sup>4</sup> Kent; areis Fay; for ares.

<sup>5</sup> Kent, for ariugas. <sup>8</sup> Aug., for quorum. <sup>7</sup> For ollo.

<sup>8</sup> Kent; arvigam Mue.; for ariugem. <sup>9</sup> Lindemaun, for is. <sup>10</sup> Sciop., for ut.

§ 99. <sup>1</sup> Added by GS. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for cornua quod.

<sup>§ 98. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup>An old word. <sup>b</sup>An obscure word, found in various forms: harviga (Festus), hariga (Donatus in Phorm.), ἄριχα (Hesychius). Varro takes ariuga as a derivative of ara+iug-; but it may perhaps better be taken as hariuga, from hara 'sty' (formation like agri-cola and nocti-luca), losing the h by association with aries. Others suggest connexion with haru- as in haruspex, which would give a form harviga. At any rate, ariuga is feminine because of an implied hostia, and the agreements are feminine in the next two sentences; ariugus is merely a masculine form invented to correspond to the masculine aries. <sup>c</sup>Rom. Trag. Frag., page 227 Ribbeck. <sup>2</sup> d Frag. 82 Rowoldt. <sup>c</sup> Also spelled vervex and berbex; not connected with versa.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 98-100

98. Aries a 'ram,' as some used to say, from arae 'altars'; our ancients said ariuga b 'altar-mate,' and from this formed a masculine ariugus. These are those whose vital organs are in the sacrifices boiled in a pot and not roasted on a spit, of which Accius writes and which we see in the Pontifical Books. Among sacrificial victims, that victim which by the specifications is to have horns, they call an ariuga; but if the testicles are removed from a male sheep and its nature is thereby forcibly versa 'altered,' the name verbex wether 'is derived as its designation.

99. An agnus 'lamb' is so named because it is agnatus' born as an addition' a to the flock of sheep. A catulus 'puppy' is named from its quick and keen scent, like the names Cato and Catulus ; and from this, canis a' dog': unless, just as the trumpet and the horn are said to canere 'sing' when they give some signal, so the canis is named because it likewise, both when guarding the house day or night, and when engaged in hunting, gives the signal with its voice.

XX. 100. The names of wild beasts are likewise some of them foreign, such as panthera a 'panther,' leo b 'lion': both Greek, whence also certain nets called panther and lioness, and there are courtesans named Pantheris and Leaena. The tigris' tiger,' which is as it were a striped lion, which as yet they have not been <sup>§ 99. &</sup>quot;Wrong. b It is very doubtful if catulus 'puppy' is a diminutive of catus 'sharp, shrewd,' as is implied by Varro; but Cato and Catulus as proper names go with catus. "Wrong.

<sup>§ 100. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Ultimately of Indian origin, transformed into a seemingly Greek word (the 'all-beast') by the Greeks, and thence given to the Romans. <sup>b</sup> Leo and leaena, from Greek, but borrowed by the Greeks from some unknown source.

vivus capi adhue non potuit, vocabulum e lingua Armenia: nam ibi et sagitta et quod vehementissimum flumen dicitur Tigris. Ursi Lucana origo vel, unde illi, nostri ab ipsius voce. Camelus suo nomine Syriaco in Latium venit, ut Alexandrea camelopardalis nuper adducta, quod erat figura ut camelus, maculis ut panthera.

101. Apri ab eo quod in locis asperis, nisi a Graecis quod hi  $\langle \kappa \rangle \acute{a} \pi \rho o \iota$ .¹ Caprea a similitudine quadam caprae. Cervi, quod magna cornua gerunt, gervi,² G in C mutavit ut in multis. Lepus, quod Sicu⟨li, ut Aeo⟩lis² quidam Graeci, dicunt  $\lambda \acute{\epsilon} \pi o \rho \iota \nu$ : a Roma quod orti Siculi, ut annales veteres nostri dicunt, fortasse hinc illuc tulerunt et hic reliquerunt id nomen. Volpes, ut Aelius dicebat, quod volat pedibus.

XXI. 102. Proxima animalia sunt ea quae vivere dicuntur neque habere animam, ut virgulta. Virgultum dicitur a viridi, id a vi quadam humoris; quae si exaruit, moritur. Vitis, quod ea vini origo. Malum, quod Graeci Aeolis dicunt  $\mu \hat{a} \lambda o r$ . Pinus, . . . Iuglans, quod cum haec nux antequam purgatur except those of malum and iuglans.

§ 101. <sup>1</sup> Bentinus, for aproc. <sup>2</sup> M, Laetus, for corui. <sup>3</sup> GS., for siculis, cf. Varro, De Re Rust. iii. 12. 6.

&lt;sup>c</sup> Not from Armenian, but from Persian, through Greek. Varro forgot that a tiger was presented to the city of Athens by Seleucus Nicator (c. 358-280 B.C.); see Athenaeus, xiii. 6. 57 = 590 a. <sup>d</sup> An old inherited word. <sup>e</sup> Correct; of Semitic origin. <sup>f</sup> Through the Greek; the second part is pardalis, from an Indian word which also denoted the panther.

<sup>§ 101. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Wrong; the Greek word corresponds to Latin caper. <sup>b</sup> Wrong. <sup>c</sup> Page 69 Funaioli. <sup>d</sup> Wrong. § 102. <sup>a</sup> All etymologies in this paragraph are wrong, able to take alive, has its name from the Armenian language,<sup>c</sup> for in Armenia both an arrow and a very swift river are named Tigris. The name of the ursus <sup>d</sup> 'bear' is of Lucanian origin, or our ancestors called it from its voice, and so did the Lucanians. The camelus 'camel' has come to Latium bringing its own Syrian name with it,<sup>e</sup> and so has the camelopardalis <sup>f</sup> 'giraffe' which was recently brought from Alexandria, so called because it was in form like a camel and in spots like a panther.

101.  $Apri^a$  'boars,' from the fact that they frequent aspera 'rough' places, unless from the Greeks, because in Greek these are  $\langle \kappa \rangle \acute{a}\pi\rho\sigma\iota$ . Caprea 'roe-deer,' from a certain likeness to the capra 'shegoat.' Cervi 'stags,' because they gerunt 'carry' big horns, and so they are  $gervi^b$ ; the word has changed G to G, as has happened in many words. Lepus 'hare,' because the Sicilians, like certain Aeolian Greeks, say  $\lambda \acute{e}\pi\sigma\rho\iota$ s. Inasmuch as the Sicilians originated from Rome, as our old Annals say, perhaps they carried the word from here to Sicily, but also left it here behind them. Volpes 'fox,' as Aelius cused to say, because it volat 'flies' with its pedes 'feet.' d

XXI.  $102.^a$  The next living beings to be discussed are those which are said to live, and yet do not breathe, such as bushes. Virgultum 'bush' is said from viridis 'green,' and viridis from a certain vis 'power' of moisture: if this moisture has thoroughly dried out, the bush dies. Vitis 'grape-vine,' because it is the source of vinum' wine.' Malum' apple,' because the Aeolian Greeks call it  $\mu \hat{a} \lambda o v$ . The pinus' pine,' . . . The iuglans' walnut,' because while this nut is like an acorn before it is cleansed of its hull, the inner nut, similis glandis, haec glans optima et maxima a Iove et glande iuglans est appellata. Eadem nux, quod ut nox aerem huius sucus corpus facit atrum.

103. Quae in hortis nascuntur, alia peregrinis vocabulis, ut Graecis ocimum, menta, ruta quam nunc πήγανον appellant; item caulis, lapathium, radix: sic enim antiqui Graeci, quam nunc ράφανον<sup>1</sup>; item haec Graecis vocabulis: serpyllum, rosa, una littera commutata; item ex his Graecis Latina κολίανδρου, μαλάχη, εκύμινον; item lilium ab λειρίω et malva ab μαλαχη<sup>4</sup> et sisymbrium a σισυμβρίω.<sup>5</sup>

104. Vernacula:  $lact\langle u \rangle c\langle a \rangle^1$  a lacte, quod holus id habet lact; brassica2 ut p(r)aesica,3 quod ex eius scapo minutatim praesicatur; asparagi, quod ex asperis virgultis leguntur et ipsi scapi asperi sunt, non leves; nisi Graecum: illic quoque enim dicitur ἀσπάραγος.4 Cucumeres dicuntur a curvore, ut curvimeres dicti. Fructus a ferundo, res eae quas<sup>5</sup> fundus et eae (quas) quae6 in fundo ferunt ut fruamur.

§ 103. <sup>1</sup> For raphanum. <sup>2</sup> For malachen, io. <sup>4</sup> For malache. <sup>5</sup> A. Sp., for sysimbrio. <sup>4</sup> For malache. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for blassica. <sup>4</sup> For asparalirio.

3 Turnebus; praeseca Aldus; for passica. 5 A. Sp., for ea equas. 6 Mue., for ea eque.

b Optima et maxima suggests Jupiter Optimus Maximus. <sup>c</sup> The juice of the walnut-hull does make a very dark stain. § 103. a All the examples in this section have come into Latin from Greek, except radix, rosa, malva. Radix is native Latin, and its Greek equivalent had a different meaning. Rosa and malea, and their Greek equivalents, were separately derived from an earlier language native in the 98

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 102-104

being best and biggest, b is called iu-glans from Iu-piter and glans 'acorn.' The same word nux 'nut' is so called because its juice makes a person's skin black, c just as nox 'night' makes the air black.

103.<sup>a</sup> Of those which are grown in gardens, some are called by foreign names, as, by Greek names, ocimum 'basil,' menta 'mint,' ruta 'rue,' which they now call πήγανον; likewise caulis 'cabbage,' lapathium 'sorrel,' radix 'radish': for thus the ancient Greeks called what they now call ράφανος; likewise these from Greek names: serpyllum b' thyme,' rosa 'rose,' each with one letter changed; likewise Latin names from these Greek names: κολίανδρον c' coriander,' μαλάχη, κύμινον 'cummin'; likewise lilium' lily 'from λείριον and malva 'mallow' from μαλάχη and sisymbrium' thyme' from σισύμβριον.

104.a Native words: lactuca 'lettuce' from lact 'milk,' because this herb contains milk; brassica 'cabbage' as though praesica, because from its stalk praesicatur 'leaves are cut off' one by one; asparagi 'asparagus shoots,' because they are gathered from aspera 'rough' bushes and the stems themselves are rough, not smooth: unless it is a Greek name, for in Greece also they say ἀσπάραγος. Cucumeres 'cucumbers' are named from their curvor 'curvature,' as though curvimeres. Fructus 'fruits' are named from ferre b' to bear,' namely those things which the farm and those things which are on the farm bear, that Mediterranean region. b With initial s rather than h, by assimilation to Latin serpere. c Usually κορίανδρον, but here with dissimilative change of the prior r to l.

§ 104. Correct on lactuca, fructus, mola; wrong on brassica, cucumeres, uva; asparagus is from Greek. Cf.

v. 37, and note e.

Hinc declinatae fruges et frumentum, sed ea e terra; etiam frumentum, quod  $\langle ad \rangle^7$  exta ollicoqu $a^8$  solet addi ex mola, id est ex sale et farre molito. Uvae ab uvore.

XXII. 105. Quae manu facta sunt dicam, de victu, de vestitu, de instrumento, et si quid aliud videbitur his aptum. De victu antiquissima puls ; haec appellata vel quod ita Graeci vel ab eo unde scribit Apollodorus, quod ita sonet cum aqua⟨e⟩¹ ferventi insipitur. Panis, quod primo figura faciebant, ut mulieres in lanificio, panus ; posteaquam ci figuras facere instituerunt alias, a pane et faciendo panificium c⟨o⟩eptum dici. Hine panarium, ubi id servabant, sicut granarium, ubi granum frumenti condebant, unde id dictum: nisi ab eo quod Graeci id κράνον,² a quo a Graecis quoque gran⟨ari⟩um³ dictum in quo ea quae conduntur.

106. Hordeum¹ ab horrido. Triticum, quod tritum e spicis. Far a faciendo, quod in pistrino fit.

<sup>c</sup> The relation of this to frumentum is not clear.

Added by Turnebus.
 § 105.
 <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for aqua.
 <sup>2</sup> Kent, for крокех.
 <sup>3</sup> Kent, for granum.
 § 106.
 <sup>1</sup> For horreum.

<sup>§ 105. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> An old Latin word, which probably did not come from Greek πόλτος. <sup>b</sup> Frag. Hist. Graec. i. 462 Mueller. <sup>e</sup> Panis may be of Messapian origin; Varro's etymology is certainly wrong. <sup>d</sup> The thin, flat wafer-like Oriental bread, made in great sheets. <sup>e</sup> Panus, gen. of the 4th decl. <sup>f</sup> The word meant originally 'bread-making,' but came to mean bread or cake of any kind; note that in formation panificium is modelled on lanificium. <sup>g</sup> Normally 'bread-basket'; but the context indicates the meaning 'bread-closet.' <sup>h</sup> Meaning 'cornel cherry'; it may have denoted a cereal seed as well as the cherry stone.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 104-106

we may enjoy them. From this are derived fruges 'field products' and frumentum 'corn,' but these come out of the earth: even frumentum, because to the pot-boiled vitals it is customary to add some of the mola 'grits,' that is, salt and spelt molitum 'ground up' together. Uvae 'grapes,' from uvor 'moisture.'

XXII. 105. I shall now speak of things which are made by human hands: food, clothing, tools, and anything else which seems to be associated with them. Of foods the most ancient is puls a 'porridge'; this got its name either because the Greeks called it thus, or from the fact which Apollodorus b mentions, that it makes a sound like puls when it is thrown into boiling water. Panis c ' bread,' because at first they made it d in the shape of a panus e ' cloth ' such as women make in weaving; after they began to make it in other shapes, they started saying panificium f 'pastry,' from panis' bread and facere' to make.' From this, panarium g 'bread-closet,' where they kept it, like granarium 'granary,' where they stored the granum grain 'of the corn, from which granarium was derived -unless it came from the fact that the Greeks called the grain κράνον h; and in this case it was from the Greeks also that the place in which are kept the grains that are stored, was called a granarium.

106.<sup>a</sup> Hordeum 'barley,' from horridus 'bristling.' b Triticum' wheat,' because it was tritum' threshed out' from the ears. Far 'spelt,' from facere' to make,' because it is made into flour in the mill. Milium <sup>§ 106. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Wrong on hordeum, far; libare is derived from libum, instead of the reverse; the other etymologies in this section are correct.

<sup>b</sup> That is, with the awns that form the beard of the ear.

Milium a Graeco: nam id μελίνη. Libum, quod ut libaretur, priusquam essetur,2 erat coctum. Testuacium, quod in testu caldo coquebatur, ut etiam nunc Matralibus id faciunt matronae. Circuli, quod mixta farina et caseo et aqua circuitum aequabiliter fundebant.

107. Hos1 quidam qui magis incondite faciebant vocabant lixulas et similixulas vocabulo Sabino: quae2 frequentia Sabinis. A globo farinae dilatato, item in oleo cocti, dicti a globo globi. Crustulum a crusta pultis, cuius ea, quod ut corium et uritur, crusta dicta. Cetera fere aper(t)a3 a vocabulis Graecis sumpta, ut thrion et placenta.

108. Quod edebant cum pulte, ab eo pulmentum, ut Plautus; hinc pulmentarium dictum: hoc primum defuit1 pastoribus. Caseus a coacto lacte ut co(a)xeus² dictus. Dein posteaquam desierunt esse contenti his quae suapte natura ferebat sine igne, in quo erant poma, quae minus cruda esse poterant decoque-

<sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for esset ut.

§ 107. L. Sp. and Mommsen, for hoc. 2 Kent, for 3 Groth, for opera. itaque.

§ 108. 1 A. Sp., for debuit. <sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for coxeus.

<sup>c</sup> A festival to the Mater Matuta, celebrated on June 11; not to be confused with the Matronalia, celebrated by the matrons on March 1, in honour of Mars.

<sup>§ 107.</sup> a Diminutive to fem. lixa 'boiled,' cf. e-lixus. b For simila-lixulae with haplology (so Fay, Am. Journ. Phil. xxxv. 157); simila is a fine wheat flour. The crust which forms on the inside of the pot in which porridge is regularly cooked, unless the pot is carefully scraped. <sup>d</sup> An absurd etymology. <sup>e</sup> Greek θρῖον 'fig-leaf'; also a mixture of eggs, milk, lard, flour, honey, and cheese, so called because it was wrapped in fig-leaves, πλακοῦς, a flat cake.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 106-108

'millet,' from the Greek: for it is  $\mu \in \lambda l \nu \eta$ . Libum 'cake,' because, after it was baked, libabatur 'there was an offering of some' of it to the gods before it was eaten. Testuacium 'pot-cake,' because it was baked in a heated earthen testu 'pot,' as even now the matrons do this at the Matralia. Circuli 'rings,' because they poured into the pan a regular circuitus 'circuit' of a batter made of flour, cheese, and water.

107. Certain persons who used to make these rather carelessly called them lixulae a 'softies' and similixulae b' wheat-softies,' by the Sabine name, such was their general use among the Sabines. Those that consist of a leavened globus 'ball' of dough and are cooked in oil, are from globus called globi 'globes.' Crustulum 'cookie,' from the crusta 'crust' of the porridge, whose crusta is so named because it is, as it were, a corium 'hide' and it uritur 'is burnt.' The other confections are in general of obvious origin, being taken from Greek words, like thrion e' omelette' and placenta 'sand-tart.' f

108. That which they ate with their puls 'porridge,' was from that fact called pulmentum a 'side-dish,' as Plautus says b; from this was said pulmentarium 'relish': this the shepherds lacked in the early times. Caseus c'cheese' was named from coactum 'coagulated' milk, as though coaxeus. Then after they ceased to be satisfied with those foods which nature supplied of her own accord without the use of fire, among which were apples and like fruits, they boiled down in a pot those which could

<sup>§ 108. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Rather from pulpa 'flesh, meat.' 316; Miles Gl., 349; Pseudolus, 220; etc. word with no close etymological connexions.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Aulularia, <sup>c</sup> A country

bant in olla. Ab olla holera dieta, quo(d ea)rum (m)acerare³ cruda holera. E quis ad coquendum quod e terra eru(itu)r,⁴ ruapa, unde rapa. Olea ab ἐλαία⁵; olea grandis orchitis, quod eam Attici⁵ ὅρχιν $\mu o \rho \langle i \rangle a \langle v \rangle$ .

109. Hinc ad pecudis carnem perventum est. (Ut ab sue)¹ suilla, sic ab (a)lis² generibus cognominata. Hanc³ primo assam, secundo elixam, tertio e iure uti c(o)episse natura docet. Dictum assum, quod id ab igni assud(escit, id est uv)escit⁴: uvidum enim quod humidum, et ideo ubi id non est, sucus abest; et ideo sudandum assum destillat calore,⁵ et ut crudum nimium habet humoris, sic excoctum parum habet suci. Elixum e liquore aquae dictum; et ex iure,⁶ quod iucundum magis conditione.

110. Succidia ab suibus caedendis: nam id pecus primum occidere coeperunt¹ domini et ut servarent sallere.² Tegus suis ab eo quod eo tegitur. Perna

<sup>3</sup> A. Sp., for quorum agerere. <sup>4</sup> GS.; e terra erueretur Turnebus; for eterrae rure. <sup>5</sup> Kent, for elea. <sup>6</sup> L. Sp., for attico. <sup>7</sup> Canal for orchen mora for attico. <sup>7</sup> Canal, for orchen mora. § 109. <sup>1</sup> Added by A. Sp.; ut added by Mue., with B. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for ilis. <sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for hinc. assudescit. <sup>5</sup> Aug., with B, for calorem. <sup>6</sup> G, Laetus, for iuro.

§ 110. <sup>1</sup> For caeperunt. <sup>2</sup> c, Mue., for sallire; cf. Diomedes, i. 375. 21 Keil.

d Wrong on holera and rapa, but right about olives.

<sup>§ 109. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> For arsum, participle of ardere 'to be on fire.' <sup>b</sup> Participle of a compound of the root seen in liquor; but ius 'juice' has nothing to do with iucundum.

<sup>§ 110. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Correct. <sup>b</sup> Properly tergus, and without connexion with tegere; but in the form tergoribus it seems to have lost the first r by dissimilation: tegoribus is metrically be made less raw. From olla 'pot' the holera a' vegetables' were named, because it is the task of ollae 'pots' to soften the raw holera 'vegetables.' One of these, because it eruitur' is dug out' of the earth for cooking, was called ruapa, from which comes rapa 'turnip.' Olea' olive berry, 'from ἐλαία; the orchitis is a large kind of olive, so called because the Athenians call it ὄρχις μορία 'the sacred olive-berry.'

109. From here we go on to domestic animals as meat for the table. As suilla 'pork' is said from sus 'swine,' so other meats are named from the other kinds of animals. The nature of things shows us that men began to use this first roasted, second boiled, third cooked in its own juice. Assuma 'roasted' is said because as a result of the fire it assudescit 'begins to sweat,' that is uvescit 'becomes moist': for uvidum is the same as humidum' moist,' and therefore where this moisture is not present, there is a lack of juice; and therefore the roast that is to sweat drips on account of the heat, and just as the raw meat has an excess of moisture, so the thoroughly cooked meat has very little juice. Elixum b 'boiled' is said from the liquor 'fluid' of the water; and ex iure 'cooked in its own juice 'is said because this is more iucundum 'tasty' than seasoning.

110. Succidia a 'leg of pork' is said from sues caedendae' the cutting up of the swine'; for this was the first domestic animal that the owners began to slaughter and to salt in order to keep the meat unspoiled. Tegus b' piece of the back' of swine, from this, that by this piece the animal tegitur' is covered.'

assured in Plautus, Captivi, 902, and is found also in Captivi 915, Pseudolus 198.

VARRO

a pede. Sueris a nomine eius. Offula ab offa, minima suere. Insicia ab eo quod insecta caro, ut in Carmine Saliorum (prosicium)<sup>3</sup> est, quod in extis dicitur nunc prosectum. Murtatum a murta, quod $ea^4$  ad $\langle ditur \rangle^5$  large fartis.

111. Quod fartum intestinum ⟨e⟩¹ crassundiis, Lucan⟨ic⟩am² dicunt, quod milites a Lucanis didicerint, ut quod Faleriis Faliscum ventrem; fundolum a fundo, quod ⟨non⟩³ ut reliquae lactes,⁴ sed ex una parte sola apertum; ab hoc Graecos puto τυφλδυ ἔντερον appellasse. Ab eadem fartura farcimina ⟨in⟩⁵ extis appellata, a quo ⟨farticulum⟩⁵: in eo quod tenuissimum intestinum fartum, hila ab hilo dicta i⟨l⟩lo⁻ quod ait Ennius:

Neque dispendi<sup>8</sup> facit hilum.

Quod in hoc farcimine summo quiddam eminet, ab eo quod ut in capite apex, apexabo dicta. Tertium fartum est longavo, quod longius quam duo illa.

<sup>3</sup> Added by GS.; cf. Festus, 225. 15 M. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for eo. <sup>5</sup> A. Sn. for ad

<sup>5</sup> A. Sp., for ad. § 111. <sup>1</sup> Added by Mue. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for lucanam. <sup>3</sup> Added by Aldus. <sup>4</sup> Fay, for partes. <sup>5</sup> Added by Aug., with B. <sup>6</sup> Added by GS. <sup>7</sup> Lachmann, for hilo. <sup>8</sup> For dispendii.

§ 111. <sup>a</sup> The preceding etymologies in this section are correct, but hila is properly hilla, diminutive of hira 'empty

106

&lt;sup>c</sup> Perna has no connexion with pes; but the remaining etymologies of this section seem to be correct. <sup>d</sup> The precise meaning of this word is unknown; perhaps 'porkchop,' cf. W. Heraeus, Archiv f. Lat. Lex. 14. 124-125. <sup>e</sup> Meaning assured by offulam cum duobus costis, Varro, De Re Rustica, ii. 4. 11. <sup>f</sup> Page 345 Maurenbrecher; page 3 Morel.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 110-111

Perna c 'ham,' from pes 'foot.' Sueris, d from the animal's name. Offula 'rib-roast,' e from offa, a very small sueris. Insicia 'minced meat' from this, that the meat is insecta 'cut up,' just as in the Song of the Salii f the word prosicium 'slice' is used, for which, in the offering of the vitals, the word prosectum is now used. Murtatum 'myrtle-pudding,' from murta 'myrtle-berry,' because this berry is added plentifully to its stuffings.

they call a Lucanica 'Lucanian,' because the soldiers got acquainted with it from the Lucanians, just as what they found at Falerii they call a Faliscan haggis; and they say fundolus 'bag-sausage' from fundus 'bottom,' because this is not like the other intestines, but is open at only one end: from this, I think, the Greeks called it the blind intestine. From the same fartura 'stuffing' were called the farcinina' stuffies' in the case of the vital organs for the sacrifice, whence also farticulum 'stufflet'; in this case, because it is the most slender intestine that is stuffed, it is called hila a from that hilum 'whit' which Ennius b uses:

And of loss not a whit does she suffer.

Because at the top of this stuffy there is a little projection, it is called an apexabo, c because the projection is like the apex 'pointed cap' on a human head. The third kind of sausage is the longavo, c because it is longer than those two others.

intestine'; cf. Festus, 101.6 M. b Annales, 14 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 6-7 Warmington; quoted also v. 60 and ix. 54. c Apexabo and longavo doubtless have the same suffix, differing only through the late Latin confusion of b and v; unless indeed both words are further corrupt.

VARRO

112. Augmentum, quod ex immolata hostia desectum in iecore (imponitur) in por(ric)iendo2 a(u)gendi³ causa. Magmentum⁴ a magis, quod ad religionem magis pertinet: itaque propter hoc (mag)mentaria5 fana constituta locis certis quo id imponeretur. Mattea<sup>6</sup> ab eo quod ea Graece ματτύη. Item (a)7 Graecis . . . singillatim haec8: . . . 9 ovum, bulbum.

XXIII. 113. Lana Graecum, ut Polybius et Callimachus scribunt. Purpura a purpurae maritumae colore, ut1 P(o)enicum, quod a Poenis primum dicitur allata. Stamen a stando, quod eo stat omne in tela velamentum. Subtemen, quod subit stamini. Trama, quod tram(e)at2 frigus id genus vestimenti. Densum a dentibus pectinis quibus feritur. Filum, quod minimum est hilum: id enim minimum est in vestimento.

<sup>§ 112. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Added by A. Sp. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for im poriendo. <sup>3</sup> Turnebus, for agendi. <sup>4</sup> B, M, Aug., for magnentum. <sup>5</sup> Turnebus, for mentarea. <sup>6</sup> Popma, for mattae. <sup>7</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>8</sup> For heae. 9 The lacuna was noted by Scaliger; the exact arrangement is by Kent, after Mue.'s indication of the probable contents.
§ 113. ¹ Lachmann; colore G, Lactus; for colerent.
² Aug. (quoting a friend), for tramat.

<sup>§ 112.</sup> a Correct, unless the purpose was to increase, that is, glorify the god. b Properly connected with mactare 'to sacrifice,' though popular association with magis affected its meaning. A highly seasoned dish of hashed meat, poultry, and herbs, served cold as a dessert.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 112-113

112. The augmentum a 'increase-cake' is so called because a piece of it is cut out and put on the liver of the sacrificed victim at the presentation to the deity, for the sake of augendi 'increasing' it. Magmentum b 'added offering,' from magis 'more,' because it attaches magis 'more' closely to the worshipper's piety: for this reason magmentaria fana 'sanctuaries for the offering of magmenta' have been established in certain places, that the added offering may there be laid on the original and offered with it. Mattea c 'cold meat-pie' is so named because in Greek it is ματτύη. Likewise from the Greeks is another meat-dish called . . . , which contains item by item the following: . . . , an egg, a truffle.

XXIII. 113. Lana a 'wool' is a Greek word, as Polybius b and Callimachus write. Purpura d purple, from the colour of the purpura purple-fish of the sea: a Punic word, because it is said to have been first brought to Italy by the Phoenicians. Stamen warp, from stare to stand, because by this the whole fabric on the loom stat stands up. Subtemen 'woof, because it subit goes under the stamen warp. Trama 'wide-meshed cloth, because the cold trameat goes through this kind of garment. Densum 'close-woven cloth, from the dentes dents' of the sley with which it is beaten. Filum 'thread, because it is the smallest hilum 'shred'; for this is the smallest thing in a garment.

<sup>§ 113. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> An old Italic word cognate to English wool; cf. v. 130. <sup>b</sup> Frag. inc. 99 (104) Hultsch. <sup>c</sup> Frag. 408 Schneider. <sup>d</sup> Quite possibly a Phoenician word, but transmitted to Italy by the Greeks (πορφύρα). <sup>c</sup> From subtexere 'to weave underneath.' from trahere 'to pull.' <sup>9</sup> Wrong.

114. Pannus Graecum,¹ ubi E A² fecit. Panuvellium dictum a pano et volvendo filo. Tunica ab tuendo corpore, tunica ut ⟨tu⟩endica.³ Toga a tegendo. Cinctus et cingillum a cingendo, alterum viris, alterum mulieribus attributum.

XXIV. 115. Arma ab arcendo, quod his arcemus hostem. Parma, quod e medio in omnis partis par. Conum, quod cogitur in cacumen versus. Hasta, quod astans solet<sup>1</sup> ferri. Iaculum, quod ut iaciatur fit. Tragula a traiciendo. Scutum ⟨a⟩² sectura ut secutum, quod a minute consectis³ fit tabellis. Umbones⁴ a Graeco, quod ἄμβωνες.⁵

116. Gladium¹ C in  $G^2$  commutato a clade, quod fit ad hostium cladem gladium; similiter ab omine³ pilum, qui hostis periret,⁴ ut perilum. Lorica, quod e loris de corio crudo pectoralia faciebant; postea subcidit galli⟨ca⟩⁵ e ferro sub id vocabulum, ex anulis

§ 114.  $^1$  Aug., with B, for greens.  $^2$  Fay, for ea.  $^3$  GS., for indica.

§ 115. <sup>1</sup> For sollet. <sup>2</sup> Added by Laetus. <sup>3</sup> Aug., for consectum. <sup>4</sup> For umbonis. <sup>5</sup> Turnebus, for ambonis.

§ 116. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for gladius. <sup>2</sup> For G in C. <sup>3</sup> Aug., for homine. <sup>4</sup> Aug. (hostis B), for hostem feriret. <sup>5</sup> Mue., for galli.

<sup>§ 114.</sup> a Not pannus 'cloth,' but pannus 'bobbin,' in view of what follows; there is a Greek  $\pi \hat{\eta} \nu \sigma$  'web,' and its diminutive  $\pi \eta \nu i \sigma$  'bobbin,' which in the Doric form would have A and not E. b Possibly right, if, as A. Spengel thinks, the word is really panuvollium. From Semitic, either directly or through Etruscan.

<sup>§ 115. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Arma, parma, conum, hasta, tragula, scutum, umbones: all wrong etymologies. <sup>b</sup> Not from traicere, but from trahere 'to pull, drag '; perhaps because the thong wound round it for throwing (like the string used in starting a peg-top) 'pulls' the javelin.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 114-116

114. Pannus a 'bobbin,' is a Greek word, where E has become A. Panuvellium b ' bobbin with thread ' was said from panus 'bobbin' and volvere 'to wind' the thread. Tunica c' shirt,' from tuendo 'protecting' the body: tunica as though it were tuendica. Toga 'toga' from tegere 'to cover.' Cinctus 'belt' and cingillum 'girdle,' from cingere 'to gird,' the one assigned to men and the other to women.

XXIV. 115. Arma a 'arms,' from arcere 'to ward off,' because with them we arcemus 'ward off' the enemy. Parma 'cavalry shield,' because from the centre it is par 'even' in every direction. Conum 'pointed helmet,' because it cogitur 'is narrowed' toward the top. Hasta 'spear,' because it is usually carried astans 'standing up.' Iaculum' javelin,' because it is made that it may iaci 'be thrown.' Tragula b' thong-javelin,' from traicere 'to pierce.' Scutum 'shield,' from sectura 'cutting,' as though secutum, because it is made of wood cut into small pieces. Umbones 'bosses' from a Greek word, namely ἄμβωνες.

116.ª Gladium 'sword,' from clades 'slaughter,' with change of C to G, because the gladium b is made for a slaughter of the enemy; likewise from its omen was said pilum, by which the enemy periret 'might perish,' as though perilum. Lorica' corselet,' because they made chest-protectors from lora' thongs' of rawhide; afterwards the Gallic corselet of iron was ferrea tunica.<sup>6</sup> Balteum, quod cingulum e corio habebant bullatum, balteum dictum. Ocrea, quod opponebatur ob crus. Galea ab galero, quod multi usi antiqui.

<sup>§ 116.</sup> a All etymologies wrong except those of lorica and (with reserves) of galea. b Varro prefers (cf. viii. 45, ix. 81, De Re Rust. i. 48. 3) the unfamiliar neuter form, which may be due to the influence of the associated words scutum, pilum, telum. The word is of Celtic origin, but may have an ultimate connexion with the root of clades.

117. Tubae ab tubis, quos etiam nunc ita appellant tubicines sacrorum. Cornua, quod ea quae nunc sunt ex aere, tunc fiebant bubulo e cornu. Vallum vel quod ea varicare nemo posset vel quod singula ibi extrema bacilla furcillata habent figuram litterae V. Cervi ab similitudine cornuum cervi; item reliqua fere ab similitudine ut vineae, testudo, aries.

XXV. 118. Mensam escariam cillibam appellabant; ea erat¹ quadrata ut etiam nunc in castris est; a cibo cilliba dicta; postea rutunda facta, et quod a nobis media et a Graecis  $\mu \acute{e} \sigma a$ , mensa dict $\langle a \rangle^2$  potest; nisi etiam quod ponebant pleraque in cibo mensa. Trulla a similitudine truae, quae quod magna et haec

<sup>6</sup> Turnebus, for ferream tunicam. § 118. <sup>1</sup> For erant. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for dici.

 $^{\circ}$  Rather galerum from galea, which looks like a borrowing from Greek γαλέη 'weasel'; the objection is that caps of weasel-skin are nowhere attested.

§ 117. <sup>a</sup> Wrong etymology. <sup>b</sup> Thrust into the embankment, to increase its defensive strength; can they be the stakes, pali or valli, forming a fence along its top? But these are not elsewhere spoken of as forked. <sup>e</sup> Used by Caesar, who inserted such forked branches into the face of his wall at Alesia, Bell. Gall. vii. 72. 4, 73. 2. <sup>a</sup> Otherwise 'grape-arbours'; in military use, sheds under the protection of which soldiers could advance up to the enemy's fortifications. <sup>e</sup> A close formation of overlapping shields.

§ 118. <sup>a</sup> Borrowed from Greck  $\kappa i\lambda\lambda i\beta as$  'three-legged table,' a derivative of  $\kappa i\lambda\lambda ios$  'ass.' <sup>b</sup> Or perhaps mesa, since n was weak before s; Priscian, i. 58. 17 Keil, states that Varro used both spellings. Mensa seems to be the included under this name, an iron shirt made of links. Balteum 'sword-belt,' because they used to wear a leather belt bullatum 'with an amulet attached,' was called balteum. Ocrea 'shin-guard' was so called because it was set in the way ob crus 'before the shin.' Galea c' leather helmet,' from galerum 'leather bonnet,' because many of the ancients used them.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 116-118

117. Tubae 'trumpets,' from tubi 'tubes,' a name by which even now the trumpeters of the sacrifices call them. Cornua 'horns,' because these, which are now of bronze, were then made from the cornu 'horn' of an ox. Vallum a 'camp wall,' either because no one could varicare 'straddle' over it, or because the ends of the forked sticks b used there had individually the shape of the letter V. Cervi c 'chevaux-de-frise,' from the likeness to the horns of a cervus 'stag'; so the rest of the terms in general, from a likeness, as vineae 'mantlets,' d testudo 'tortoise,' c aries 'ram.'

XXV. 118. The eating-table they used to call a cilliba  $^a$ ; it was square, as even now it is in the camp; the name cilliba came from cibus 'victuals.' Afterwards it was made round, and the fact that it was media 'central' with us and  $\mu\acute{e}\sigma a$  'central' with the Greeks, is the probable reason for its being called a mensa  $^b$  'table'; unless indeed they used to put on, amongst the victuals, many that were mensa 'measured out.' Trulla  $^c$  'ladle,' from its likeness to a trua 'gutter,' but because this is big and the other is small, they named it as if it were truella 'small trua'; this feminine of mensus 'measured'; perhaps from tabula mensa 'measured board.'  $^c$  Trulta is of uncertain origin, and yielded trua by back-formation; Greek  $\tau \rho \nu \eta \lambda \eta$  seems to have been borrowed from Latin, as Varro states.

VOL. I 1 113

pusilla, ut true(l)la<sup>3</sup>; hanc<sup>4</sup> Graeci τρυήλην.<sup>5</sup> Trua qu(a) e6 culina in lavatrinam aquam fundunt7; trua, quod travolat ea aqua. Ab eodem est appellatum truleum: simile enim figura, nisi quod latius est, quod concipiat aquam, et quod manubrium cavum non est nisi in vinario truleo.8

119. Accessit matellio<sup>1</sup> a matula dictus et fictus,<sup>2</sup> qui, posteaquam longius a figura matulae discessit, et ab aqua aqualis dictus. Vas aquarium vocant futim, quod in triclinio allatam aquam infundebant; quo postea accessit nanus<sup>3</sup> cum Graeco nomine et cum Latino nomine Graeca figura barbatus. Pelvis pede-(l)uis4 a pedum lavatione. Candelabrum a candela: ex his enim funiculi ardentes figebantur. Lucerna post inventa, quae dicta a luce aut quod id vocant λύχνον<sup>5</sup> Graeci.

120. Vasa in mensa escaria: ubi pultem¹ aut iurulenti quid ponebant, a capiendo catinum nominarunt, nisi quod Siculi dicunt κάτινον ubi assa ponecited as f.  $^6$  Christ, for uinaria trulla Fv.  $\S 119. ^{11}$  Aldus, for matiolio Fv.  $^2$  A. Sp., for dictus et dictus.  $^3$  Turnebus, for magnus.  $^4$  Scaliger; pedelauis Aldus; for pedeuis.  $^5$  For licnon.  $\S 120. ^{11}$  For pultes Fv.

<sup>3</sup> Klotz, for troula. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for hinc. <sup>5</sup> L. Sp., for trullan. 6 Mue., for truae que. 7 Here begins the lost quaternion in F, running to vi. 61 finit; but before its loss Victorius collated it, and his readings are cited as Fr. There is also a careful copy of F extant in Laurent. 51. 5,

&lt;sup>d</sup> The next statements seem to eliminate from this passage the usual meaning of trua: 'ladle, stirring-spoon.' ously spelled, but clearly a derivative of trulla. parently the wine truleum had a channelled handle which could be used as a spout in pouring.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 118-120

the Greeks call a  $\tau\rho\nu\dot{\eta}\lambda\eta$ . A trua 'gutter' a is that by which they pour the water from the kitchen into the privy: trua, because by it the water travolat' flies across.' From the same is named the truleum b 'basin'; for it is like in shape, except that it is broader because it is to hold water, and that the handle is not channelled except in the case of a wine-truleum.

119. There was also the matellio 'pot,' named as well as modelled after the matula 'chamber-pot,' which, after it had got quite far away from the shape of a matula, was called also an aqualis 'wash-basin,' from aqua 'water.' A jar for water they called a futis, a because with it in the dining-room they infundebant 'poured on' the guests' hands the water that had been brought; for the performance of this same service there was afterward added a vessel b with the Greek name of nanus 'dwarf' and the Latin name barbatus' bearded man,' because of the Greek figure. Pelvis 'basin' was earlier pedeluis, from the lavatio 'washing' of the pedes 'feet.' Candelabrum' candlestick,' from candela 'taper'; for from these blazing cords were hung. The lucerna a' lamp' was invented later; it was named from lux' light 'or because the Greeks call it λύχνος.

120. Vessels on the eating-table: The vessel in which they set on the table porridge or anything with a great deal of juice, they called a catinus 'pot,' from capere <sup>a</sup> 'to contain,' unless it is because the Sicilians call that in which they put their roasts a  $\kappa \acute{a}\tau \iota vos$ .

§ 120. Wrong; and the Sicilian word was borrowed from Latin.

<sup>§ 119. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Wrong etymology. <sup>b</sup> A jar in the form of a bearded dwarf. <sup>c</sup> Wrong etymology. <sup>d</sup> A native word, from the root of lux.

bant; magidam aut langulam alterum a magnitudine alterum a latitudine finxerunt. Patenas a patulo dixerunt, ut pusillas, quod his libarent cenam, patellas. Tryblia2 et canistra quod putant esse Latina, sunt Graeca: τρύβλων³ enim et κανοῦν⁴ d⟨i⟩c⟨untur⟩⁵ Graece.⁶ Reliqua quod aperta sunt unde sint relinguo.

XXVI. 121. Mensa vinaria rotunda nominabatur ci(l)liba (a)nte,1 ut etiam nunc in castris. Id videtur declinatum a Graeco κυλικείω,2 (id)3 a poculo cylice qui (in)<sup>3</sup> illa. Capid(es)<sup>4</sup> et minores capulae a capiendo, quod ansatae ut prehendi possent, id est capi. Harum figuras in vasis sacris ligneas ac fictiles antiquas etiam nunc videmus.

122. Praeterea in poculis erant paterae, ab eo quod late (pate)nt1 ita2 dictae. Hisce etiam nunc in publico convivio antiquitatis retinendae causa, cum magistri fiunt, potio circumfertur, et in sacrificando deis hoc poculo magistratus dat deo vinum. Pocula a potione, unde potatio et ctiam posca.3 Hacc possunt a πότω, quod πότος potio Graece.

<sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for triplia. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for canunun Fv. <sup>5</sup> GS., for de. <sup>6</sup> Canal, for

greca.

§ 121. ¹ GS., for cilibantum. ² Turnebus, for culiceo. 3 Added by Mue. 4 L. Sp.; capis Turnebus; for capit. § 122. 1 GS.; patent L. Sp.; pateant latine Aldus; for latini. 2 After ita, Aldus deleted dicunt. 3 Turnebus, for postea. 4 Mue., for poto.

<sup>b</sup> From Greek µayis 'a round pan.' <sup>c</sup> Better lancula, diminutive of lanx 'platter.' <sup>d</sup> Correct, except that canistrum is from Greek κάνιστρον 'bread-basket,' made of κάνναι 'reeds'; page 117 Funaioli.

§ 121. a Cf. § 118, where a different etymology is given. § 122. a Not from Greek, but from an Indo-European root inherited by Latin as well as by Greek. b The Greek word means properly not a 'draught,' but a 'drinking-bout.' 116

The magida b and the langula, c both meaning 'platter,' they named from the magnitudo 'size' of the one and the latitudo 'width' of the other. Patenae 'plates' they called from patulum 'spreading,' and the little plates, with which they offered the gods a preliminary sample of the dinner, they called patellae 'saucers.' Tryblia 'bowls' and canistra 'bread-baskets,' though people think that they are Latin, are really Greek a: for  $\tau \rho \dot{\nu} \beta \lambda \iota \nu \nu$  and  $\kappa a \nu \nu \nu \nu \nu$  are said in Greek. The remaining terms I pass by, since their sources are obvious.

XXVI. 121. A round table for wine was formerly called a cilliba, a seven now it is in the camp. This seems to be derived from the Greek κυλικεῦον 'buffet,' from the cup cylix which stands on it. The capides 'bowls' and smaller capulae 'cups' were named from capere 'to seize,' because they have handles to make it possible for them prehendi 'to be grasped,' that is, capi 'to be seized.' Their shapes we even now see among the sacred vessels, old-fashioned shapes in wood and earthenware.

122. In addition there were among the drinking-cups the paterae 'libation-saucers,' named from this, that they patent 'are open' wide. For the sake of preserving the ancient practice, they use cups of this kind even now for passing around the potio 'draught' at the public banquet, when the magistrates enter into their office; and it is this kind of cup that the magistrate uses in sacrificing to the gods, when he gives the wine to the god. Pocula 'drinking-cups,' from potio 'draught,' whence potatio 'drinking bout' and also posca 'sour wine.' These may however come from πότοs, because πότοs is the Greek for potio.<sup>b</sup>

117

123. Origo potionis aqua, quod aequa summa. Fons unde funditur e terra aqua viva, ut fistula a qua fusus aquae. Vas vinarium grandius sinum ab sinu, quod sinum maiorem cav(a)tionem1 quam pocula habebant. Item dictae lepestae,2 quae etiam nunc in diebus sacris Sabinis vasa vinaria in mensa deorum sunt posita; apud antiquos scriptores Graecos inveni appellari poculi genus δεπέσταν<sup>3</sup>: quare vel inde radices in agrum Sabinum et Romanum sunt profectae.

124. Qui vinum dabant ut minutatim funderent, a guttis guttum appellarunt; qui sumebant minutatim, a sumendo simpuium<sup>1</sup> nominarunt. In huiusce locum in conviviis e Graecia successit epichysis et evathus; in sacruficiis remansit guttus et simpuium.1

125. Altera vasaria¹ mensa erat² lapidea quadrata oblonga una columella; vocabatur cartibulum. Haec in aedibus ad compluvium apud multos me puero ponebatur et in ea et (cir)cum ea(m)3 aenca vasa: a gerendo cartibulum4 potest dictum.

§ 123. Aldus, for cautionem. Mue.; dicta lepeste Sciop.; for dicta flepeste f. <sup>3</sup> For depestam Fv. § 124. <sup>1</sup> Brinkmann, for simpulum. § 125. <sup>1</sup> For uasaria, with uin written above, both in

Fv and in f. <sup>2</sup> For erant f. <sup>3</sup> Christ, for cum ea. <sup>4</sup> cartibum f, H, V, a, p (cartibum unde cartibulum Laetus; gertibulum unde cartibulum B, Aug.).

§ 124. a From a Greek word, but popularly remodelled to resemble qutta 'drop.'

<sup>§ 123.</sup> Wrong on aqua, fons, fistula, sinum (note the quantities in sīnum and sīnus). b From Greek λεπαστή, a drinking-cup shaped like a λεπάς 'limpet.' 'Not elsewhere attested with d.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 123-125

123.ª The source of a drink is aqua 'water,' so called because its surface is aequa 'level.' A fons 'spring' is that from which running water funditur 'is poured' out of the earth, just as a fistula 'pipe' is that from which there is a fusus 'outpour' of water. The sinum is a wine-jar of a larger sort, called from sinus 'belly,' because the sinum had a greater cavity than cups. Likewise there are those called lepestae, b the kind of wine-jars that are even now, on the days of the Sabine festivals, placed on the table of the gods; I have found in ancient Greek writers a kind of cup called  $\delta\epsilon\pi\acute{\epsilon}\sigma\tau a$ , for which reason the source of the name quite certainly set out from there into the Sabine and Roman territory.

124. Those who were giving wine in such a way as to pour it little by little, called the vessel a guttus a 'cruet,' from the guttae 'drops'; those who were taking it little by little from a larger container, called the instrument a simpuvium 'dipping ladle,' from sumere 'to take out.' Into its place, in banquets, there came from Greece the epichysis' pouring ladle and the cyathus' dipping ladle'; but in the sacrifices the guttus and the simpuvium remained in use.

125. A second kind of table for vessels was of stone, an oblong rectangle with one pedestal; it was called a cartibulum. When I was a boy this used to be placed in many persons' houses near the opening in the roof of the court, and on and around it were set bronze vessels; perhaps cartibulum <sup>a</sup> was said from gerere 'to carry.' <sup>b</sup>

 $\S$  125. <sup>a</sup> Of unknown etymology; commonly spelled gartibulum (for early C in value of g, cf, v. 64, note f), but not connected with gerere. <sup>b</sup> That is, from carrying the vessels.

XXVII. 126. Praeterea erat tertium genus mensae  $it\langle em \rangle^1$  quadratae vasorum ; voca $\langle ba \rangle$ tur² urnarium, quod urnas cum aqua positas ibi potissimum habebant in culina. Ab eo etiam nunc ante balineum locus ubi poni solebat urnarium vocatur. Urnae dictae, quod urinant in aqua haurienda ut urinator. Urinare³ est mergi in aquam.

127. Amburvo⟨m⟩¹ fictum ab urvo,² quod ita flexum ut redeat sursum versus ut³ in aratro quod est urvum.⁴ Calix a caldo, quod in eo calda puls⁵ apponebatur et caldum eo bibebant. Vas ubi coquebant cibum, ab eo caccabum appellarunt. Veru⁵ a versando.

XXVIII. 128. Ab sedendo appellatae sedes, sedile, solium, sellae, siliquastrum; deinde ab his subsellium: ut subsipere quod non plane sapit, sie quod non plane erat sella, subsellium. Ubi in eiusmodi duo, bisellium dictum. Arca, quod arcebantur

 $\S$  126.  $^1$  GS., for et.  $^2$  uocabatur, with ba expunged, V; uocatur other MSS.  $^3$  Bentinus, for orinator orinare.  $\S$  127.  $^1$  Kent; imburvom Mue.; imburum Aldus, with B; for impurro.  $^2$  Mue., for urbo.  $^3$  Aldus, for est.  $^4$  B, for aruum.  $^5$  Laetus, for plus.  $^6$  Aldus, for uera.  $\S$  128.  $^1$  Aug., for souum.

 $\S$  126.  $^a$  Wrong etymology.  $^b$  Derivative of urina at an early date when urina still meant merely 'water,' and not specifically 'urine.'

<sup>§ 127.</sup> a Bent about, a vessel shaped like a gravy-boat; if my conjecture as to the spelling of the word is right, there is basis for Varro's etymology. b Of uncertain etymology, but popularly derived by the Romans from Greek κύλιξ 'cup,' the normal meaning also of Latin calix, but not the meaning in this passage. From Greek κάκκαβος, a pot with three legs, to stand over the fire. d Wrong.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 126-128

XXVII. 126. Besides there was a third kind of table for vessels, rectangular like the second kind; it was called an urnarium, because it was the piece of furniture in the kitchen on which by preference they set and kept the urnae 'urns' filled with water. From this even now the place in front of the bath where the urn-table is wont to be placed, is called an urnarium. Urnae 'urns' got their name a from the fact that they urinant b 'dive' in the drawing of water, like an urinator 'diver.' Urinare means to be plunged into water.

127. Amburvum, a pot whose name is made from urvum 'curved,' because it is so bent that it turns up again like the part of the plough which is named the urvum 'beam.' Calix b' 'cooking-pot,' from caldum 'hot,' because hot porridge was served up in it, and they drank hot liquid from it. The vessel in which they coquebant 'cooked' their food, from that they called a caccabus. Veru 'spit,' from versare 'to turn.' d

XXVIII. 128. From sedere 'to sit' were named sedes 'seat,' sedile 'chair,' solium 'throne,' sellae a 'stools,' siliquastrum b 'wicker chair'; then from these subsellium 'bench': as subsipere is said a thing does not sapit 'taste' clearly, so subsellium because it was not clearly c a sella 'stool.' Where two had room on a seat of this sort, it was called a bisellium 'double seat.' An arca 'strong-chest,' because thieves arcebantur' were kept away' from it when it fures ab ea clausa. Armarium et armamentarium ab cadem origine, sed declinata aliter.

<sup>§ 128. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> With ll from dl. <sup>b</sup> Probably seliquastrum (or selli-), as in Festus, 340 b 10, 341. 5; Fay suggests 'seat-basket' (sella+qualum+suffix), citing certain types of Mexican chairs. <sup>c</sup> Rather 'under-seat,' that is, a seat under the sitter.

XXIX. 129. Mundus (ornatus) muliebris dictus a munditia. Ornatus quasi ab ore natus: hinc enim maxime sumitur quod eam deceat, itaque id paratur speculo.2 Calamistrum, quod his calfactis in cinere capillus ornatur. Qui ea ministrabat, a cinere cinerarius est appellatus. Discerniculum, quo discernitur capillus. Pecten, quod per eum explicatur capillus. Speculum a speciendo, quod ibi (s)e spectant.4

130. Vestis a vellis vel<sup>1</sup> ab eo quod vellus lana tonsa universa ovis: id dictum, quod vellebant.2 Lan(e)a,3 ex lana facta. Quod capillum contineret, dictum a rete reticulum; rete ab raritudine; item texta fasciola, qua capillum in capite alligarent, dictum capital a capite, quod sacerdotulae in capite etiam nunc solent habere. Sic rica ab ritu, quod Romano ritu sacrificium feminae cum faciunt, capita velant.

§ 130. Laetus, for uela. B, Laetus, for uellabant. 3 Turnebus, for lana.

<sup>§ 129. 1</sup> Added by GS.; cf. Festus, 143. 1 M. 3 Laetus, for spiciendo. Sp., for speculum. Turnebus, for espectant.

d Both area and arcere are derived from arx 'stronghold.'

Both area and arcere are defined.
Not connected with area; but belonging together.
Wrong § 129. a Munditia is derived from mundus. etymologies.

<sup>§ 130.</sup> a Both etymological suggestions for vestis are wrong; for the meaning, see A. Spengel, Bemerkungen, 264. 122 was locked.<sup>d</sup> Armarium 'closet' and armamentarium 'warehouse,' from the same source, but with different suffixes.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 128-130

XXIX. 129. Mundus is a woman's toilet set, named a from munditia 'neatness.' Ornatus 'toilet set,' as if natus 'born' from the os 'face'b; for from this especially is taken that which is to beautify a woman, and therefore this is handled with the help of a mirror. Calamistrum 'curlingiron,' because the hair is arranged with irons when they have been calfacta 'heated' in the embers.b The one who attended to them was called a cinerarius 'ember-man,' from cinis 'embers.' Discerniculum 'bodkin,' with which the hair discernitur 'is parted.' Pecten 'comb,' because by it the hair explicatur 'is spread out.'b Speculum 'mirror,' from specere 'to look at,' because in it they spectant 'look at' themselves.

130. Vestis 'garment' a from velli b 'shaggy hair,' or from the fact that the shorn wool of a sheep, taken as a whole, is a vellus 'fleece': this was said because they formerly vellebant' plucked' it. Lanea 'woollen headband,' because made from lana 'wool.' That which was to hold the hair, was called a reticulum' netcap,' from rete' net'; rete, from raritudo 'looseness of mesh.' Likewise the woven band with which they were to fasten the hair on the head, was called a capital 'headband,' from caput 'head'; and this the sub-priestesses are accustomed to wear on their heads even now. So rica' veil,' from ritus' fashion,' because according to the Roman ritus, when women make a sacrifice, they veil their heads. The mitra

&lt;sup>b</sup> Vellis, dialectal for villis. <sup>c</sup> For meaning, see A. Spengel, Bemerkungen, 264. <sup>d</sup> Wrong etymologies.

Mitra et reliqua fere in capite postea addita cum vocabulis Graecis.

XXX. 131. Prius deinde (ind)utui,¹ tum amietui quae sunt tangam. Capitium ab eo quod capit pectus, id est, ut antiqui dicebant, comprehendit. Indutui alterum quod subtus, a quo subucula; alterum quod supra, a quo supparus, nisi id quod item dicunt Osce. Alterius generis item duo, unum quod foris ac palam, palla; alterum quod intus, a quo (indusium, ut)² intusium, id quod Plautus dicit:

Indusiatam³ patagiatam caltulam⁴ ac crocotulam.

Multa post luxuria attulit, quorum vocabula apparet esse Graeca, ut asbest(in)on.<sup>5</sup>

132. Amictui dictum quod a(m)biectum¹ est, id est circumiectum,² a quo etiam quo³ vestitas se involvunt, circumiectui appellant, et quod amictui habet purpuram circum, vocant circumtextum. Antiquissimi amictui ricinium; id quod eo utebantur duplici,

§ 131. <sup>1</sup> B, Turnebus, for deinde utui Fv, f. <sup>2</sup> Added by GS. <sup>3</sup> GS., for intusiatam; after the text of Plantus. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for caltulum; after the text of Plantus. <sup>5</sup> GS., for asbeston; cf. Pliny, Nat. Hist. xix. 4. 20. § 132. <sup>1</sup> Mue., for abicetum. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for circumlectum. <sup>3</sup> G, Aug., for quod.

<sup>§ 131. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The datives indutui, amictui, and circumiectui, are used in § 131 and § 132 as indeclinables, like frugi 'thrifty,' cordi 'pleasant,' original datives of purpose that have become stereotyped. <sup>b</sup> From caput 'head,' because it was put on over the head like a sweater. <sup>c</sup> From sub and the verb in ind-uere, 'to put on,' ex-uere 'to take off.' <sup>d</sup> Probably Oscan. <sup>e</sup> Of unknown etymology. from induere 'to put on.' <sup>e</sup> Epidicus, 231. <sup>h</sup> The Latin words are adjectives modifying tunicam in the preceding line. <sup>f</sup> Made of a mineral substance called a0e0e0e1.

'turban' and in general the other things that go on the head, were later importations, along with their Greek names.

XXX. 131. Next I shall first touch upon those things which are for putting on, a then those which are for wrapping about the person. Capitium b 'vest,' from the fact that it capit' holds' the chest, that is, as the ancients said, it comprehendit' includes' it. One kind of put-on goes subtus' below,' from which it is called subucula c' underskirt'; a second kind goes supra 'above,' from which it is called supparus d' dress,' unless this is so called because they say it in the same way in Oscan. Of the second sort there are likewise two varieties, one called palla c' outer dress,' because it is outside and palam' openly visible; the other is intus' inside,' from which it is called indusium f' under-dress,' as though intusium, of which Plautus speaks g:

Under-dress, a bordered dress, of marigold and saffron hue.<sup>h</sup>

There are many garments which extravagance brought at later times, whose names are clearly

Greek, such as asbestinon i 'fire-proof.'

132. Amictui 'wrap' is thus named because it is ambiectum 'thrown about,' that is, circumiectum 'thrown around,' from which moreover they gave the name of circumiectui 'throw-around' to that with which women envelop themselves after they are dressed; and any wrap that has a purple edge around it, they call circumtextum 'edge-weave.' Those of very long ago called a wrap a ricinium 'mantilla'; it was called ricinium from reicere' to throw back,' because they ab eo quod dimidiam partem retrorsum iaciebant,4 ab reiciendo ricinium dictum.

 $\S$  132.  $\ ^a$  Properly from rica (§ 130); it was a square piece of cloth worn folded over the head in sign of mourning.

133. (Pallia)1 hinc, quod facta duo simplicia paria, parilia primo dicta, R exclusum² propter levitatem. Parapechia, 3 chlamydes, 4 sic multa, Graeca. Laena, 5 quod de lana multa, duarum etiam togarum instar; ut antiquissimum mulierum ricinium, sic hoc duplex virorum.

XXXI. 134. Instrumenta rustica quae serendi aut colendi fructus causa facta. Sarculum ab serendo ae sariendo.1 Ligo, quod eo propter latitudinem quod sub terra facilius legitur. Pala a pangendo, (L)2 GL quod fuit. Rutrum ruitrum a ruendo.

135. Aratrum, quod a(r)ruit1 terram. Eius ferrum vomer, quod vomit eo plus terram. Dens, quod eo mordetur terra; super id regula quae stat, stiva ab stando, et in ea transversa regula manicula, quod manu bubulci tenetur. Qui quasi temo est inter

&lt;sup>4</sup> Laetus, for faciebant.

<sup>§ 133.</sup> ¹ Added by Canal. ² Mue.; Turnebus; for resclusum f, resculum Fv. pecchia Fv. ⁴ Ed. Veneta, for clamides. 3 For para-5 Aldus, for lena.

<sup>§ 134. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Aldus, for sarcendo. <sup>2</sup> Added by Ellis. § 135. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for aruit; cf. Varro, De Re Rustica, i. 35, terra adruenda.

<sup>§ 133. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Probably of Greek origin. <sup>b</sup> Greek παράπηχυς 'beside the elbow,' also 'woman's garment with purple border on each side.' The Latin word seems to come from the diminutive παραπήχιον 'radius, small bone below the elbow,' which however may also have denoted the woman's garment, though this is not attested. c Probably from Greek χλαῖνα, perhaps with an Etruscan intermediary.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 132-135

wore it doubled, throwing back one half of it over the other.

133. Pallia a 'cloaks' from this, that they consisted of two single paria 'equal' pieces of cloth, called parilia at first, from which R was eliminated for smoothness of sound. Parapechia b 'elbow-stripes,' chlamydes 'mantles,' and many others, are Greek. Laena c'overcoat,' because they contained much lana 'wool,' even like two togas: as the ricinium was the most ancient garment of the women, so this double garment is the most ancient garment of the men.

XXXI. 134. Farming tools which were made for planting or cultivating the crops. Sarculum <sup>a</sup> 'hoe,' from serere 'to plant' and sarire 'to weed.' Ligo <sup>b</sup> 'mattock,' because with this, on account of its width, what is under the ground legitur 'is gathered' more easily. Pala <sup>c</sup> 'spade' from pangere 'to fix in the earth'; the L was originally GL. Rutrum 'shovel,' previously ruitrum, from ruere 'to fall in a heap.'

135.a Aratrum 'plough,' because it arruit b' piles up' the earth. Its iron part is called vomer 'plough-share,' because with its help it the more vomit' spews up' the earth. The dens' colter,' because by this the earth is bit; the straight piece of wood which stands above this is called the stiva 'handle,' from stare 'to stand,' and the wooden cross-piece on it is the manicula 'hand-grip,' because it is held by the manus 'hand' of the ploughman. That which is so to speak a wagon-tongue between the oxen, is called a bura boves, bura a bubus; alii hoc a curvo urvum² appellant. Sub iugo medio cavum, quod bura extrema addita oppilatur, vocatur coum3 a cavo.4 Iugum et iumentum ab iunctu.

§ 135. a Wrong on aratrum, vomer, stiva, bura, urvum. PReally from arat 'it ploughs.'

<sup>§ 134. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> From sarire. <sup>b</sup> Of uncertain origin. <sup>c</sup> Correct; but from  $pag+sl\bar{a}$ , with loss of the extra consonants in the group.

136. Irpices regula compluribus dentibus, quam item ut plaustrum boves trahunt, ut eruant quae in terra ser(p)unt1; sirpices, postea (irpices)2 S detrito. a quibusdam dicti. Rastelli ut irpices serrae leves; itaque<sup>3</sup> homo in pratis per fenisecia<sup>4</sup> eo festucas corradit, quo ab rasu rastelli dicti. Rastri, quibus dentatis penitus eradunt terram atque cruunt, a quo rutu rua(s)tri6 dicti.

137. Falces a farre littera1 commutata; hae in Campania seculae a secando; a quadam similitudine harum aliae, ut quod apertum unde, falces fenariae et arbor(ar)iae2 et, quod non apertum unde, falces lumaria(e)3 et sirpiculae. Lumariae sunt quibus secant lumecta, id est cum in agris serpunt spinae; quas quod ab terra agricolae solvunt, id est luunt, lumecta. Falces sirpiculae vocatae ab sirpando, id

<sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for curuum. <sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for cous Fv.

4 Rhol., for cono.

§ 137. 1 For litera in Fv, as often. 2 Georges, for arboriae; cf. Varro, De Re Rust. i. 22. 5, and Cato, De Agric.

<sup>3</sup> For lumaria. 10. 3.

<sup>c</sup> The earlier form of cavus 'hollow' was in fact covos.

<sup>§ 136. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for serunt. <sup>2</sup> Added by Mue. <sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for ita qua. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for fenisecta. <sup>5</sup> Turnebus, for dentalis. <sup>6</sup> Kent; rutu rastri Scaliger; erutu rastri Turnebus; for ruturbatri Fv.

<sup>§ 136.</sup> a Properly hirpices, from hirpus, the Samnite word for 'wolf.' Roots of weeds and grasses. tive of rastrum; therefore ultimately from radere. d Masculine plural of neuter singular rastrum, from radere 'to scrape.

'beam,' from boves 'oxen'; others call this an urvum, from the curvum 'curve.' The hole under the middle of the voke, which is stopped up by inserting the end of the beam, is called coum, from cavum 'hole.' c Iugum 'yoke' and iumentum 'yoke-animal,' from iunctus 'joining or yoking.'

136. Irpices a 'harrows' are a straight piece of wood with many teeth, which oxen draw just like a wagon, that they may pull up the things b that serpunt 'creep' in the earth; they were called sirpices and afterwards, by some persons, irpices, with the S worn off. Rastelli c 'hay-rakes,' like harrows, are saw-toothed instruments, but light in weight; therefore a man in the meadows at having time corradit' scrapes together' with this the stalks, from which rasus 'scraping' they are called rastelli. Rastrid 'rakes' are sharp-toothed instruments by which they scratch the earth deep, and eruunt 'dig it up,' from which rutus 'digging' they are called ruastri.

137. Falces 'sickles,' from far 'spelt,' a with the change of a letter; in Campania, these are called seculae, from secare 'to cut'; from a certain likeness to these are named others, the falces fenariae ' hay scythes' and arborariae 'tree pruning-hooks,' of obvious origin, and falces lumariae and sirpiculae, whose source is obscure. Lumariae b are those with which lumecta are cut, that is when thorns grow up in the fields: because the farmers solvunt 'loosen,' that is, luunt 'loose,' them from the earth, they are called lumecta 'thorn-thickets.' Falces sirpiculae c are named est ab alligando; sic sirpata dolia quassa, cum alligata his, dicta. Utuntur in vinea alligando fasces, incisos fustes, faculas. Has zanclas Cherso(ne)sice.

§ 137. <sup>a</sup> Wrong. <sup>b</sup> Possibly for dumariae and dumecta, with Sabine l for d; cf. Festus, 67. 10 M. <sup>c</sup> Apparently from sirpus 'rush,' collateral form of scirpus.

138. Pilum, quod eo far pisunt, a quo ubi id fit dictum pistrinum ( $L^1$  et S inter se saepe locum commutant), inde post in Urbe Lucili pistrina et pistrix. Trapetes² molae oleariae; vocant trapetes a terendo, nisi Graecum est; ac molae a mol $\langle 1 \rangle$ iendo³: harum enim motu eo coniecta mol $\langle 1 \rangle$ iuntur.<sup>4</sup> Vallum a volatu, quod cum id iactant volant inde levia. Ventilabrum, quod ventilatur in aere frumentum.

139. Quibus conportatur fructus ac necessariae res: de his fiscina a ferendo dicta. Corbes ab eo quod eo spicas aliudve quid corruebant; hinc minores corbulae dictae. De his quae iumenta ducunt, tragula, quod ab eo trahitur per terram; sirpea, quae virgis sirpatur, id est colligando implicatur, in qua stercus aliudve quid vehitur.

 $^4$  Aug., with B, for sirpita.  $^5$  Mue., for phanclas f, G, fanclas H, V, p.  $^6$  Aug., with B, for chermosie f, chermosioe G, a.

§ 138. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for R. <sup>2</sup> For trapetas Fv. <sup>3</sup> Scaliger, for moliendo. 4 Scaliger, for moliuntur.

§ 138. <sup>a</sup> Varro's basis for this statement is not apparent. <sup>b</sup> Cf. 521 and 1250 Marx; one must assume that one of the Satires of Lucilius was entitled Urbs. <sup>c</sup> From Greek. <sup>d</sup> From molere 'to grind.' <sup>e</sup> Diminutive of vannus 'fan.'

§ 139. <sup>a</sup> Wrong on fiscina and corbes. <sup>b</sup> Cf. § 137, note e.

&lt;sup>a</sup> Cf. the fiaschi vestiti or 'clothed wine-flasks' of modern Italy.

<sup>e</sup> Messana in Sicily was before the Greek colonization named Zanele' 'sickle,' from the shape of the cape on which it stood. There is no other evidence that this cape was called a Chersonesus, but as over twenty peninsulas are referred to by this name, it is possible that the name was applied here also.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 137-139

from sirpare 'to plait of rushes,' that is, alligare 'to fasten'; thus broken jars are said to have been sirpata 'rush-covered,' when they are fastened together with rushes.<sup>d</sup> They use rushes in the vine-yard for tying up bundles of fuel, cut stakes, and kindling. These sickles they call zanclae in the peninsular dialect.

138. The pilum 'pestle' is so named because with it they pisunt' pound' the spelt, from which the place where this is done is called a pistrinum 'mill'—L and S often change places with each other —and from that afterwards pistrina 'bakery' and pistrix' woman baker,' words used in Lucilius's City. Trapetes c are the mill-stones of the olive-mill: they call them trapetes from terere 'to rub to pieces,' unless the word is Greek; and molae d from mollire 'to soften,' for what is thrown in there is softened by their motion. Vallum c' small winnowing-fan,' from volatus' flight,' because when they swing this to and fro the light particles volant 'fly' away from there. Ventilabrum 'winnowing-fork,' because with this the grain ventilatur' is tossed 'in the air.

139. Those means with which field produce and necessary things are transported. Of these, fiscina a 'rush-basket' was named from ferre 'to carry'; corbes 'baskets,' from the fact that into them they corruebant 'piled up' corn-ears or something else; from this the smaller ones were called corbulae. Of those which animals draw, the tragula 'sledge,' because it trahitur 'is dragged' along the ground by the animal; sirpea b 'wicker wagon,' which sirpatur 'is plaited' of osiers, that is, is woven by binding them together, in which dung or something else is conveyed.

140. Vehiculum, in quo faba aliudve quid vehitur, quod e1 viminibus vietur2 aut eo vehitur. Brevius3 vehiculum dictum est aliis ut4 arcera, quae etiam in Duodecim Tabulis appellatur; quod ex tabulis vehiculum erat factum ut arca,5 arcera dictum. Plaustrum ab eo quod non ut in his quae supra dixi (ex quadam parte),6 sed ex omni parte palam est, quae in eo vehuntur quod perluce(n)t,7 ut lapides, asseres, tignum.

XXXII. 141. Aedificia nominata a parte ut multa: ab aedibus et faciendo maxime aedificium. Et oppidum ab opi dictum, quod munitur opis causa ubi sint et quod opus est ad vitam gerendam ubi habeant tuto. Oppida quod opere1 muniebant, moenia; quo moenitius esset quod exaggerabant, aggeres dicti, et qui aggerem contineret, moerus.2 Quod muniendi causa portabatur, munus3; quod sepiebant oppidum co moenere,4 moerus.5

142. Eius summa pinnae ab his quas insigniti

 $\S$  140.  $^1$  GS.; ex Laetus; for est.  $^2$  Turnebus, for utetur.  $^3$  A. Sp., for breui est.  $^4$  A. Sp., for uel.  $^5$  Laetus, for arcar Fv.  $^6$  Added by L. Sp.  $^7$  Aug., for perlucet.

§ 141. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for operi. <sup>2</sup> Sciop., for moerum Fv. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for manus. <sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for eae omoenere Fv.

5 Sciop., for murus.

§ 140. <sup>a</sup> From vehere 'to carry.' <sup>b</sup> Page 116 Schoell.

From plaudere 'to creak.'

<sup>§ 141. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Whence 'temple 'in the singular, 'house ' in the plural. <sup>b</sup> From prefix ob + pedom 'place';  $cf. \pi \epsilon \delta ov$ , San-together; oe is the older spelling, preserved in moenia in classical Latin. It is a question how far we ought to restore moe- for mu- in this passage; possibly in all the 132

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 140-142

140. Vehiculum a 'wagon,' in which beans or something else is conveyed, because it vietur 'is plaited' or because vehitur' carrying is done' by it. A shorter kind of wagon is called by others, as it were, an arcera 'covered wagon,' which is named even in the Twelve Tables b; because the wagon was made of boards like an arca 'strong box,' it was called an arcera. Plaustrum c' cart,' from the fact that unlike those which I have mentioned above it is palam 'open' not to a certain degree but everywhere, for the objects which are conveyed in it perlucent' shine forth to view,' such as stone slabs, wooden beams, and building material.

XXXII. 141. Aedificia 'buildings' are, like many things, named from a part: from aedes a 'hearths' and facere' to make 'comes certainly aedificium. Oppidum b 'town' also is named from ops 'strength,' because it is fortified for ops 'strength,' as a place where the people may be, and because for spending their lives there is opus 'need' of place where they may be in safety. Moenia c' walls' were so named because they muniebant 'fortified' the towns with opus 'work.' What they exaggerabant 'heaped up' that it might be moenitius' better fortified,' was called aggeres d' dikes,' and that which was to support the dike was called a moerus 'wall.' Because carrying was done for the sake of muniendi 'fortifying,' the work was a munus 'duty'; because they enclosed the town by this moenus, it was a moerus 'wall.'

142. Its top was called pinnae a 'pinnacles,' from those feathers which distinguished soldiers are accus-

§ 142. a Literally, 'feathers.'

words, since Varro had a fondness for archaic spellings. <sup>d</sup> Exaggerare is from agger, which is from ad 'to' and gerere' to carry.'

milites in galeis habere solent et in gladiatoribus Samnites. Turres a torvis, quod eae proiciunt ante alios. Qua viam relinquebant in muro, qua in oppidum portarent, portas.

143. Oppida condebant in Latio Etrusco ritu multi, id est iunctis bobus, tauro et vacca interiore, aratro circumagebant sulcum (hoc faciebant religionis causa die auspicato), ut fossa et muro essent muniti. Terram unde exculpserant, fossam vocabant et introrsum iactam¹ murum. Post ea² qui fiebat orbis, urbis principium; qui quod erat post murum, postmoerium dictum, eo usque³ auspicia urbana finiuntur. Cippi pomeri stant et circum Ariciam et⁴ circum⁵ Romam. Quare et oppida quae prius erant circumducta aratro ab orbe⁵ et urvo urb⟨e⟩s; et¹ ideo coloniae nostrae omnes in litteris antiquis scribuntur urbes, aquod item conditae ut Roma; et ideo coloniae et urbes conduntur, quod intra pomerium ponuntur.

144. Oppidum quod primum conditum in Latio stirpis Romanae, Lavinium: nam ibi dii Penates

§ 143. <sup>1</sup> Mue., for factam Fv. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for postea. <sup>3</sup> Mommsen, for eiusque. <sup>4</sup> Sciop., for ars clamet. <sup>5</sup> B, Laetus, for circoum Fv. <sup>8</sup> Laetus, for urbe. <sup>7</sup> Aldus, for urbs est. <sup>8</sup> For urbis.

b Heavy-armed fighters who were matched against light-armed pinnirapi 'feather-snatchers.' c An Asiatic word brought by the Etruscans. d Portare is from porta.

<sup>§ 143. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> That is, with the cow between the bull and the wall; but GS. take interiore with aratro, interpreting, "with the plough throwing up the earth on the inside." <sup>b</sup> The old form of pomerium. <sup>c</sup> An ancient Latin town on the Appian Way between the Alban Lake and the Lake of Nemi. <sup>d</sup> An attempt to explain the phrase urbes conduntur; in reality, condere means merely to set down in a

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 142-144

tomed to wear on their helmets, and among the gladiators the Samnites b wear. Turres c 'towers,' from torvi' fiercely staring eyes,' because they stand out in front of the rest. Where they left a way in the wall, by which they might portare 'carry' goods into the town, these they called portae d 'gates.'

143. Many founded towns in Latium by the Etruscan ritual; that is, with a team of cattle, a bull and a cow on the inside, a they ran a furrow around with a plough (for reasons of religion they did this on an auspicious day), that they might be fortified by a ditch and a wall. The place whence they had ploughed up the earth, they called a fossa' ditch.' and the earth thrown inside it they called the murus 'wall.' The orbis 'circle' which was made back of this, was the beginning of the urbs 'city'; because the circle was post murum 'back of the wall,' it was called a postmoerium b; it sets the limits for the taking of the auspices for the city. Stone markers of the pomerium stand both around Aricia c and around Rome. Therefore towns also which had earlier had the plough drawn around them, were termed urbes 'cities,' from orbis 'circle' and urvum 'curved'; therefore also all our colonies are mentioned as urbes in the old writings. because they had been founded in just the same way as Rome; therefore also colonies and cities conduntur ' are founded,' because they are placed inside the pomerium.d

144.<sup>a</sup> The first town of the Roman line which was founded in Latium, was Lavinium; for there are our secure place where there is no danger of displacement or of theft.

<sup>§ 144.</sup> This section embodies the old Roman tradition; the etymologies in it are purely aetiological.

nostri. Hoc a Latini filia, quae coniuncta Aeneae, Lavinia, appellatu(m).1 Hinc post triginta annos oppidum alterum conditur, Alba; id ab sue alba nominatum. Haec e navi Aeneae cum fu(g)isset2 Lavinium, triginta parit porcos; ex hoc prodigio post Lavinium conditum annis triginta haec urbs facta, propter colorem suis et loci naturam Alba Longa dicta. Hinc mater Romuli Rhea, ex hac Romulus, hinc Roma.

145. In oppido vici a via, quod ex (u)traqué<sup>1</sup> parte viae sunt aedificia. Fundulae<sup>2</sup> a fundo, quod exitum non habe(n)t3 ac pervium non est. Angiportum, si(ve quod) id4 angustum, (sive) ab agendo et portu. Quo conferrent suas controversias et quae venderentur vellent quo ferrent, forum appellarunt.

146. Ubi quid generatim, additum ab eo cognomen, ut Forum Bovarium, Forum Holitorium: hoc erat antiquum Macellum, ubi holerum copia; ea loca etiam nunc Lacedaemonii vocant μάκελλον, sed Iones ostia¹ hortorum μακελλώτας hortorum, et castelli b It lay on the edge of the old volcanic crater containing the Alban Lake.

2 Aug., with B, for § 144. ¹ Stanley, for appellata. fuisset.

<sup>§ 145. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for dextra qui. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for ndullae. <sup>3</sup> B, for habet. <sup>4</sup> Mue., for si id. fundullae. <sup>5</sup> Added by Mue. § 146. <sup>1</sup> For hostia.

<sup>§ 145.</sup> a A vicus is apparently a street on the ridge of a hill, with houses on each side; this forms virtually the entire village. The word is not connected with via. b From the first part of angustum, + portus in its old meaning of 'pas-136

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 144-146

Penates. This was named from the daughter of Latinus who was wedded to Aeneas, Lavinia. Thirty years after this, a second town was founded, named Alba; it was named from the alba 'white' sow. This sow, when she had escaped from Aeneas's ship to Lavinium, gave birth to a litter of thirty young; from this prodigy, thirty years after the founding of Lavinium, this second city was established, called Alba Longa b 'the Long White City,' on account of the colour of the sow and the nature of the place. From here came Rhea, mother of Romulus; from her, Romulus; from him, Rome.

145. In a town there are vici 'rows,' from via 'street,' because there are buildings on each side of the via.a Fundulae 'blind streets,' from fundus 'bottom,' because they have no way out and there is no passage through. Angiportum b 'alley,' either because it is angustum 'narrow,' or from agere 'to drive' and portus 'entrance.' The place to which they might conferre 'bring' their contentions and might ferre 'carry' articles which they wished to sell, they called a forum.c

146. Where things of one class were brought, a denomination was added from that class, as the Forum Boarium 'Cattle Market,' the Forum Holitorium 'Vegetable Market': this was the old Macellum, a where holera 'vegetables' in quantity were brought; such places even now the Spartans call a macellum, but the Ionians call the entrances to gardens "the macellotae of gardens," and speak of the macella 'entrances' to meant 'latticed screen.'

VARRO

μάκελλα.<sup>2</sup> Secundum Tiberim ad (Por)tunium<sup>3</sup> Forum Piscarium vocant: ideo ait Plantus:

Apud (Forum)4 Piscarium.

Ubi variae res ad Corneta Forum Cuppedinis a (cuppedio, id est a) fastidio, quod multi Forum Cupidinis? a cupiditate.

147. Haec omnia posteaguam contracta in unum locum quae ad victum pertinebant et aedificatus locus, appellatum Macellum, ut quidam scribunt, quod ibi fuerit hortus, alii quod ibi domus furis,1 cui cognomen fuit Macellus, quae ibi publice sit diruta, e qua aedificatum hoc quod vocetur ab eo Macellum.

148. In Foro Lacum Curtium a Curtio dictum constat, et de eo triceps historia: nam et Procilius non idem prodidit quod Piso, nec quod is Cornelius1 secutus. A Procilio relatum in eo loco dehisse terram et id ex S. C. ad haruspices relatum esse; responsum deum Maniu(m)<sup>2</sup> postilionem postulare, id est civem fortissimum eo demitti.3 Tum quendam Curtium virum fortem armatum ascendisse in equum et a Concordia versum cum equo eo4 praecipitatum; eo facto

§ 147. <sup>1</sup> Stowasser, for fuerit; cf. Festus, 125. 7 M. § 148. <sup>1</sup> After Cornelius, Mue. deleted Stilo. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for manio. 3 Turnebus, for eodem mitti. 4 A. Sp., with H, for eum.

 Curculio, 474.
 Page 115 Funaioli.
 § 147.
 Page 116 Funaioli.
 Seemingly only an aetiological story; the cognomen is not otherwise known. Could it here be a corruption of Marcellus?

§ 148. a A writer on historical topics, possibly the Procilius who was tribune of the plebs in 56 B.c. b L. Calpurnius Piso Frugi, consul 133 B.c., adversary of the Gracchi;

&lt;sup>2</sup> macella Scaliger, for macelli. <sup>3</sup> Jordan, for iunium. 4 Added by GS., from Plautus, Curc. 474. GS. 6 Laetus, for quem. 7 For cuppedinis.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 146-148

small fortified villages. Along the Tiber, at the sanctuary of Portunus, they call it the Forum Piscarium 'Fish Market'; therefore Plautus says b:

Down at the Market that sells the fish.

Where things of various kinds are sold, at the Cornel-Cherry Groves, is the Forum Cuppedinis 'Luxury Market,' from cuppedium 'delicacy,' that is, from fastidium 'fastidiousness'; many call it the Forum Cupidinis' Greed Market,' from cupiditas' greed.'

147. After all these things which pertain to human sustenance had been brought into one place, and the place had been built upon, it was called a Macellum, as certain writers say, because there was a garden there; others say that it was because there had been there a house of a thief with the cognomen Macellus, which had been demolished by the state, and from which this building has been constructed which is called from him a Macellum.

148. In the Forum is the Lacus Curtius 'Pool of Curtius'; it is quite certain that it is named from Curtius, but the story about it has three versions: for Procilius a does not tell the same story as Piso, nor did Cornelius follow the story given by Procilius. Procilius states that in this place the earth yawned open, and the matter was by decree of the senate referred to the haruspices; they gave the answer that the God of the Dead demanded the fulfilment of a forgotten vow, namely that the bravest citizen be sent down to him. Then a certain Curtius, a brave man.

author of a work on Roman history. <sup>e</sup> Identity quite uncertain. <sup>d</sup> Hist. Rom. Frag., page 198 Peter.

put on his war-gear, mounted his horse, and turning away from the Temple of Concord, plunged into the locum coisse atque eius corpus divinitus humasse ac reliquisse genti suae monumentum.

149. Piso in Annalibus scribit Sabino bello, quod fuit Romulo et Tatio, virum fortissimum Met(t)ium Curtium¹ Sabinum, cum Romulus cum suis ex superiore parte impressionem fecisset,² in locum³ palustrem, qui tum fuit in Foro antequam cloacae sunt factae, secessisse atque ad suos in Capitolium recepisse; ab eo lacum (Curtium)⁴ invenisse nomen.

150. Cornelius et Lutatius scribunt eum locum esse fulguritum et ex S. C. septum esse: id quod factum es(se)t² a Curtio consule, cui M. Genucius³ fuit collega, Curtium appellatum.

151. Arx ab arcendo, quod is locus munitissimus Urbis, a quo facillime possit hostis prohiberi. Carcer a coercendo, quod exire prohibentur. In hoc pars quae sub terra Tullianum, ideo quod additum a Tullio rege. Quod Syracusis, ubi de⟨licti⟩¹ causa custodiuntur, vocantur latomiae, ⟨in⟩de² lautumia

§ 149. ¹ For curcium Fv. ² After fecisset, Popma deleted curtium. ³ Laetus, for lacum. ⁴ Added by GS. § 150. ¹ Aug., with B, for luctatius. ² Mue., for est. ³ For genutius.

§ 151. Bergmann, for de. 2 Mue.; exinde Turnebus; for et de.

§ 149. <sup>a</sup> Hist. Rom. Frag., page 79 Peter. <sup>b</sup> Traditionally built by the first Tarquin; cf. Livy, i. 38. 6. <sup>c</sup> Cf.

Livy, i. 10-13, especially i. 12. 9-10 and i. 13. 5.

<sup>§ 150. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Q. Lutatius Catulus, 152–87 B.C., consul 102 as colleague of Marius in the victory over the Cimbri at Vercellae; a writer on etymology and antiquities. <sup>b</sup> Hist. Rom. Frag., page 126 Peter; Gram. Rom. Frag., page 105 Funaioli. <sup>c</sup> C. Curtius Chilo and M. Genucius Augurinus were colleagues in the consulship in 445 B.C.

gap, horse and all; upon which the place closed up and gave his body a burial divinely approved, and left to his clan a lasting memorial.

149. Piso in his Annals a writes that in the Sabine War between Romulus and Tatius, a Sabine hero named Mettius Curtius, when Romulus with his men had charged down from higher ground and driven in the Sabines, got away into a swampy spot which at that time was in the Forum, before the sewers b had been made, and escaped from there to his own men on the Capitoline ; and from this the pool found its name.

150. Cornélius and Lutatius <sup>a</sup> write <sup>b</sup> that this place was struck by lightning, and by decree of the senate was fenced in: because this was done by the consul Curtius, <sup>e</sup> who had M. Genucius as his colleague, it was called the Lacus Curtius.

151. The arx a 'citadel,' from arcere' to keep off,' because this is the most strongly fortified place in the City, from which the enemy can most easily be kept away. The carcer b 'prison,' from coercere' to confine,' because those who are in it are prevented from going out. In this prison, the part which is under the ground is called the Tullianum, because it was added by King Tullius. Because at Syracuse the place where men are kept under guard on account of transgressions is called the Latomiae c'quarries,' from translatum, quod hic quoque in eo loco lapidicinae fuerunt.

<sup>§ 151. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup>The northern summit of the Capitoline, on which stood the temple of Juno Moneta. <sup>b</sup> Beneath the Arx, at the corner of the Forum; etymology wrong. <sup>c</sup> Greek λατομίαι, contracted from λαοτομίαι, which gave the Latin word; there were old tufa-quarries on the slopes of the Capitoline, and the excavation which formed the dungeon was probably a part of the quarry.

152. In 〈Aventi〉no¹ Lauretum ab eo quod ibi sepultus est Tatius rex, qui ab Laurentibus interfectus est, 〈aut〉² ab silva laurea, quod ea ibi excisa et aedificatus vicus: ut inter Sacram Viam et Macellum editum Corneta 〈a cornis〉,³ quae abscisae loco reliquerunt nomen, ut Aesculetum ab aesculo⁴ dictum et Fagutal a fago, unde etiam Iovis Fagutalis, quod ibi sacellum.

153. Armilustr\(\)i\vm^1 ab ambitu lustri: locus idem Circus Maximus² dictus, quod circum spectaculis aedificatus ubi³ ludi fiunt, et quod ibi circum metas fertur pompa et equi currunt. Itaque dictum in Cornicula\(\rac{\ria}\)^4 militis⁵ adventu, quem circumeunt ludentes:

Quid cessamus ludos facere? Circus noster ecce adest.

§ 152. <sup>1</sup> Groth, for in eo. <sup>2</sup> Added by Sciop. <sup>3</sup> Added by Aug., with B. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for escula.

§ 153. <sup>1</sup> For armilustrum. <sup>2</sup> Luetus, for mecinus. <sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for ibi. <sup>4</sup> Vertranius, for cornicula.

<sup>5</sup> Turnebus, for milites.

§ 152. <sup>a</sup> There is here a lacuna, or else the in eo of the manuscripts stands for in Aventino; for the Lauretum was on the Aventine.

§ 153. <sup>a</sup> The word denotes both the ceremony, held on October 19, and the place where it was performed, which seems originally to have been on the Aventine; according to Varro, it was later held in the Circus, in the valley between the Aventine and the Palatine. According to Servius, in Aen. i. 283, the name was ambilustrum, so called because the ceremony was not legal unless performed by both (ambo) censors jointly; it is possible that the word should be so emended here and at vi. 22. <sup>b</sup> Circum is merely the ac-that the word was taken over as lautumia, because here also in this place there were formerly stone-quarries.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 151-153

152. On the Aventine a is the Lauretum 'Laurel-Grove,' called from the fact that King Tatius was buried there, who was killed by the Laurentes' Laurentines,' or else from the laurea' laurel' wood, because there was one there which was cut down and a street run through with houses on both sides: just as between the Sacred Way and the higher part of the Macellum are the Corneta 'Cornel-Cherry Groves,' from corni 'cornel-cherry trees,' which though cut away left their name to the place; just as the Aesculetum 'Oak-Grove' is named from aesculus 'oak-tree,' and the Fagutal 'Beech-tree Shrine' from fagus 'beech-tree,' whence also Jupiter Fagutalis' of the Boech-tree,' because his shrine is there.

153. Armilustrium a 'purification of the arms,' from the going around of the lustrum 'purificatory offering'; and the same place is called the Circus Maximus, because, being the place where the games are performed, it is built up circum b 'round about' for the shows, and because there the procession goes and the horses race circum 'around' the turning-posts. Thus in The Story of the Helmet-Horn c the following is said at the coming of the soldier, whom they encircle and make fun of :

Why do we refrain from making sport? See, here's our circus-ring.

cusative of circus. <sup>c</sup> Frag. I of Plautus's Cornicularia, which may be taken as the Story of the Corniculum, a horn-shaped ornament on the helmet, bestowed for bravery; here apparently assumed by a braggart soldier, the miles of the text.

In circo primum unde mittuntur equi, nunc dicuntur carceres, Naevius oppidum appellat. Carceres dicti, quod coercentur<sup>6</sup> equi, ne inde exeant antequam magistratus signum misit. Quod a\langle muri speciem<sup>7</sup> pinnis<sup>8</sup> turribusque<sup>9</sup> carceres olim fuerunt, scripsit poeta:

Dictator ubi currum insidit, pervehitur usque ad oppidum.

154. Intumus circus ad Murciae¹ vocatur,² ut Procilius aiebat, ab urceis, quod is locus esset inter figulos; alii dicunt a murteto declinatum, quod ibi id fuerit; cuius vestigium manet, quod ibi est sacellum etiam nunc Murteae Veneris. Item simili de causa Circus Flaminius dicitur, qui circum aedificatus est Flaminium Campum, et quod ibi quoque Ludis Tauriis equi circum metas currunt.

155. Comitium ab eo quod coibant eo comitiis curiatis et litium causa.¹ Curiae duorum generum: nam et ubi curarent sacerdotes res divinas, ut² curiae

<sup>6</sup> p, Ed. Veneta (cohercentur Laetus), for coercuntur.
 <sup>7</sup> Mue., for a muris partem.
 <sup>8</sup> Laetus, for pennis.
 <sup>9</sup> Aug., for turribus qui.

 $\S$  154.  $^1$  L. Sp., for murcim Fv.  $^2$  Sciop., for uocatum.  $\S$  155.  $^1$  Mue.; caussa Aug., with B; causae Fv.  $^2$  For et.

<sup>d</sup> Merely the plural of carcer 'prison'; not related to coercere. <sup>e</sup> Naevius, Comic. Rom. Frag., inc. fab. II Ribbeck3; R.O.L. ii. 148-149 Warmington.

§ 154. <sup>a</sup> Hist. Rom. Frag., page 3 Peter. <sup>b</sup> Page 116 Funaioli. <sup>c</sup> In the level ground of the Campus Martius, through which C. Flaminius Nepos as censor in 220 B.c. built the Via Flaminia, the great highway from Rome to the north, and near it the Circus Flaminius; he was consul in 217 and was killed in the battle with Hannibal at Lake

In the Circus, the place from which the horses are let go at the start, is now called the Carceres 'Prisonstalls,' but Naevius called it the Town. Carceres  $^d$  was said, because the horses coercentur ' are held in check,' that they may not go out from there before the official has given the sign. Because the Stalls were formerly adorned with pinnacles and towers like a wall, the poet wrote  $^e$ :

When the Dictator mounts his car, he rides the whole way to the Town.

154. The very centre of the Circus is called ad Murciae 'at Murcia's,' as Procilius a said, from the urcei 'pitchers,' because this spot was in the potters' quarter; others b say that it is derived from murtetum 'myrtle-grove,' because that was there: of which a trace remains in that the chapel of Venus Murtea of the Myrtle is there even to this day. Likewise for a similar reason the Circus Flaminius Flaminian Circus' got its name, for it is built circum around the Flaminian Plain, and there also the horses race circum around the turning-posts at the Taurian Games d

155. The Comitium 'Assembly-Place' was named from this, that to it they coibant' came together' for the comitia curiata a 'curiate meetings' and for lawsuits. The curiae b 'meeting-houses' are of two kinds: for there are those where the priests were to attend to affairs of the gods, like the old meeting-

Trasumennus. d Games in honour of the deities of the netherworld.

§ 155. a Long before Varro's time, practically replaced by the comitia centuriata. b Curia denoted first a group of gentes; then a meeting-place for such groups; then any meeting-place.

veteres, et ubi senatus humanas, ut Curia Hostilia, quod primus aedificavit Hostilius rex. Ante hanc Rostra; cuius id vocabulum, ex hostibus capta fixa sunt rostra; sub dextra huius a Comitio locus substructus, ubi nationum subsisterent legati qui ad senatum essent missi; is Graecostasis appellatus a parte, ut multa.

156. Senaculum supra Graecostasim, ubi Aedis Concordiae et Basilica Opimia; Senaculum vocatum, ubi senatus aut ubi seniores consisterent, dictum ut  $\gamma \epsilon \rho o v \sigma i a^1$  apud Graecos. Lautolae ab lavando, quod ibi ad Ianum Geminum aquae caldae fuerunt. Ab his palus fuit in Minore Velabro, a quo, quod ibi vehebantur lintribus,² velabrum, ut illud de quo supra dictum est.

157. Aequimaelium, quod a(e) quata¹ Maeli domus publice,² quod regnum occupare voluit is. Locus ad Busta Gallica, quod Roma recuperata Gallorum ossa

§ 156. <sup>1</sup> Rhol., for ierusia (gerusia G). <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for luntribus Fv.

§ 157. <sup>1</sup> Rhol., for aquata. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for publico.

<sup>c</sup> The third king of Rome; for his building of the curia, see Livy, i. 30. 2. <sup>d</sup> This was the old stand, erected at least one hundred years before it was decorated in 338 by C. Maenius with six beaks of war-vessels taken in a battle with Antium; cf. Livy, viii. 14. 8. <sup>e</sup> Presumably because the Greeks were the first to send such embassies; when other nations began to send them, the name of the place had been established.

§ 156. <sup>a</sup> As the two stands were at the foot of the Capitoline and the end of the Forum, the senaculum must have lain just in front of them. <sup>b</sup> Those over forty-six years of age, in distinction from the iuniores. <sup>c</sup> This temple lay apparently a little to the east of the Comitium, at the side of the Forum or slightly away from it. <sup>d</sup> The tense of fuerunt and fuit indicates that the hot springs and the pool were no longer there in Varro's time. <sup>e</sup> Cf. v. 43-44.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 155-157

houses, and those where the senate should attend to affairs of men, like the Hostilian Meeting-House, so called because King Hostilius <sup>c</sup> was the first to build it. In front of this is the Rostra 'Speaker's Stand'<sup>a</sup>: of which this is the name—the rostra 'beaks' taken from the enemy's ships have been fastened to it. A little to the right of it, in the direction of the Comitium, is a lower platform, where the envoys of the nations who had been sent to the senate were to wait; this, like many things, was called from a part of it, being named the Graecostasis 'Stand of the Greeks.' <sup>e</sup>

'Senate-Stand,' where the Temple of Concord and the Basilica Opimia are; it was called Senaculum as a place where the senate or the seniores b' elders' were to take their places, named like γερουσία 'assembly of elders' among the Greeks. Lautolae baths,' from lavare to wash,' because there near the Double Janus there once were that springs. From these there was a pool in the Lesser Velabrum, from which fact it was called velabrum because there they vehebantur were conveyed by skiffs, like that greater Velabrum of which mention has been made above.

157. The Aequimaelium' Maelius-Flat,' because the house of Maelius was aequata 'laid flat' by the state since he wished to seize the power and be king.<sup>a</sup> The place Ad Busta Gallica' At the Gauls' Tombs,' because on the recovery of Rome the bones of the Gauls who qui possederunt urbem ibi coacervata ac consepta. Locus qui vocatur Doliola ad Cluacam Maxumam, ubi non licet despuere, a doliolis sub terra. Eorum duae traditae historiae, quod alii inesse aiunt ossa cadaverum, alii Numae Pompilii religiosa quaedam post mortem eius infossa. Argiletum³ sunt qui scripserunt ab Argo La⟨ri⟩saeo,⁴ quod is huc venerit ibique sit sepultus, alii ab argilla, quod ibi id genus terrae sit.

<sup>§ 157. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Spurius Maelius, suspected of aiming at royal power, was slain by C. Servilius Ahala, magister equitum, in 439 B.c., by direction of the dictator L. Quinctius Cincinnatus; cf. Livy, iv. 13-14.

158. Clivos Public(i)us¹ ab aedilibus plebei Publici(i)s qui eum publice aedificarunt. Simili de causa Pullius et Cosconius, quod ab his viocuris dicuntur aedificati. Clivus Proximus a Flora susus² versus Capitolium vetus, quod ibi sacellum Iovis Iunonis Minervae, et id antiquius quam aedis quae in Capitolio facta.

159. Esquiliis¹ Vicus Africus, quod ibi obsides ex Africa bello Punico dicuntur custoditi. Vicus Cyprius a cypro, quod ibi Sabini cives additi consederunt, qui Laetus, for argeletum.

 Kent, for argola seu.
 158.
 Aug., for publicus.
 Victorius and Turnebus, for a floras usus.
 159.
 For exquiliis.

&lt;sup>b</sup> In 390 (or 388?) B.c.; cf. Livy, v. 37 ff. c Livy, v. 40. 8, and Festus, 69. 8 M., say that the burial of the sacred objects was at the time of the Gallic invasion. d A street along-side the Comitium; clearly 'Clay-pit,' from argilla, but commonly understood as Argi letum 'death of Argus.' According to Servius in Aen. viii. 345, Argus was murdered while he was a guest of Evander; Evander gave him honourable burial. Page 115 Funaioli. My suggestion for the impossible argola seu of the text is based on the fact that both Argus the guardian of Io and Argus the son of Niobe were connected with the city Argos, whose citadel had held Rome b were heaped up there and fenced in. The place near the Cloaca Maxima which is called Doliola 'The Jars,' where spitting is prohibited, from some doliola 'jars' that were buried under the earth. Two stories about these are handed down: some say that bones of dead men were in them, others that certain sacred objects belonging to Numa Pompilius were buried in them after his death. The Argiletum, according to some writers, was named from Argus of Larisa, because he came to this place and was buried there; according to others, from the argilla 'clay,' because this kind of earth is found at this place.

158. The Clivus a Publicius 'Publician Incline,' from the members of the Publician gens b who as plebeian aediles constructed it by state authority. For like reasons the Clivus Pullius and the Clivus Cosconius, because they are said to have been constructed by men of these names as Street-Overseers. The Incline Next-To-Flora is up towards the old Capitol, because there is in that place a chapel of Jupiter, Juno, and Minerva, and this is older than the temple which has been built on the Capitol.

159. On the Esquiline there is a Vicus Africus 'African Row,' because there, it is said, the hostages from Africa in the Punic War were kept under guard. The Vicus Cyprius' Good Row,' from cyprum, because there the Sabines who were taken in as citizens settled, and they named it from the good omen:

was named Larisa or Larissa; and Evander's guest may well have been represented as coming thence.

§ 158. <sup>a</sup> A street running steeply up a hill. <sup>b</sup> Two brothers Lucius and Marcus Publicius Malleolus, according to Festus, 238 b 28 M.

a bono omine id appellarunt: nam cyprum Sabine bonum. Prope hunc Vicus Sceleratus, dictus a Tullia Tarquini Superbi uxore, quod ibi cum iaceret pater occisus, supra eum carpentum mulio ut inigeret<sup>2</sup> iussit.

XXXIII. 160. Quoniam vicus constat ex domibus, nunc earum¹ vocabula vide⟨a⟩mus.² Domus Graecum et ideo in aedibus sacris ante cellam, ubi sedes dei sunt, Graeci dicunt πρόδομον,³ quod po⟨s⟩t est,⁴ ὀπισθόδομ⟨ον⟩.⁵ Aedes ab aditu, quod plano pede adibant. Itaque ex aedibus efferri indictivo funere praeco etiam eos dicit qui ex tabernis efferuntur, et omnes in censu villas inde ⟨de⟩dicamus aedes.

161. Cavum aedium dictum qui locus tectus intra parietes relinquebatur patulus, qui esset ad commounem omnium usum. In hoc locus si nullus relictus erat, sub divo qui esset, dicebatur testudo ab testudinis similitudine, ut est in praetorio et castris. Si relictum erat in medio ut lucem caperet, deorsum quo impluebat, dictum impluium, susum qua compluebat, compluium: utrumque a pluvia. Tuscanicum dictum a Tuscis, posteaquam illorum cavum § 161. Aug., with B, for carperet Fv.

§ 160. <sup>a</sup> Latin domus is akin to, not derived from, Greek δόμοs. <sup>b</sup> Wrong; an aedes is a building with a fireplace, Ursinus, for iniceret.

 § 160. ¹ p, Aug., for eorum. ² For uidemus Fv.
 For prodomum Fv. ⁴ GS.; post Victorius; for potest.
 Victorius, for opisthodum Fv. ⁶ For aedis. ¬ Aug., with B, for inductiuo. № Mue., for inde dicamus.

<sup>§ 159. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The Sabine word for 'good' was cupro-; and Vicus Cyprius, if correctly written, must mean 'Cyprian Row' or 'Copper Row.' <sup>b</sup> Cf. Livy, i. 48. 7. § 160. <sup>a</sup> Latin domus is akin to, not derived from, Greek

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 159-161

for cyprum means 'good' in Sabine.<sup>a</sup> Near this is the Vicus Sceleratus 'Accursed Row,' named from Tullia wife of Tarquin the Proud, because when her father was lying dead in it she ordered her muleteer to drive her carriage on over his body.b

XXXIII. 160. Since a Row consists of houses, let us now look at the names of these. Domus 'house' is a Greek word, a and therefore in the temples the room in front of the hall where the abode of the god is the Greeks call  $\pi\rho\delta\delta\rho\mu$  'front room,' and that which is behind they call  $\partial\pi\omega\theta\delta\delta\rho\mu$  'because they adibant' approached' it on level footing. Therefore the herald at an announced funeral says that those who are carried out of any building made of boards, are carried ex aedibus' from the house'; and all the country-houses in the census-list we from that fact call aedes.

161. The cavum aedium 'inner court' is said of the roofed part which is left open within the house-walls, for common use by all. If in this no place was left which is open to the sky, it was called a testudo 'tortoise' from the likeness to the testudo, as it is at the general's headquarters and in the camps. If some space was left in the centre to get the light, the place into which the rain fell down was called the impluvium, and the place where it ran together up above was called the compluvium; both from pluvia 'rain.' The Tuscanicum 'Tuscan-style' was named from the Tusci 'Etruscans,' after the Romans

ef. Greek aiθew 'to blaze.' Because such villae were wooden buildings, and normally owned by Romans whose prominence would authorize them to have publicly announced funerals.

aedium simulare coeperunt. Atrium appellatum ab Atriatibus Tuscis: illinc enim exemplum sumptum.

162. Circum cavum aedium erat unius cuiusque rei utilitatis causa parietibus dissepta: ubi quid conditum esse volebant, a celando cellam appellarunt; penariam ubi penus; ubi cubabant cubiculum; ubi cenabant cenaculum vocitabant, ut etiam nunc Lanuvi apud aedem Iunonis et in cetero Latio ac Faleri(i)s et Cordubae dicuntur. Posteaquam in superiore parte cenitare coeperunt, superioris domus universa cenacula dicta; posteaguam ubi cenabant plura facere coeperunt, ut in castris ab hieme hiberna, hibernum domus vocarunt: contraria...

HIC DEFECIT EXEMPLAR FOLIIS DUOBUS1

XXXIV. 163. . . . (quam re)ligionem¹ Porcius designat cum de Ennio scribens dicit eum coluisse Tutilinae loca. Sequitur Porta Naevia, quod in nemoribus Naeviis2: etenim loca, ubi ea, sic dicta.

§ 162. 1 Thus Fv.

§ 163. Aug., for ligionem. Laetus, for naevius.

§ 162. a In Spain, the modern Cordova. doubtless stated that a dining-room for summer use was called an aestivum.

§ 163. a The lost passage concluded with an account of the gates of the wall of Servius Tullius; the extant text resumes just at the end of this description, giving the gates on the Aventine. b Page 44 Huschke. Porcius Licinus was a poet who flourished about 100 B.C. or slightly earlier. <sup>c</sup> Ennius lived on the Aventine; according to Varro, near <sup>§ 161.</sup> a Atrium either from Atria, as Varro states, or from ater 'black,' because the roof was blackened by the smoke from the hearth-fire, which originally had to escape by the opening in the roof.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 161-163

began to imitate their style of inner court. The atrium 'reception hall' was named a from the Etruscans of Atria; for from them the model was taken.

by walls, making rooms useful for different purposes: where they wished something to be stored away, they called it a cella 'store-room,' from celare 'to conceal'; a penaria 'food-pantry,' where penus 'food' was kept; a cubiculum 'sleeping-chamber,' where they cubabant 'lay down' for rest; where they cenabant 'dined,' they called it a cenaculum 'dining-room,' as even now such rooms are named at Lanuvium in the Temple of Juno, in the rest of Latium, at Falerii, and at Corduba. After they began to take dinner upstairs, all the rooms of the upper story were called cenacula; still later, when they began to have several rooms for dining, they called one the hibernum 'winter-room' of the house, as in camps they speak of the hiberna 'winter camp,' from hiems' winter'; and on the other hand . . . b

HERE THE MODEL COPY LACKED TWO LEAVES

XXXIV. 163.<sup>a</sup> . . . which worship Porcius <sup>b</sup> means when, speaking of Ennius, he says that he dwelt in the locality of Tutilina.<sup>c</sup> Next comes the Naevian Gate, <sup>d</sup> so called because it is in the Naevian Woods: for the locality where it is, is called by this name. Then the Porta Rauduscula <sup>e</sup> 'Copper Gate,' the sanctuary of Tutilina, a goddess of protection. This must be near the Porta Capena or somewhat to the west of it, in the circuit of the Servian walls, before reaching the Porta Naevia.

don the south-east slope of the Aventine. or Raudusculana, whereby the road led over the central depression of the Aventine to the Ostian road.

VARRO

Deinde Rauduscula, quod aerata fuit. Aes raudus dictum; ex eo³ veteribus in mancipiis scriptum:

Raudusculo libram ferito.

Hinc Lavernalis ab ara Lavernac, quod ibi ara eius.

164. Praeterea intra muros video portas dici in Palatio Mucionis a mugitu, quod ea pecus in buceta tum (ante) antiquum¹ oppidum exigebant; alteram Romanulam, ab Roma dictam, quae habet gradus in Nova Via² ad Volupiae sacellum.

165. Tertia est Ianualis, dicta ab Iano, et ideo ibi positum Iani signum et ius institutum a Pompilio, ut scribit in Annalibus Piso, ut sit aperta semper, nisi cum bellum sit nusquam. Traditum est memoriae Pompilio rege fuisse opertam¹ et post Tito Manlio² consule bello Carthaginiensi primo confecto, et eodem anno apertam.

XXXV. 166. Super lectulis origines quas adverti, hae: lectica, quod legebant unde eam¹ facerent

3 After co, L. Sp. deleted in.

§ 164. ¹ L. Sp., for bucitatum antiquum (bucita tum Scaliger). ² Scaliger, for noualia.

§ 165. <sup>1</sup> Scaliger, for apertam. <sup>2</sup> Aug. (manlio B), for titio manilio.

§ 166. 1 Victorius, for iam.

The oldest "money" consisted of slabs or bars of aes rude rough copper, to which reference is here made. A goddess of the netherworld, patroness of thieves; the location of the gate with her altar is not known.

§ 164. <sup>a</sup> The three gates in the old walls of the Palatine. <sup>b</sup> Or Porta Mugonia; in the divine name Mucio the C has the early value of g. This gate was at the top of the Nova Via. <sup>c</sup> Leading up from the foot of the Nova Via. <sup>d</sup> A goddess of pleasure.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 163-166

because it was at one time covered with copper. Copper is called raudus; from this the ancients had it written in their formula for symbolic sales:

Let him strike the balance-pan with a piece of raudus.'

From here, the Lavernal Gate, from the altar of Laverna, because her altar is there.

164. Besides, inside the walls, I see, there are gates <sup>a</sup> on the Palatine: the Gate of Mucio, <sup>b</sup> from mugitus 'lowing,' because by it they drove the herds out into the cow-pastures which were then in front of the ancient town; a second called the Romanula 'Little Roman,' named from Rome, which has steps <sup>c</sup>

in New Street at the Chapel of Volupia.d

165. The third gate is the Janual Gate, named from Janus, and therefore a statue of Janus <sup>a</sup> was set up there, and the binding practice was instituted by Pompilius, as Piso <sup>b</sup> writes in his Annals, that the gate should always be open except when there was no war anywhere. The story that has come down to us is that it was closed when Pompilius was king, and afterwards when Titus Manlius was consul, at the end of the first war with Carthage, and then opened again in the same year.<sup>c</sup>

XXXV. 166. On the subject of beds,<sup>a</sup> the origins of the names, so far as I have observed them, are the following: Lectica 'couch,' because they legebant

§ 166. a Lectus, lectulus, lectica, all from a root meaning to lie, not otherwise found in Latin, but seen in English lie and lay, and in Greek.

<sup>§ 165. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The archway of Janus, placed at the end of the Argiletum where it debouched into the Forum; cf. Livy, i. 19.2. <sup>b</sup> Hist. Rom. Frag., page 79 Peter. <sup>c</sup> In 235 B.c.; but it was closed three times in the reign of Augustus.

VARRO

stramenta atque herbam, ut etiam nunc fit in castris; lecticas, ne essent in terra, sublimis in his ponebant; nisi ab eo quod Graeci antiqui dicebant λέκτρον lectum potius. Qui<sup>3</sup> lecticam involvebant, quod fere stramenta erant e segete, segestria appellarunt, ut etiam nunc in castris, nisi si a Graecis: nam στέγαστρον ibi.4 Lectus mortui (quod) fertur, dicebant feretrum nostri, Graeci φέρετρον.

167. Posteaquam transierunt ad culcitas, quod in eas acus1 aut tomentum aliudve quid calcabant, ab inculcando culcita dicta. Hoc quicquid insternebant ab sternendo stragulum appellabant. Pulvinar vel a plumis vel a pellulis² declinarunt. Quibus operibantur, operimenta, et pallia opercula dixerunt. In his multa peregrina, ut sagum, reno Gallica, ut3 gaunaca4 et amphimallum Graeca; contra Latinum toral,5 ante torum, et torus a torto,6 quod is in promptu.

<sup>2</sup> Aug., for terras. <sup>3</sup> Ed. Veneta, for quam. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp.,

for ubi. <sup>5</sup> Added by L. Sp. § 167. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for ea sagus. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for a pluribus uel a pollulis. <sup>3</sup> GS.; gallica Turnebus; for galli quid. <sup>4</sup> GS.; gaunacum Scaliger, for gaunacuma. A. Sp.; toral quod Aug.; torale quod Aldus; for tore 6 Meursius, for toruo. uel.

&lt;sup>b</sup> That is, on additional straw and grass (if the text be correct). From the Greek, with dissimilative loss of the d The standing grain; then, the stems of the grain-plants, not merely of wheat. From the Greek word, which is from  $\phi \epsilon \rho \omega$  'I bear.' § 167. Wrong.  $^b Hoc=huc$  'into this.' From

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 166-167

' gathered' the straw-coverings and the grass with which to make them, as even now is done in camp; these couches, that they might not be on the earth, they raised up on these materials  $^b$ ;—unless rather from the fact that the ancient Greeks called a bed a λέκτρον. Those who covered up a couch, called the coverings segestria,  $^c$  because the coverings in general were made from the seges  $^d$  'wheat-stalks,' as even now is done in the camp; unless the word is from the Greeks, for there it is στέγαστρον. Because the bed of a dead man fertur 'is carried,' our ancestors called it a feretrum  $^e$  'bier,' and the Greeks called it a φέρετρον.

167. After they had passed to the use of culcitae 'mattresses and pillows,' because into them they calcabant' pressed' chaff or stuffing or something else, the article was called a culcita from inculcare' to press in.' a Whatever they spread upon this, b they called a stragulum 'cover' from sternere' to spread.' The pulvinar c' cushioned seat of honour' they derived either from plumae feathers' or from pellulae furs.' That with which they operibantur were covered,' they called operimenta covers,' and pallia covers of a Greek sort' they called opercula. Among these there are many foreign words, such as sagum 'soldier's blanket' and reno 'cloak of reindeer skin,' which are Gallic, and gaunaca d' heavy Oriental cloak' and amphimallum 'cloak shaggy on both sides,' which are Greek; and on the other hand toral valance,' in front of the torus' bolster,' is Latin, and so in torus' bolster,' from tortum 'twisted,' because it is ready for pulvinus 'pillow,' a word of undetermined origin.

d Correct sources; but gaunaca came into Greek from Persian.

Ab hac similitudine torulus? in mulieris capite ornatus.

168. Qua simplici scansione scandebant in lectum non altum, scabellum; in altiorem, scamnum. Duplicata scansio gradus dicitur, quod gerit in inferiore superiorem. Graeca sunt peristromata et peripetasmata, sic ali\(\alpha\) quae item convivii causa ibi multa.

XXXVI. 169.¹ Pecuniae signatae vocabula sunt aeris et argenti haec: as ab aere; dupondius ab² duobus ponderibus, quod unum pondus assipondium dicebatur; id ideo quod as erat libra pondo.³ Deinde ab numero reliquum dictum usque ad centussis,⁴ ut as⁵ singulari numero, ab tribus assibus tressis, et sic proportione usque ad nonussis.

170. In denario numero hoc mutat, quod primum est ab decem assibus decussis, secundum ab duobus decussibus vicessis,¹ quod dici sol⟨it⟩um² a duobus § 168. 1 M, Laetus, for alium. 2 Laetus, for inferiora.

<sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for aliquid.

§ 169. ¹ Priscian, iii. 410. 10 Keil, quotes from this point, beginning with multa at the end of § 168, placed with § 169 by wrong division; he continues through decuma libella in the first line of § 174. As the best manuscript of Priscian is at least three centuries older than F of Varro, his text is useful here, though it omits some words and phrases, and has one considerable insertion. ² Priscian, for a. ³ Gronov., for pondus. ⁴ Priscian has centussem. ⁵ After as, Laetus deleted a.

§ 170. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for bicessis. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for solum.

<sup>7</sup> Aug., for tornins.

Wrong; he apparently means that the torus, a bolster originally of twisted rushes, was ready when it was properly 158 use. From likeness f to this is named the torulus 'knob,' an ornament on a woman's head.

by a single scansio 'step' into a bed that was not high, they called a scabellum 'bed step'; that by which they mounted into a higher bed, a scamnum 'bed steps.' A double step is called a gradus 'pace,' because it gerit 'carries' a higher step on the lower. bed peristromata 'bedspreads' and peripetasmata 'bedcurtains' are Greek words, so are other things which are used for banquets as well—and of them there are quite a number.

XXXVI. 169. The names of stamped money of bronze and silver are the following: as a from aes copper; dupondius two-as piece from duo pondera two weights, because one weight was called an assipondium as piece; this for the reason that an as was a libra unit pondo by weight. From this the rest were named from the number up to centussis one hundred asses, as when the number is one, tressis from three asses, and so by regular analogy up to nonussis in piece asses.

170. At the number ten this changes, because first there is the decussis from decem asses 'ten asses,' second the vicessis a 'twenty asses' from two decusses, which twisted, like a tormentum or piece of artillery which was ready to fire when the ropes, its source of propulsion, had been twisted.

<sup>f</sup> That is, similarity in shape.

<sup>g</sup> The shape in which the hair was arranged.

§ 168. Wrong etymology; but scabellum is a diminu-tive of scamnum. b Wrong.

§ 169. a Not from aes, but a word borrowed from some unknown source. The etymologies from here on through § 174 are correct except as noted.

§ 170. a Properly from viginti 'twenty,' vicies 'twenty times.'

VARRO

bicessis; reliqua conveniunt, quod est ut tricessis³ proportione usque ad centussis, quo maius aeris proprium vocabulum non est: nam ducenti⟨s⟩ et sic⁴ proportione quae dicuntur non magis asses quam denarii aliaeve quae⁵ res significantur.

171. Aeris minima pars sextula, quod sexta pars unciae. Semuncia, quod dimidia pars unciae:  $se^1$  valet dimidium, ut in selibra et semodio. Uncia ab uno. Sextans ab eo quod sexta pars assis, ut quadrans quod quarta, et triens quod tertia pars. Semis, quod semi(a)s,² id est³ dimidium assis, ut supra dictum est. Septunx a septem et uncia conclusum.

172. Reliqua obscuriora, quod ab deminutione, et ea quae deminuuntur ita sunt, ut extremas syllabas habeant: ut (un)de una¹ dempta uncia deunx, b It is hardly likely that vicessis became bicessis (influenced by 'two' in the form bi- as prefix) until the confusion of B and V in pronunciation; this began about a century after Varro wrote this work. The clause therefore seems to be an interpolation. b After centussis, Priscian inserts: quod et Persius ostendit et centum Graecos uno centusse licetur, and on one hundred Greeks he sets the value of just one hundred asses. The quotation is Persius, 5. 191, where the text has curto clipped instead of uno.

<sup>3</sup> Priscian, for tricensis. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp.; ducenti et sic Priscian; for ducenti in. <sup>5</sup> alieuae quae Fv; aliacque Priscian. § 171. <sup>1</sup> Bentinus, for sic. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for semis. <sup>3</sup> After est, Laetus deleted ut, which Priscian also omits. § 172. <sup>1</sup> ut unde una Kent; unde una Mue.; for ut de una (Priscian omits ut de).

§ 171. <sup>a</sup> Apparently named as the smallest coin, one seventy-second of the as; but no such coin is actually attested. <sup>b</sup> Really semi-, with the vowel clided: sem-uncia.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 170-172

is customarily pronounced bicessis, from duo 'two' b; the rest harmonize, in that the formation is like tricessis regularly up to centussis, c after which there is no special word for larger sums of copper money: for ducenti 'two hundred' and higher numbers which are made analogically do not indicate asses any more than they do denarii or any other things.

171. The smallest piece of copper is a sextula, a so named because it is the sexta 'sixth' part of an ounce. The semuncia 'half-ounce,' because it is the half of an ounce: se equals dimidium 'half,' b as in selibra c'half-pound' and semodius 'half-peck.' Uncia 'ounce,' from unum' one.' Sextans 'sixth,' from the fact that it is the sixth part of an as, as the quadrans 'fourth' is that which is a fourth, and the triens 'third' that which is a third. Semis 'half-as,' because it is a semi-as, that is, the half of an as, as has been said above. The septunx 'seven ounces,' contracted from septem and uncia.

172. The remaining words are less clear, because they are expressed by subtraction, and those elements from which the subtraction is made are such that they keep their last syllables <sup>a</sup>: as that from which one dempta uncia 'ounce is taken,' is a deunx 'eleven twelfths'; if a sextans is taken away, it is a dextans

<sup>c</sup> Se-libra after the model of se-modius, which is for semi-modius, with loss of one of the two similar syllables. <sup>d</sup> For oinikia, as unus is from oinos; the ounce was one twelfth of the as 'pound.' <sup>e</sup> Quincunx, from quinque and uncia, is expected here, and may have fallen out of the text.

§ 172. <sup>a</sup> The "keeping of the last syllables" is seen in de-(es)ztans, in de-(qua)drans becoming dodrans, in de-(tri)es becoming des. In reality, des or bes is for duo assis, short for duo partes assis 'two parts (that is, two thirds) of an as,' with various phonetic changes.

VARRÔ

dextans dempto sextante, dodrans dempto quadrante, bes, ut olim des, dempto triente.

173. In argento nummi, id ab Siculis: denarii, quod¹ denos aeris valebant; quinarii, quod quinos; sestertius,² quod semis tertius. Dupondius enim et semis antiquus sestertius²: est et veteris consuetudinis, ut retro aere dicerent, ita ut semis tertius, ⟨semis⟩³ quartus, semis ⟨quintus⟩³ pronuntiarent. Ab semis tertius ⟨sestertius⟩⁴ dictus.

174. Nummi denarii decuma libella, quod libram pondo as valebat et erat ex argento parva. Simbella, quod libellae dimidium, quod semis assis. Terruncius a tribus unciis, quod libellae ut haec quarta pars, sic quadrans assis.

175. Eadem pecunia vocabulum mutat: nam potest item dici dos, arrabo, merces, corollarium. Dos, si nuptiarum causa data; haec Graece δωτίνη: ita enim hoc Siculi. Ab eodem donum: nam Graece

§ 173. <sup>1</sup> After quod, Ed. Veneta deleted a repeated denarii quod (omitted by Priscian). <sup>2</sup> For sextertius Fv. <sup>3</sup> Added by GS., following Priscian. <sup>4</sup> Added by L. Sp., following Priscian.

<sup>§ 173. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Not connected with as or aes. <sup>b</sup> The customary unit of Roman business; in Varro's time, worth about 3½d. sterling, or $0.07 (standard of 1936). <sup>c</sup> After a number of reductions, the copper as was in 217 B.c. reduced to one ounce of metal; at the same time the silver denarius was fixed at ten asses, and the sestertius at four asses. <sup>a</sup> "The third half-as" implies that the first two asses were complete while the third was not, as though "two asses and the third half-as"; cf. German drittehalb '2½,' and similar formations.

<sup>§ 174.</sup> a Diminutive of libra, because of small bulk as

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 172-175

'five sixths'; if a quadrans is taken away, it is a dodrans; it is a bes' two thirds,' or as it once was, a des, if a triens is demptus 'taken off.'

173. In silver, there are coins called nummi, this word from the Sicilians: denarii, because they were worth deni aeris 'ten asses of copper'; quinarii, because they were worth quini 'five asses each'; and the sestertius b' sesterce, so called because it is semis tertius 'the third half-as.' For the old-time sesterce was a dupondius and a semis; it is also a part of ancient practice, that they should speak of coin in reverse order, so that they named them the semis tertius 'two and a half asses,' semis quartus 'the fourth half, three and a half asses' semis quintus 'the fifth half, four and a half asses.' From semis tertius they said sestertius.

174. The tenth part of a numnus denarius 'silver coin of ten asses' is a libella, a because the as was worth a pound by weight, and the as of silver was a small one. The simbella b is so called because it is the half of a libella, as the semis is half of an as. The terruncius c' three-ounce piece, from tres unciae three ounces, because as this is the fourth part of a libella, so the quadrans is the fourth of an as.

175. This same money changes its name: for it can likewise be called dos 'dower,' arrabo 'earnestmoney,' merces 'wages,' corollarium 'bonus.' Dos a 'dower,' if it is given for the purpose of a marriage; this in Greek is  $\delta\omega\tau^i\nu\eta$ , for thus the Sicilians call it. From the same comes donum 'gift'; for in Greek it compared with the libra of aes. b Or perhaps sembella; for sem(i-li)bella. c The first element is ter three times; (earlier terr if before a vowel).

§ 175. A native Latin word, akin to donum and the Greek words.

ut  $\langle \text{Aeol} \rangle$  is  $\delta \delta \nu \epsilon \iota \sigma \nu^1$  et ut alii  $\delta \delta \mu a$  et ut Attici  $\delta \delta \sigma \iota \nu$ . Arrabo sic data, ut reliquum reddatur : hoc verbum item a Graeco  $\tilde{a} \tilde{\rho} \tilde{\rho} a \beta \tilde{\omega} \nu$ . Reliquum, quod ex eo quod debitum reliquum.

176. Damnum a demptione, cum minus re factum quam quanti constat. Lucrum ab luendo, si amplius quam ut exsolveret, quanti esset, (re)ceptum.¹ Detrimentum a detritu, quod ea quac trita minoris pretii. Ab eodem (tri)mento,² intertrimentum ab eo, quod duo quae inter se trita, et deminuta; a quo etiam in(ter)trigo³ dicta.

177. Multa ⟨e⟩a¹ pecunia quae a magistratu dicta, ut exigi posset ob peccatum; quod singulae dicuntur, appellatae eae multae,² ⟨et⟩³ quod olim v⟨i⟩num⁴ dicebant multam⁵: itaque cum ⟨in⟩⁶ dolium aut culleum vinum addunt rustici, prima urna addita dicunt etiam nunc. Poena a poeniendo aut quod post peccatum sequitur. Pretium, quod emptionis aestimationisve causa constituitur, dictum a peritis, quod hi soli facere possunt recte id.

§ 175. 1 Bergk, for issedonion.

§ 176. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for ceptum. <sup>2</sup> A. Sp., for ab eadem mente. <sup>3</sup> Bentinus, for intrigo (intrigo dicta et intertrigo B and Aug.).

§ 177. I Groth, for a. 2 Aug., for multas. 3 Added by Mue. 4 B, Laetus, for unum. 5 Goeschen, for multae. 6 Added by Aug., with B.

§ 176. a Wrong.

<sup>§ 177.</sup> a Multa 'fine,' possibly taken from Sabine, but probably from the root in mulcare 'to beat.' Varro seems to identify it with multae 'many,' supply perhaps pecuniae: the magistrate imposed one multa after another, just as the countrymen poured one multa of wine after another into is δόνειον with the Aeolians, and δόμα as others say it, and δόσις of the Athenians. Arrabo 'earnest-money,' when money is given on this stipulation, that a balance is to be paid: this word likewise is from the Greek, where it is  $\mathring{a}_{\rho}\mathring{\rho}a\beta\acute{\omega}v$ . Reliquum 'balance,' because it is the reliquum 'remainder' of what is owed.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 175-177

because it is the reliquum' remainder of what is owed. 176. Damnum' loss,' from demptio' taking away,' a when less is brought in by the sale of the object than it cost. Lucrum' profit' from luere' to set free,' if more is taken in than will exsolvere' release' the price at which it was acquired. Detrimentum' damage,' from detritus' rubbing off,' because those things which are trita' rubbed' are of less value. From the same trimentum comes intertrimentum' loss by attrition,' because two things which have been trita' rubbed' inter se' against each other' are also diminished; from which moreover intertrigo' chafing of the skin' is said.

177. A multa 'fine' is that money named by a magistrate, that it might be exacted on account of a transgression; because the fines are named one at a time, they are called multae as though 'many,' and because of old they called wine multa: thus when the countrymen put wine into a large jar or wine-skin, they even now call it a multa after the first pitcherful has been put in. Poena' penalty,' from poenire b' to punish' or because it follows post' after 'a transgression. Pretium' price' is that which is fixed for the purpose of purchase or of evaluation; it is named from the peritid' experts,' because these alone can set a price correctly.

the storage jars or skins. <sup>b</sup> Poena from Greek: poenire (classical punire) from poena. <sup>c</sup> As though from pone 'behind,'=post. <sup>d</sup> Wrong etymology.

178. Si quid datum pro opera aut opere, merces, a merendo. Quod manu factum erat et datum pro eo, manupretium, a manibus et pretio. Corollarium, si additum praeter quam quod debitum; eius vocabulum fictum a corollis, quod eae, cum placuerant actores, in scaena dari solitae. Praeda est ab hostibus capta, quod manu parta, ut parida praeda. Praemium a praeda, quod ob recte quid factum concessum.

179. Si datum quod reddatur, mutuum, quod

Siculi  $\mu \circ \hat{\imath} \tau \circ \nu$ : itaque scribit Sophron

Μοῖτον ἄντιμο <ν>.1

Et munus quod mutuo animo qui sunt dant officii causa; alterum munus, quod muniendi causa imperatum, a quo etiam municipes, qui una munus fungi debent, dicti.

180. Si es⟨t⟩¹ ea pecunia quae in iudicium² venit in litibus, sacramentum a sacro; qui³ petebat et qui infitiabatur,⁴ de aliis rebus ut⟨e⟩rque⁵ quingenos acris ad pont⟨ific⟩em⁵ deponebant, de aliis rebus item certo

§ 179. <sup>1</sup> Fay, with haplology, for Scaliger's ἀντίτιμον, for moeton antimo; cf. Hesychius, s.v. μοῖτοι.

§ 180. <sup>1</sup> A. Sp., for is. <sup>2</sup> For indicium. <sup>3</sup> For quis. <sup>4</sup> GS., for inficiabatur. <sup>5</sup> Aug., with B, for utrique. <sup>6</sup> Aug., for pontem.

§ 178. <sup>a</sup> Dubious etymology. <sup>b</sup> From the elements in pre-hendere 'to grasp.' <sup>e</sup> From prae+emere 'to take before (some one else).'

§ 180. <sup>a</sup> Probably because each party took a sacramentum 'oath' to the justice of his case when he made the deposit. <sup>b</sup> This depositing with the pontifex is not known from other

<sup>§ 179. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The two words are connected, but the Latin is not from the Sicilian. <sup>b</sup> Fragment 168 Kaibel; the text is uncertain. <sup>c</sup> Munus, mutuus, munire, municeps all have the same root. <sup>d</sup> Including (kind) services and favours. <sup>e</sup> Apparently obligatory citizen service on streets and walls. <sup>f</sup> Citizens of a municipium.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, V. 178-180

178. If any payment is made for services or for labour, it is merces 'wages,' from merere 'to earn.' a What was done by hand and what was paid for the work, were both called manupretium 'workmanship' and 'workman's pay,' from manūs 'hands' and pretium 'price.' Corollarium 'bonus,' if anything is added beyond what is due; this word was made from corollae' garlands,' because the spectators were in the habit of throwing flowers on the stage when they liked the actors' performance. Praeda b' booty' is that which has been taken from the enemy, because it is parta' won' by the work of the hands: praeda as though parida. Praemium c' reward,' from praeda' booty,' because it is granted for something well done.

179. If money is given which is to be paid back, it is a mutuum 'loan,' so called because the Sicilians call it a μοῖτος a; thus Sophron writes b

Loan to be repaid.

Also munus c 'present,' because those who are on terms of mutuus' mutual 'affection give presents d out of kindness; a second munus 'duty,' because it is ordered for the muniendum fortification of the town, from which moreover the municipes townspeople' are named, who must jointly perform the munus.

180. If it is that money which comes into court in lawsuits, it is called sacramentum 'sacred deposit,' a from sacrum 'sacred': the plaintiff and the defendant each deposited with the pontifex b five hundred copper asses for some kinds of cases, and for other kinds the trial was conducted likewise under a deposit sources, and here rests upon an emendation, but may have been regular in early times; in Varro's time, the deposit was made with the practor who acted as judge. alio legitimo numero actum7; qui iudicio vicerat, suum sacramentum e sacro auferebat, victi ad aerarium redibat.

181. Tributum dictum a tribubus, quod ea pecunia, quae populo imperata erat, tributim a singulis pro portione census exigebatur.1 Ab hoc ea quae assignata erat attributum dictum; ab eo quoque quibus attributa erat pecunia, ut militi reddant, tribuni aerarii dicti; id quod attributum erat, aes militare; hoc est quod ait Plautus:

Cedit miles, aes petit.

Et hinc dicuntur milites aerarii ab aere, quod stipendia facerent.

182. Hoc ipsum stipendium a stipe dictum, quod aes quoque stipem dicebant : nam quod asses librae1 pondo erant, qui acceperant maiorem numerum non in arca ponebant, sed in aliqua cella stipabant, id est componebant, quo minus loci occuparet; ab stipando stipem dicere coeperunt. Stips<sup>2</sup> ab στοιβή fortasse, Graeco verbo. Id apparet, quod ut tum institutum etiam nunc diis cum thesauris asses dant stipem

§ 181. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for exigebantur. § 182. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for libras. <sup>2</sup>

<sup>2</sup> L. Sp., with b, for stipa.

&lt;sup>7</sup> C. F. W. Mueller, for assum.

c 500 if the case involved an amount of 1000 asses or more; 50 if the case involved a smaller amount or the personal freedom of an individual. d The phrase e sacro confirms the statement that deposit was made with the pontifex.

<sup>§ 181. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Derivation probable, but not certain. <sup>b</sup> Aulularia, 526; but Plautus means a bailiff collecting a bad debt! The phrase means also 'to serve years in the army,' since each stipendium is one year's pay. § 182. a Stips (not from Greek) is the basis of the other of some other fixed amount specified by law c; he who won the decision got back his deposit from the temple, d but the loser's deposit passed into the state treasury.

181. Tributum 'tribute' was said from the tribus 'tribes,' a because that money which was levied on the people, was exacted tributim' tribe by tribe' individually, in proportion to their financial rating in the census. From this, that money which was allotted was attributum 'assigned'; from this also, those to whom the money was assigned, that they may pay it to the soldiery, were called tribuni aerarii 'treasury tribunes'; that which was assigned, was the aes militare 'soldier's pay-fund'; this is what Plautus means b:

Comes the soldier, asks for cash.

And from this comes the term milites aerarii 'paid soldiers,' from the aes 'cash-pay,' because they earned stipends.c

182. This very word stipendium 'stipend' is said from stips 'coin,' because they also called an aes 'copper coin' a stips a; for because the asses were a pound each in weight, those who had received an unusual number of them did not put them in a strongbox, but stipabant 'packed,' that is, componebant 'stored,' them away in some chamber, that they might take up less space b; they started the use of the word stips from stipare 'to pack.' Stips is perhaps from the Greek word  $\sigma \tau o \iota \beta \dot{\eta}$  'heap.' This is clear, because, as was then started, so even now they speak of a stips when they give money to the temple treasuries for the gods, and those who make a contract about words in this section. b Stips 'stamped coin' and stipare 'to press, stamp' may belong together etymologically.

dicunt, et qui pecuniam alligat, stipulari et restipulari. Militis stipendia ideo, quod eam stipem pendebant; ab eo etiam Ennius scribit:

Poeni stipendia pendunt.

183. Ab eodem aere pendendo dispensator, et in tabulis scribimus expensum et in(de)¹ prima pensio et sic secunda aut quae alia, et dispendium, ideo quod in dispendendo solet minus fieri; compendium quod cum compenditur² una fit; a quo usura, quod in sorte accedebat, impendium appellatum; quae cum (non)³ accederet ad sortem usu,⁴ usura dicta, ut sors quod suum fit sorte. Per trutinam solvi solitum: vestigium etiam nunc manet in aede Saturni, quod ea etiam nunc⁵ propter pensuram trutinam habet positam. Ab aere Aerarium appellatum.

XXXVII. 184. Ad vocabula quae pertinere sumus rati ea quae loca et ea quae in locis sunt satis ut arbitror dicta, quod neque parum multa sunt aperta neque, si amplius velimus, volumen patietur. Quare in proximo, ut in primo libro dixi, quod sequitur de temporibus dicam.

Sciop., for milites stipendii.
 § 183.
 Aug., with B, for in.
 Laetus, for compendetur.
 Added by Mue.
 Aldus, for usum.
 Aug., for ea iam nunc et.

§ 184. <sup>a</sup> Its length limits the liber' book, by. 11-12.

Stipendium from stipi-pendium, with haplology; the earliest payments must have been made by weighing, the word then coming to mean 'pay.'
 Ann. 265 Vahlen²; R.O.L.
 116-117 Warmington.
 183. That is, "and kept in one's possession."

<sup>§ 183. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> That is, "and kept in one's possession." <sup>b</sup> The fundamental meaning of sors, according to Varro; cf. vi. 65 and notes. <sup>c</sup> In the Temple of Saturn.

money are said to stipulari 'stipulate' and restipulari 'make counter-stipulations.' Therefore the soldier's stipendiac 'stipends,' because they pendebant 'weighed' the stips; from this moreover Ennius writes *a':

The Phoenicians pay out the stipends.

183. From the same pendere 'to weigh or pay, comes dispensator 'distributing cashier,' and in our accounts we write expensum' expense 'and therefrom the first pensio 'payment' and likewise the second and any others, and dispendium ' loss by distribution,' for this reason, that money is wont to become less in the dispendendo 'distributing of the payments'; compendium 'saving,' which is made when it compenditur 'is weighed all together 'a; from which the usura 'interest,' because it was added in 'on 'the principal, was called impendium 'outlay'; when it was not added to the principal, it was called usura 'interest' because of the usus 'use' of the money, just as sors 'principal' is said because it becomes one's own by sors' union.' b It was once the custom to pay by the use of a pair of scales; a trace of this remains even now in the Temple of Saturn, because it even now has a pair of scales set up ready for weighing purposes. From aes 'copper money' the Aerarium c'Treasury' was named.

XXXVII. 184. What we have thought to pertain to names which are places and those which express things in places, has been, as I think, adequately set forth, because a great many are perspicuous and if we should wish to write further the roll <sup>a</sup> will not permit it. Therefore in the next book, as I said at the beginning of this book, <sup>b</sup> I shall speak of the next topic, namely about times.

M. TERENTI VARRONIS DE LINGUA LATINA

LIBER V EXPLICIT; INCIPIT

LIBER VI

- I. 1. Origines verborum qua $\langle e \rangle^1$  sunt² locorum et ea quae in his in priore libro scripsi. In hoc dicam de vocabulis temporum et earum rerum quae in agendo fiunt aut dicuntur cum tempore aliquo ut sedetur, ambulatur, loquontur; atque si qua erunt ex diverso genere adiuncta, potius cognationi verborum quam auditori calumnianti geremus³ morem.
- 2. Huius rei auctor satis mihi Chrysippus et Antipater et illi in quibus, si non tantum acuminis, at plus litterarum, in quo est Aristophanes et Apollodorus, qui omnes verba ex verbis ita declinari scribunt, ut verba litteras alia assumant, alia mittant, alia
- § 1.  $^1$  For qua.  $^2$  p, Rhol., for sint.  $^3$  G, V, Aldus, for oremus.

<sup>§ 2. °</sup> Of Soli in Cilicia (280–207 B.c.), who followed Cleanthes as leader of the Stoic school of philosophy in Athens; page 154 von Arnim. ° Of Tarsus, who succeeded Diogenes of Seleucia as head of the Stoic school in the first part of the second century B.C.; page 17 von Arnim. ° Of Byzantium (262–185 B.C.), eminent grammarian at Alex-172

MARCUS TERENTIUS VARRO'S ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE

BOOK V ENDS, AND HERE BEGINS

BOOK VI

I. The sources of the words which are names of places and are names of those things which are in these places, I have written in the preceding book. In the present book I shall speak about the names of times and of those things which in the performance take place or are said with some time-factor, such as sitting, walking, talking: and if there are any words of a different sort attached to these, I shall give heed rather to the kinship of the words than to the rebukes of my listener.

2. In this subject I rely on Chrysippus <sup>a</sup> as an adequate authority, and on Antipater, <sup>b</sup> and on those in whom there was more learning even if not so much insight, among them Aristophanes <sup>c</sup> and Apollodorus <sup>d</sup>: all these write that words are so derived from words, that the words in some instances take on letters, in others lose them, in still others change them, as in the case of turdus 'thrush' takes place andria; page 269 Nauck. <sup>d</sup> Of Athens, pupil of Aristarchus the grammarian and of Diogenes of Seleucia; Frag. Hist. Graec, i. 462 Mueller.

commutent, ut fit in turdo, in turdario et turdelice. Sic declinantes Graeci nostra nomina dicunt Lucienum¹ Λευκιηνόν² et Quinctium Κοΐντιον, et (nostri illorum)<sup>3</sup> 'Αρίσταρχον Aristarchum et Δίωνα Dionem; sic, inquam, consuetudo nostra multa declinavita a vetere, ut ab solu solum, ab Loebeso5 Liberum, ab Lasibus Lares: quae obruta vetustate ut potero eruere conabor.

- II. 3. Dicemus primo de temporibus, tum<sup>1</sup> quae per ea fiunt, sed ita ut ante de natura eorum: ea enim dux fuit ad vocabula imponenda homini. Tempus esse dicunt in \(\text{ter}\) vallum² mundi³ motus. Id divisum in partes aliquot maxime ab solis et lunae cursu. Itaque ab eorum tenore temperato tempus dictum, unde tempestiva; et a motu4 eorum qui toto caelo conjunctus mundus.
- 4. Duo motus (solis: alter cum caelo, quod movetur ab Iove rectore, qui Graece Δία appellatur, cum ab oriente ad oc/casu(m) venit,1 quo tempus id
- § 2. <sup>1</sup> B, Laetus, for leucienum. <sup>2</sup> Mue.; Λευκιενόν Sciop.; for leucienon. <sup>3</sup> Added by GS.; nos illorum L. Sp.; after Laetus, who set nos illi after 'Aρίσταρχον.

  <sup>4</sup> After declinavit, Popma deleted nt.

  <sup>5</sup> Mue., for libero.

  § 3.

  <sup>1</sup> A. Sp., for quam.

  <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for inuallum.

  <sup>3</sup> After mundi, Turnebus deleted et.

  <sup>4</sup> H, Aldus, for motor Fv.

§ 4. 1 solis; alter cum caelo, quo ab oriente ad occasum venit Mue. : the balance with Kriegshammer, based on Festus, 74. 7 M.

&lt;sup>e</sup> I take this with Fay, A.J.P. xxxv. 245, as turdus+ ξλιξ 'spiral'; cf. Varro, De Re Rustica, iii. 5. 3, who says that the entrance to a bird-cote is called a coclia 'snail-shell.' being intended to admit air and some light, but not to permit direct vision from the interior to the outside. Varro had a friend Q. Lucienus, a Roman senator, well versed in Greek; he appears as a speaker in Varro's De Re Rustica, ii. (5. 1, 174

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 2-4

in turdarium 'thrush-cote' and turdelix' 'spiral entrance for thrushes.' Thus the Greeks, in adapting our names, make  $\Lambda \epsilon \nu \kappa \iota \eta \nu \delta$ , of Lucienus' and Koivτιος of Quinctius, and we make Aristarchus of their ' $\Lambda \rho i \sigma \tau \alpha \rho - \chi \sigma$  and Dio of their  $\Delta i \omega \nu$ . In just this way, I say, our practice has altered many from the old form, as solum' 'soil' from solu, Liberum' God of Wine' from Loebesom, Lares' 'Hearth-Gods' from Lases: these words, covered up as they are by lapse of time, I shall try to dig out as best I can.

II. 3. First we shall speak of the time-names, then of those things which take place through them, but in such a way that first we shall speak of their essential nature: for nature was man's guide to the imposition of names. Time, they say, is an interval in the motion of the world. This is divided into a number of parts, especially from the course of the sun and the moon. Therefore from their temperatus 'moderated' career, tempus' time' is named, and from this comes tempestiva 'timely things'; and from their motus' motion,' the mundus b' world,' which is joined with the sky as a whole.

4. There are two motions of the sun: one with the sky, in that the moving is impelled by Jupiter as ruler, who in Greek is called  $\Delta ia$ , when it comes from east to west a; wherefore this time is from this god called a b Wrong.

§ 3. The converse is true: temperare is from tempus.

etc.). "With change from the fourth declension to the second (if the text is correct). "With change of the vowel as well as rhotacism; the accusative form must be kept in the translation, to show this clearly. 'With rhotacism (change of intervocalic s to r).

<sup>§ 4.</sup> This insertion in the text gives the needed sense; the second motus is in § 8.

ab hoc deo dies appellatur. Meridies ab eo quod medius dies. D antiqui, non R in hoc dicebant, ut Praeneste incisum in solario vidi. Solarium dictum id, in quo horae in sole inspiciebantur, (vel horologium ex aqua),² quod Cornelius in Basilica Aemilia et Fulvia inumbravit. Diei principium mane, quod tum³ manat dies ab oriente, nisi potius quod bonum antiqui dicebant manum, ad cuiusmodi religionem Graeci quoque cum lumen affertur, solent dicere  $\phi \hat{\omega} s$   $\dot{\alpha} \gamma a \theta \acute{o} v$ .

5. Suprema summum diei, id ab superrimo. Hoc tempus XII Tabulae dicunt occasum esse solis; sed postea lex Plaetoria¹ id quoque tempus esse iubet supremum quo praetor in Comitio supremam pronuntiavit populo. Secundum hoc dicitur crepusculum a crepero: id vocabulum sumpserunt a Sabinis, unde veniunt Crepusci nominati Amiterno, qui eo tempore erant nati, ut Luci⟨i⟩² prima luce in Reatino³; crepusculum significat dubium; ab eo res dictae dubiae creperae, quod crepusculum dies etiam nunc sit an iam nox multis dubium.

<sup>2</sup> Added by GS. <sup>3</sup> For cum. § 5. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for praetoria. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for luci. <sup>3</sup> Mue., for reatione or creatione.

§ 5. <sup>a</sup> Approximately correct. <sup>b</sup> Page 119 Schoell.

b Dies is cognate with Greek Δία, but not derived from it. c P. Cornelius Scipio Nasica Corculum, when censor in 159 B.c. with M. Popilius Laenas, set up the first water-clock in Rome in this Basilica, which was erected in 179 on the north side of the Forum by the censors M. Aemilius Lepidus and M. Fulvius Nobilior, from whom it was named. d Both etymologies wrong.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 4-5

dies 'day.' b Meridies 'noon,' from the fact that it is the medius 'middle' of the dies 'day.' The ancients said D in this word, and not R, as I have seen at Praeneste, cut on a sun-dial. Solarium 'sun-dial' was the name used for that on which the hours were seen in the sol 'sunlight'; or also there is the water-clock, which Cornelius set up in the shade in the Basilica of Aemilius and Fulvius. The beginning of the day is mane 'early morning,' because then the day manat 'trickles' from the east, unless rather because the ancients called the good manum 's from a superstitious belief of the same kind as influences the Greeks, who, when a light is brought, make a practice of saying, "Goodly light!"

5. Suprema means the last part of the day; it is from superrimum.a This time, the Twelve Tables say,b is sunset; but afterwards the Plaetorian Law c declares that this time also should be 'last' at which the praetor in the Comitium has announced to the people the suprema 'end of the session.' In line with this, crepusculum 'dusk' is said from creperum 'obscure'; this word they took from the Sabines, from whom come those who were named Crepusci, from Amiternum, who had been born at that time of day, just like the Lucii, who were those born at dawn (prima luce) in the Reatine country. Crepusculum means doubtful: from this doubtful matters are called creperae 'obscure,' d because dusk is a time when to many it is doubtful whether it is even yet day or is already night.

&lt;sup>c</sup> A law for the protection of minors, named from Plaetorius, a tribune of the people. <sup>d</sup> All etymologically sound, but a meaning 'doubtful' must have proceeded from a word crepus 'dusk.'

6. Nox, quod, ut Pacuius1 ait,

Omnia nisi interveniat sol pruina obriguerint, quod nocet, nox, nisi quod Graecc νύξ nox. Cum stella prima exorta (eum Graeci vocant ἕσπερον, nostri Vesperuginem ut Plautus: Neque Vesperugo neque Vergiliae occidunt), id tempus dictum a Graecis  $\delta\sigma\pi\delta\rho a$ , Latine vesper; ut ante solem ortum quod eadem stella vocatur iubar, quod iubata, Pacui dicit pastor:

Exorto iubare, noctis decurso itinere; Enni<sup>2</sup> Aiax:

Lumen-iubarne ?-in caelo cerno.

7. Inter vesperuginem et iubar dicta nox intempesta, ut in Bruto Cassii quod dicit Lucretia:

Nocte intempesta nostram devenit domum.

Intempestam Aelius dicebat cum tempus agendi est nullum, quod alii concubium¹ appellarunt, quod omnes fere tunc cubarent; alii ab eo quod sileretur

 $\S$  6.  $^1$  Ribbeck; Pacuvius Scaliger; for catulus.  $^2$  GS.; Ennii Laetus; for ennius.

§ 7. 1 Laetus, for inconcubium.

§ 7 ° A writer of praetextae, otherwise unknown: the name recurs at vii. 72; possibly Victorius's emendation to <sup>§ 6. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Antiopa, Trag. Rom. Frag. 14 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. ii. 170-171 Warmington; cf. Funaioli, page 123. Ribbeck's nocti ni for nisi is probably Pacuvius's wording; Varro, as often, paraphrases the quotation. <sup>b</sup> Nox and vife come from the same source; connexion with nocere is dubious. <sup>c</sup> Amphitruo, 275. <sup>d</sup> Correct etymologies. <sup>e</sup> Iubar and iuba' mane' are not related, despite vii. 76. <sup>f</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 347 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. ii. 320-321 Warmington. <sup>e</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 336 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 226-227 Warmington; cf. vi. 81 and vii. 76.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 6-7

6. Nor 'night' is called nor, because, as Pacuvius says, a

All will be stiff with frost unless the sun break in, because it nocet 'harms'; unless it is because in Greek night is  $v\acute{\varepsilon} \acute{\varepsilon}^{,b}$  When the first star has come out (the Greeks call it Hesperus, and our people call it Vesperugo, as Plautus does  $^{\circ}$ :

The evening star sets not, nor yet the Pleiades), this time is by the Greeks called  $\epsilon \sigma \pi \epsilon \rho a$ , and vesper 'evening' in Latin <sup>d</sup>; just as, because the same star before sunrise is called iubar 'dawn-star,' because it is iubata 'maned,' Pacuvius's herdsman says <sup>f</sup>:

When morning-star appears and night has run her course. And Ennius's Ajax says g:

I see light in the sky-can it be dawn?

7. The time between dusk and dawn is called the nox intempesta 'dead of night,' as in the Brutus of Cassius, in the speech of Lucretia:

By dead of night he came unto our home.

Aelius b used to say that intempesta means the period when it is not a time for activity, which others have called the concubium c general rest, because practically all persons then cubabant were lying down; others, from the fact that silebatur silence was observed, have called it the silentium still of the night, Accii is correct. The passage is listed among the fragments of the Brutus of Accius by Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>, Trag. Rom. Frag., page 331, and by Warmington, R.O.L. ii. 562-563. Page 60 Funaioli. The early part of the night; cf. vii. 78, which quotes Plautus, Trinummus, 886. Cf. also Funaioli, page 115.

silentium noctis, quod idem Plautus tempus conticinium<sup>2</sup>: scribit enim:

Videbimus<sup>3</sup>: factum volo. Redito<sup>4</sup> conticinio.<sup>5</sup>

- 8. Alter motus solis est, al(i)ter (ae) caeli,¹ quod movetur a bruma ad solstitium. Dicta bruma, quod brevissimus tunc dies est; solstitium, quod sol eo die sistere videbatur, quo² ad nos versum proximus est. Sol² cum venit in medium spatium inter brumam et solstitium, quod dies aequus fit ac nox, aequinoctium dictum. Tempus a bruma ad brumam dum sol redit, vocatur annus, quod ut parvi circuli anuli, sic magni dicebantur circites ani, unde annus.
- 9. Huius temporis pars prima hiems, quod tum multi imbres; hinc hibernacula, hibernum; vel, quod tum anima quae flatur omnium apparet, ab hiatu hiems. Tempus secundum ver, quod tum virere¹ incipiunt virgulta ac vertere se tempus anni; nisi quod Iones dicunt  $\hat{\eta}\rho^2$  ver. Tertium ab aestu aestas; hinc aestivum; nisi forte a Graeco  $ai\theta\epsilon\sigma\theta\alpha\iota$ . Quartum autumnus, ⟨ab augendis hominum opibus dictus frugibusque coactis, quasi auctumnus⟩.³

<sup>2</sup> For conticinnium f. <sup>3</sup> uidebitur Plautus. <sup>4</sup> redito huc Plautus. <sup>5</sup> For conticinnio f.

§ 8. <sup>1</sup> Mue., for alter caeli. <sup>2</sup> quo A. Sp.; quod Mue.; for aut quod. <sup>3</sup> A. Sp.; proximus est sol, solstitium L. Sp.; for proximum est solstitium.

L. Sp.; for proximum est solstitium.
 § 9.
 <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for uiuere.
 <sup>2</sup> L. Sp.; ξαρ Victorius; for et.
 <sup>3</sup> Added by GS., after Kriegshammer, and Fest.
 9 11 M

§ 9. <sup>a</sup> Wrong. <sup>b</sup> Cognate with the Greek, not derived from it.

&lt;sup>d</sup> Asinaria, 685.

<sup>§ 8. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> For the first motion, see § 4. <sup>b</sup> The winter and the summer solstices. <sup>c</sup> Annus is not connected with anus or anulus 'ring.'

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 7-9

the time which Plautus likewise calls the conticinium 'general silence': for he writes d:

We'll see, I want it done. At general-silence time come back

8. There is a second motion of the sun, a differing from that of the sky, in that the motion is from bruma 'winter's day 'to solstitium 'solstice.' b Bruma is so named, because then the day is brevissimus 'shortest': the solstitium, because on that day the sol' sun' seems sistere 'to halt,' on which it is nearest to us. When the sun has arrived midway between the bruma and the solstitium, it is called the aequinoctium 'equinox,' because the day becomes aequus 'equal' to the nox 'night.' The time from the bruma until the sun returns to the bruma, is called an annus 'year,' because just as little circles are anuli 'rings,' so big circuits were called ani, whence comes annus 'year.' c

9. The first part of this time is the hiems 'winter,' so called because then there are many imbres 'showers' a; hence hibernacula 'winter encampment,' hibernum 'winter time'; or because then everybody's breath which is breathed out is visible, hiems is from hiatus 'open mouth.' a The second season is the ver b' spring,' so called because then the virgulta 'bushes 'begin virere 'to become green 'and the time of year begins vertere ' to turn or change ' itself a; unless it is because the Ionians say  $\hat{\eta}_{\rho}$  for spring. The third season is the aestas 'summer,' from aestus 'heat'; from this, aestivum 'summer pasture '; unless perhaps it is from the Greek αἴθεσθαι 'to blaze.' b The fourth is the autumnus 'autumn,' named from augere 'to increase' the possessions of men and the gathered fruits, as if auctumnus.a

VARRO

- 10.  $\langle \text{Ut annus} \rangle^1$  ab sole, sic² mensis a lunae motu dictus, dum ab sole profecta rursus redit ad eum. Luna quod Graece olim dicta  $\mu \hat{\eta} \nu \eta$ , unde illorum  $\mu \hat{\eta} \nu \epsilon s$ , ab eo nostri. A mensibus intermestris dictum, quod putabant inter prioris mensis senescentis extremum diem et novam lunam esse diem, quem diligentius Attici  $\tilde{\epsilon} \nu \eta \nu \kappa a \hat{\iota} \nu \epsilon a \nu \hat{\iota} \nu a \nu \hat{\iota} \nu \hat{\iota} a \nu \hat{\iota} \nu \hat{\iota} a \hat{\iota} a \nu \hat$
- 11. Lustrum nominatum tempus quinquennale a luendo, id est solvendo, quod quinto quoque anno vectigalia et ultro tributa per censores persolvebantur. Seclum spatium annorum centum vocarunt, dictum a sene, quod longissimum spatium senescendorum hominum id putarunt. Aevum ab aetate omnium annorum (hinc aeviternum, quod factum est aeternum): quod Graeci  $a i \hat{\omega} v a$ , id ait Chrysippus esse  $\langle \vec{a} \rangle \epsilon \langle i \rangle \tilde{v} v$ . Ab eo Plautus:

Non omnis aetas ad perdiscendum est satis,² hinc poetae :

Aeterna templa caeli.3

§ 10. <sup>1</sup> See § 9, critical note 3. <sup>2</sup> B, Laetus, for sicut. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for menencenean. § 11. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for eon. <sup>2</sup> sat est Plautus. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for caeli celi.

§ 11. a Most probably from lavare 'to wash.' Properly saeculum; ultimately from the root 'to sow,' seen

182

<sup>§ 10. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Cognate with the Greek. <sup>b</sup> The end of the astronomical day would normally not coincide with the end of the 24-hour day, and the last day of the month was therefore regarded by the Greeks as including parts of two days, the old day closing the old month, and the new day beginning the new month.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 10-11

10. As the year is named from the motion of the sun, so the month is named from the motion of the moon, until after departing from the sun she returns again to him. Because the moon was in Greek formerly called  $\mu\dot{\eta}\nu\eta$ , whence their  $\mu\dot{\eta}\nu\epsilon$ s 'months'—from this word we named the menses 'months.' From menses is named the intermestris 'day between the months,' because they thought that between the last day of the preceding expiring month and the new moon there was a day, which with more care the Athenians called the 'old and new,' b because on that day the very last of the old moon and the first beginnings of the new moon can both be seen.

11. A five-year period was called a lustrum, a from luere 'to set free,' that is, solvere 'to release,' because in every fifth year the taxes and the voluntary tribute payments were completely discharged, through the activity of the censors. A seclum b 'century' was what they called the space of one hundred years, named from senex 'old man,' because they thought this the longest stretch of life for senescendi 'aging' men. Aevum c'eternity,' from an aetas 'period' of all the years (from this comes aeviternum, which has become aeternum 'eternal'): which the Greeks call an alών—Chrysippus says that this is ⟨â⟩ε⟨ì⟩ ὄν 'always existing.' From this Plautus says e:

All time is not enough for thorough learning, and from this the poets say:

The everlasting temples of the sky.

in semen 'seed.' * Aevum is the basis for the other Latin words, and is cognate with the Greek word, not derived from it. * Chrysippus (163 von Arnim) was wrong. * Truculentus, 22.

III. 12. A⟨d⟩ naturale discrimen¹ civilia vocabula die⟨ru⟩m² accesserunt. Dicam prius qui deorum causa, tum qui hominum sunt instituti. Dies Agonales per quos rex in Regia arictem immolat, dicti ab "agon," eo quod interrogat ⟨minister sacrificii "agone?": nisi si a Graeca lingua, ubi ἄγων princeps, ab eo quod immolat⟩ur³ a principe civitatis et princeps gregis immolatur. Carmentalia nominantur quod sacra tum et feriae Carmentis.

13. Lupercalia dicta, quod in Lupercali Luperci sacra faciunt. Rex cum ferias menstruas Nonis Februariis edicit, hunc diem februatum appellat; februm Sabini purgamentum, et id in sacris nostris verbum non (ignotum: nam pellem capri, cuius de loro caeduntur puellae Lupercalibus, veteres februm vocabant), et Lupercalia Februatio, ut in Antiquitatum libris demonstravi. Quirinalia a Quirino, quod

§ 13. <sup>1</sup> Added by GS., after Serv. Dan. in Aen. viii. 343 ff.

§ 13. a Celebrated on March 15 by the priests of Mars 184

<sup>§ 12. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> GS., for a naturali discrimine (ad with Sciop.). <sup>2</sup> Sciop., for diem. <sup>3</sup> Added by Krumbiegel, who recognized that alternative etymologies stood here.

<sup>§ 12. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> There were four Agonia in the year, celebrated on January 9, March 17, May 21, December 11, respectively to Janus, Mars, Vediovis, and an unknown god. The name Agonium came from agere 'to do one's work,' through a noun ago 'performer,' formed like praeco 'herald.' <sup>b</sup> The traditional palace of Numa, at the end of the Forum; used as the residence of the pontifex maximus, and for certain important religious ceremonies. <sup>c</sup> That is, slay the sacrificial victim; the formulaic answer was, "Hoe age!" <sup>d</sup> Celebrated on January 11 and 15 in honour of Carmentis or Carmenta, an old Italic goddess of childbirth, with prophetic powers; one later legend made her the mother of Evander, whom she accompanied from Arcadia to Rome.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 12-13

III. 12. To the division made by nature there have been added the civic names for the days. First I shall give those which have been instituted for the sake of the gods, then those instituted for the sake of men. The dies Agonales 'days of the Agonia,' a on which the high-priest sacrifices a ram in the Regia, were named from agon for this reason, because the helper at the sacrifice asks "agone?" 'Shall I do my work?' c: unless it is from the Greek, where  $ay\omega v$  means princeps 'leader,' from the fact that the sacrificing is done by a leader of the state and the leader of the flock is sacrificed. The Carmentalia a are so named because at that time there are sacrifices and a festival of Carmentis.

13. The Lupercalia a was so named because the Luperci make sacrifice in the Lupercal. When the High-priest announces the monthly festivals on the Nones of February, he calls the day of the Lupercalia februatus: for februm is the name which the Sabines give to a purification, and this word is not unknown in our sacrifices; for a goat hide, with a thong of which the young women are flogged at the Lupercalia, the ancients called a februs, and the Lupercalia was called also Februatio 'Festival of Purification,' as I have shown in the Books of the Antiquities. Quirinalia b 'Festival of Quirinus,' from Quirinus, b because it is a called Luperci, beginning with the sacrifice of a buck in the Lupercal, the cave on the Palatine where traditionally the shewolf suckled Romulus and Remus; after which the Luperci, naked except for breech-clouts made of the buck's hide, ran around the Palatine, where the people had massed themselves, striking the women with thongs which also were cut from the hide of the slaughtered animal, a process supposed to ensure the fertility of those struck.

6 On February 17.

6 The deified Romulus.

(e)i deo² feriae et eorum hominum, qui Furnacalibus suis non fuerunt feriati. Feralia<sup>3</sup> ab inferis et ferendo, quod ferunt tum epulas ad sepulcrum quibus ius ibi4 parentare. Terminalia, quod is dies anni extremus constitutus: duodecimus enim mensis fuit Februarius et cum intercalatur inferiores quinque dies duodecimo demuntur mense. Ecurria ab equorum cursu: eo die enim ludis currunt in Martio Campo.

14. Liberalia dicta, quod per totum oppidum eo die sedent (ut) sacerdotes Liberi anus hedera coronatae cum libis et foculo pro emptore sacrificantes. In libris Saliorum quorum cognomen Agonensium, forsitan hic dies ideo appelletur potius Agonia. Quinquatrus: hic dies unus ab nominis errore observatur proinde ut sint quinque<sup>2</sup>; dictus, ut ab Tusculanis post diem sextum Idus similiter vocatur Sexatrus et post diem septimum Septimatrus, sic3 hic, quod

<sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for ideo. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for ferialia. with B, for sibi.

3 Lae-

<sup>2</sup> Punctuation of Mue.

§ 14. 1 Added by GS.

tus, for septematruus sit.

d Or Fornacalia, in honour of an alleged goddess Fornax 'Spirit of the Bake-oven'; celebrated early in February, on various dates in different curiae. On February 21, the official part of the Parentalia (February 18-21, otherwise for private ceremonies); etymology obscure. f God of End-On February 23: Varro is speaking of the old Roman year of 355 days (before the reform of Julius Caesar in 45 B.C.), in which an extra month of 22 or 23 days was inserted in alternate years after February 23; which thereby became the last date in the year which was common to all years, the remaining five days of February being placed at the end of the extra month. h Or Equirria; on February 27 and March 14, in honour of Mars.

§ 14. a On March 17, the day when the boys assumed the toga of manhood. b Frag. inc. 2, page 351 Maurenbrecher; page 5 Morel. This sentence seems to belong festival to that god and also of those men who did not get a holiday on their own Furnacalia d 'Bakers' Festival.' The Feralia e 'Festival of the Dead,' from inferi 'the dead below' and ferre 'to bear,' because at that time they ferunt 'bear' viands to the tomb of those to whom it is a duty to offer ancestor-worship there. The Terminalia 'Festival of Terminus,' f because this day g is set as the last day of the year; for the twelfth month was February, and when the extra month is inserted the last five days are taken off the twelfth month. The Ecurria 'Horse-Race,' h from the equorum cursus 'running of horses'; for on that day they currunt 'run' races in the sports on the Campus Martius.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 13-14

14. The Liberalia 'Festival of Liber,' a because on that day old women wearing ivy-wreaths on their heads sit in all parts of the town, as priestesses of Liber, with cakes and a brazier, on which they offer up the cakes on behalf of any purchaser. In the books of the Salii b who have the added name Agonenses, this day is for this reason, perhaps, called rather the Agonia. The Quinquatrus: this day, though one only, is from a misunderstanding of the name observed as if there were five days in it. Just as the sixth day after the Ides is in similar fashion called the Sexatrus by the people of Tusculum, and the seventh day after is the Septimatrus, so this day was named here, in that in § 12. The proper name of the festival was Agonium, plural Agonia; popularly corrupted to Agonalia, in imitation of other festival names. d On March 19-23, five days instead of merely the fifth day after the Ides (March 15; fifth by Roman counting of both ends); etymology, the 'fifth black (ater) day,' perhaps Quinquatrus for Quintatrus, with dissimilative change of one t, and concurrent influence of the cardinal quinque.

erat post diem quintum Idus, Quinquatrus. Dies Tubulustrium appellatur, quod eo die in Atrio Sutorio sacrorum tubae lustrantur.

15. Megalesia dicta a Graecis, quod ex Libris Sibyllinis arcessita ab Attalo rege Pergama; ibi prope murum Megalesion, id est¹ templum eius deae, unde advecta Romam. Fordicidia a fordis bubus; bos forda quae fert in ventre; quod eo die publice immolantur boves praegnantes in curiis complures,² a fordis caedendis Fordicidia dicta. Palilia dicta a Pale, quod ei³ feriae, ut Cerialia a Cerere.

16. Vinalia a vino; hic dies Iovis, non Veneris. Huius rei cura non levis in Latio: nam aliquot locis vindemiae primum ab sacerdotibus publice fiebant, ut Romae etiam nunc: nam flamen Dialis auspicatur vindemiam et ut iussit vinum legere, agna Iovi facit, inter cuius exta caesa et porrecta¹ flamen pr⟨im⟩us² vinum legit. In Tusculanis portis³ est scriptum:

Vinum novum ne vehatur in urbem ante quam Vinalia kalentur.4

§ 15. <sup>1</sup> GS., for in. <sup>2</sup> For compluris. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, or et.

§ 16. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for projecta. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for porus. <sup>3</sup> Bergk, for sortis. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for calentur.

March 23; also May 23.

§ 16. <sup>a</sup> On April 23, and again on August 19. <sup>b</sup> That is, not before the priests fix the date and the ceremony has been performed.

<sup>§ 15. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Celebrated on April 4 in honour of Cybele, the Magna Mater (μεγάλη 'magna,' whence the name of the festival), whose worship was brought to Rome from Pergamum (here Pergama, fem.) in Mysia, in 204 B.c. <sup>b</sup> On April 15. <sup>c</sup> Often written Parilia; on April 21. <sup>d</sup> Often written Cerealia; on April 19.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 14-16

the fifth day after the Ides was the Quinquatrus. The Tubulustrium 'Purification of the Trumpets' is named from the fact that on this day 'e the tubae' trumpets' used in the ceremonies lustrantur 'are purified' in Shoemakers' Hall.

15. The Megalesia a 'Festival of the Great Mother' is so called from the Greeks, because by direction of the Sibylline Books the Great Mother was brought from King Attalus, from Pergama; there near the city-wall was the Megalesion, that is, the temple of this goddess, whence she was brought to Rome. The Fordicidia b was named from fordae cows: a forda cow is one that is carrying an unborn calf; because on this day several pregnant cows are officially and publicly sacrificed in the curiae, the festival was called the Fordicidia from fordae caedendae' the pregnant (cows) which were to be slaughtered.' The Palilia c' Festival of Pales' was named from Pales, because it is a holiday in her honour, like the Cerialia, a named from Ceres.

16. The Vinalia a 'Festival of the Wine,' from vinum' wine'; this is a day sacred to Jupiter, not to Venus. This feast receives no slight attention in Latium: for in some places the vintages were started by the priests, on behalf of the state, as at Rome they are even now: for the special priest of Jupiter makes an official commencement of the vintage, and when he has given orders to gather the grapes, he sacrifices a lamb to Jupiter, and between the cutting out of the victim's vitals and the offering of them to the god he himself first plucks a bunch of grapes. On the gates of Tusculum there is the inscription:

The new wine shall not be carried into the city until the Vinalia has been proclaimed.<sup>b</sup>

VARRO

Robigalia<sup>5</sup> dicta ab Robigo; secundum segetes huic deo sacrificatur, ne robigo occupet segetes.

- 17. Dies Vestalia ut virgines Vestales a¹ Vesta. Quinquatrus minusculae dictae Iuniae Idus ab similitudine maiorum, quod tibicines tum² feriati vagantur per urbem et conveniunt ad Aedem Minervae. Dies Fortis Fortunae appellatus ab Servio Tullio rege, quod is fanum Fortis Fortunae secundum Tiberim extra urbem Romam dedicavit Iunio mense.
- 18. Dies Poplifugia videtur nominatus, quod eo die tumultu repente fugerit populus: non multo enim post hic dies quam decessus Gallorum ex Urbe, et qui tum sub Urbe populi, ut Ficuleates ac Fidenates et finitimi alii, contra nos coniurarunt. Aliquot huius d(i)ei vestigia fugae in sacris apparent, de quibus rebus Antiquitatum Libri plura referunt. Nonae Caprotinae, quod eo die in Latio Iunoni Caprotinae mulieres sacrificant et sub caprifico faciunt; e capri-

<sup>5</sup> Rubigalia B, Laetus, for robicalia. § 17. <sup>1</sup> A. Sp.; ab L. Sp.; for aut. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for cum.

§ 17. a On June 9. b On June 13. See § 14.

d On June 24.

&lt;sup>c</sup> On April 25. <sup>d</sup> The passage containing the festivals of May has here been lost.

<sup>§ 18. °</sup> On July 5, according to the Fasti of Amiternum. Ficulea, a town near Fidenae; Fidenae, on the Tiber about five miles above Rome. ° July 7; it is not necessary to conclude that the Poplifugia and the ceremony of the Nonae Caprotinae were on the same day: the Flight may well have preceded the Fig-Tree Signal (see note d) by two days.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 16-18

The Robigalia c' Festival of Robigus' was named from Robigus' God of Rust'; to this god sacrifice is made along the cornfields, that rust may not seize upon the standing corn.d

17. The Vestalia a 'Festival of Vesta,' like the Vestal Virgins, from Vesta. The Ides of June are called the Lesser Quinquatrus, from the likeness to the Greater Quinquatrus, because the pipes-players take a holiday, and after roaming through the City, assemble at the Temple of Minerva. The day of Fors Fortuna d'Chance Luck' was named by King Servius Tullius, because he dedicated a sanctuary to Fors Fortuna beside the Tiber, outside the city Rome, in the month of June.

18. The Poplifugia a 'People's Flight' seems to have been named from the fact that on this day the people suddenly fled in noisy confusion: for this day is not much after the departure of the Gauls from the City, and the peoples who were then near the City, such as the Ficuleans and Fidenians b and other neighbours, united against us. Several traces of this day's flight appear in the sacrifices, of which the Books of the Antiquities give more information. The Nones of July c are called the Caprotine Nones, because on this day, in Latium, the women offer sacrifice to Juno Caprotina, which they do under a caprificus 'wild fig-tree'; they use a branch from the fig-tree.

&lt;sup>a</sup> The invaders demanded from the Romans, who were helpless after the ravages of the Gauls, that they surrender their wives and daughters. The maid-servants volunteered to go disguised as their mistresses, and plied their captors with wine. When they were asleep, the women signalled to the Romans from the branches of a caprificus, and a sudden attack routed the invaders. See Macrobius, Sat. i. 11. 36-40. and iii. 2. 14.

fico adhibent virgam. Cur hoc, toga¹ praetexta data eis Apollinaribus Ludis docuit populum.

- 19. Neptunalia a Neptuno: eius enim dei¹ feriae. Furrinalia (a) Furrina,2 quod ei deae feriae publicae3 dies is; cuius deae honos apud antiquos: nam ei sacra instituta annua et flamen attributus; nunc vix nomen notum paucis. Portunalia dicta a Portuno, cui eo die aedes in portu Tiberino facta et feriac institutae.
- 20. Vinalia rustica dicuntur ante diem XII(II)1. Kalendas Septembres, quod tum Veneri dedicata aedes et horti ei deae dicantur2 ac tum sunt feriati holitores. Consualia dicta a Conso, quod tum feriae publicae ei deo et in Circo ad aram eius ab sacerdotibus ludi illi, quibus virgines Sabinae raptae. Volcanalia a Volcano, quod ei tum feriae et quod eo die populus pro se in ignem animalia mittit.
- 21. Opeconsiva dies ab dea Ope Consiva, cuius in Regia sacrarium quod adeo¹ artum,² ut eo praeter

§ 18. <sup>1</sup> M, Laetus, for togata.

§ 19. Laetus, for die. 2 a Furrina Aug., for furrinae.

Aldus, for publice.
 § 20. ¹ quartum decimum Aug., after insec., for XII.
 Mue., for dicuntur.

§ 21. 1 GS., for ideo. <sup>2</sup> Canal, for actum.

e The ancillae had been richly dressed when they were sent off representing the wives and daughters of the aristocratic Romans; and after they had thus saved the state, the Senate rewarded them with freedom and other gifts, including the rich garments which they had worn. The presentation of a toga praetexta at the Games of Apollo seems to have sym-Celebrated on July 12 (at the time bolized this gift. when Varro wrote).

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 18-21

Why this was done, the bordered toga * presented to them at the Games of Apollo f enlightened the people.

19. The Neptunalia a 'Festival of Neptune,' from Neptune; for it is the holiday of this god. The Furrinalia b 'Festival of Furrina,' from Furrina, for this day is a state holiday for this goddess; honour was paid to her among the ancients, who instituted an annual sacrifice for her, and assigned to her a special priest, but now her name is barely known, and even that to only a few. The Portunalia c 'Festival of Portunus' was named from Portunus, to whom, on this day, a temple was built at the portus 'port' on the Tiber, and a holiday instituted.

20. The nineteenth of August was called the Country Vinalia a 'Wine-Festival,' because at that time a temple was dedicated to Venus and gardens were set apart for her, and then the kitchen-gardeners went on holiday. The Consualia b 'Festival of Consus' was called from Consus, because then there was the state festival to that god, and in the Circus at his altar those games were enacted by the priests in which the Sabine maidens were carried off. The Volcanalia c 'Festival of Vulcan,' from Vulcan, because then was his festival and because on that day the people, acting for themselves, drive their animals over a fire.

21. The day named Opeconsiva a is called from Ops Consiva b 'Lady Bountiful the Planter,' whose shrine is in the Regia; it is so restricted in size that no one

§ 19. On July 23. On July 25; Furrina, an ancient Italic goddess. On August 17.

§ 20. a Vinalia from vinum, not from Venus; on August 19. b On August 21; cf. Livy, i. 9. 6. C On August 23. § 21. August 25. Goddess of Abundance, the wife of Saturn, as planter or sower; another aspect of Terra.

VARRO

virgines Vestales et sacerdotem publicum introeat nemo. "Is cum eat, suffibulum ut³ habeat," scriptum: id dicitur ut⁴ ab suffi⟨g⟩endo⁵ subfigabulum.⁶ Volturnalia¹ a deo Volturno,⁶ cuius feriae tum. Octobri mense Meditrinalia dies dictus a medendo, quod Flaccus flamen Martialis dicebat hoc die solitum vinum ⟨novum⟩⁶ et vetus libari et degustari medicamenti causa; quod facere solent etiam nunc multi cum dicunt ¹ô:

Novum vetus vinum bibo: novo veteri 11 morbo medeor.

22. Fontanalia a Fonte, quod is dies feriae eius; ab eo tum et in fontes coronas iaciunt et puteos coronant. Armilustrium ab eo quod in Armilustrio armati sacra faciunt, nisi locus potius dictus ab his; sed quod de his prius, id ab lu(d)endo¹ aut lustro, id est quod circumibant ludentes ancilibus armati.

§ 22. 1 Vertranius, for luendo.

&lt;sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for aut. <sup>4</sup> Aldus, for diciturne. <sup>5</sup> Skutsch, for sufficience. <sup>6</sup> Kent, for subligaculum. <sup>7</sup> For uorturnalia; cf. volturn. in the Fasti. <sup>8</sup> For uorturno; cf. preceding note. <sup>9</sup> Added by Laetus. <sup>10</sup> L. Sp., for dicant. <sup>11</sup> After veteri, G, V, f, Aldus deleted uino; cf. Festus, 123. 16 M.

&lt;sup>c</sup> An oblong piece of white cloth with a coloured border, which the Vestal Virgins fastened over their heads with a fibula clasp when they offered sacrifice; cf. Festus, 348 a 25 and 349. 8 M. <sup>d</sup> On August 27; the god Volturnus cannot be identified unless he is identical with Vortumnus (Vertumnus), since he can hardly be the deity of the river Volturnus in Campania or of the mountain Voltur, in Apulia, near Horace's birthplace. <sup>e</sup> On October 3; Meditrina, may enter it except the Vestal Virgins and the state priest. "When he goes there, let him wear a white veil," is the direction; this suffibulum "white veil' is named as if sub-figabulum from suffigere 'to fasten down.' The Volturnalia 'Festival of Volturnus,' from the god Volturnus, whose feast takes place then. In the month of October, the Meditrinalia "Festival of Meditrina" was named from mederi 'to be healed,' because Flaccus the special priest of Mars used to say that on this day it was the practice to pour an offering of new and old wine to the god, and to taste of the same, for the purpose of being healed; which many are accustomed to do even now, when they say:

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 21-22

Wine new and old I drink, of illness new and old I'm cured.

22. The Fontanalia 'Festival of the Springs,' from Fons' God of Springs,' because that day a is his holiday; on his account they then throw garlands into the springs and place them on the well-tops. The Armilustrium b' Purification of the Arms,' from the fact that armed men perform the ceremony in the Armilustrium, unless the place is rather named from the men; but as I said of them previously, this word comes from ludere 'to play' or from lustrum 'purification,' that is, because armed men went around ludentes 'making sport' with the sacred shields.<sup>d</sup>

Goddess of Healing. The ceremonial first drinking of the new wine. Frag. Poet. Lat., page 31 Morel.

§ 22. October 13. October 13. The place was named from the ceremony; cf. v. 153. The first ancile is said to have fallen from heaven in the reign of Numa, who had eleven others made exactly like it, to prevent its loss or to prevent knowledge of its loss; for the safety of the City depended on the preservation of that shield which fell from heaven.

Saturnalia dicta ab Saturno, quod eo die feriae eius, ut post diem tertium Opalia Opis.

- 23. Angeronalia ab Angerona, cui sacrificium fit in Curia Acculeia et cuius feriae publicae is dies. Larentinae, quem diem quidam in scribendo Larentalia appellant, ab Acca Larentia nominatus, cui sacerdotes nostri publice parentant e sexto die,¹ qui ab ea² dicitur dies³ Parent⟨ali⟩um⁴ Accas Larentinas.⁵
- 24. Hoc sacrificium fit in Velabro, qua¹ in Novam Viam exitur, ut aiunt quidam ad sepulcrum Accae, ut quod ibi prope faciunt diis Manibus servilibus sacerdotes; qui uterque locus extra urbem antiquam fuit non longe a Porta Romanula, de qua in priore libro dixi. Dies Septimontium nominatus ab his septem montibus, in quis sita Urbs est; feriae non populi, sed montanorum modo, ut Paganalibus, qui sunt alicuius pagi.

25. De statutis diebus dixi; de annalibus nec

§ 23. <sup>1</sup> parentant Aug., e sexto die Fay, for parent ante sexto die. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for atra. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for diem. <sup>4</sup> Mommsen, for tarentum. <sup>5</sup> L. Sp., for tarentinas. § 24. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for quia.

* December 17, and the following days.

§ 23. * On December 21. * Goddess of Suffering and Silence.

Con December 23; supply feriae with Larentinae.

Wife of Faustulus; she nursed and brought up the twins Romulus and Remus.

"Sixth" is wrong if the Saturnalia began on December 17, unless in this instance both ends are counted, or the allusion is to an earlier practice by which the Saturnalia began one day later. On the phrase e seato die, cf. Fay, Amer. Journ. Phil. xxxv. 246.

Archaic genitive singular ending in -as.

The Saturnalia 'Festival of Saturn' was named from Saturn, because on this day e was his festival, as on the second day thereafter the Opalia, the festival of Ops.

23. The Angeronalia, from Angerona, to whom a sacrifice is made in the Acculeian Curia and of whom this day is a state festival. The Larentine Festival, which certain writers call the Larentalia, was named from Acca Larentia,d to whom our priests officially perform ancestor-worship on the sixth day after the Saturnalia, which day is from her called the Day of the Parentalia of Larentine Acca.f

- 24. This sacrifice is made in the Velabrum, where it ends in New Street, as certain authorities say, at the tomb of Acca, because near there the priests make offering to the departed spirits of the slaves a: both these places b were outside the ancient city, not far from the Little Roman Gate, of which I spoke in the preceding book.c Septimontium Day d was named from these septem montes 'seven hills,'e on which the City is set; it is a holiday not of the people generally, but only of those who live on the hills, as only those who are of some pagus 'country district' have a holiday f at the Paganalia g 'Festival of the Country Districts.'
- 25. The fixed days are those of which I have spoken; now I shall speak of the annual festivals
- § 24. <sup>a</sup> Faustulus and Acca were, of course, slaves of the king. b The tomb of Acca and the place of sacrifice to the Manes serviles. cv. 164. d On December 11. Not the usual later seven; Festus, 348 M., lists Capitoline with Velia and Cermalus, three spurs of the Esquiline-Oppius, Fagutal, Cispius-and the Subura valley between. Supply feriantur. Early in January, but not on a fixed date.

d(i)e¹ statutis dicam. Compitalia dics attributus Laribus vialibus²: ideo ubi viae competunt tum in competis sacrificatur. Quotannis is dies concipitur. Similiter Latinae Feriae dies conceptivus³ dictus a Latinis populis, quibus ex Albano Monte ex sacris carnem⁴ petere fuit ius cum Romanis, a quibus Latinis Latinae dictae.

26. Sementivae¹ Feriae dies is, qui a pontificibus dictus, appellatus a semente, quod sationis causa suscepta⟨e⟩.² Paganicae eiusdem agriculturae causa susceptae, ut haberent in agris omnis³ pagus, unde Paganicae dictae. Sünt praeterea feriae conceptivae quae non sunt annales, ut hae quae dicuntur sine proprio vocabulo aut cum perspicuo,⁴ ut Novendiales⁵ sunt.

IV. 27. De his diebus (satis)<sup>1</sup>; nunc iam, qui hominum causa constituti, videamus. Primi dies mensium nominati Kalendae,<sup>2</sup> quod his diebus calan-

§ 25. <sup>1</sup> Mommsen, for de. <sup>2</sup> Bongars, for ut alibi. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for conseptivus. <sup>4</sup> Victorius, for carmen.

§ 26. <sup>1</sup> f, Vertranius, for sementinae. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for suscepta. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for omnes. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for perspicio. <sup>5</sup> For novendialis.

§ 27. 1 Added by Sciop. 2 Aug., with B, for cal-.

<sup>§ 25. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> That is, set by special proclamation, and not always falling on the same date. <sup>b</sup> By the praetor, not far from January 1. <sup>c</sup> Written competa in the text, to make the association with competant. <sup>d</sup> The festival of the league of the Latin cities; its date was set by the Roman consuls (or by a consul) as soon as convenient after entry into office.

<sup>§ 26.</sup> In January, on two days separated by a space of seven days; as they were days of sowing, the choice depended upon the weather. Collective singular with which are not fixed on a special day.<sup>a</sup> The Compitalia is a day assigned <sup>b</sup> to the Lares of the highways; therefore where the highways competant 'meet,' sacrifice is then made at the compita <sup>c</sup> 'crossroads.' This day is appointed every year. Likewise the Latinae Feriae 'Latin Holiday' <sup>d</sup> is an appointed day, named from the peoples of Latium, who had equal right with the Romans to get a share of the meat at the sacrifices on the Alban Mount: from these Latin peoples it was called the Latin Holiday.

26. The Sementivae Feriae 'Seed-time Holiday' a is that day which is set by the pontiffs; it was named from the sementis 'seeding,' because it is entered upon for the sake of the sowing. The Paganicae 'Country-District Holiday' was entered upon for the sake of this same agriculture, that the whole pagus b' country-district' might hold it in the fields, whence it was called Paganicae. There are also appointive holidays which are not annual, such as those which are set without a special name of their own, c or with an obvious one, such as is the Novendialis 'Ceremony of the Ninth Day.' d

IV. 27. About these days this is enough <sup>a</sup>; now let us see to the days which are instituted for the interests of men. The first days of the months are named the Kalendae, <sup>b</sup> because on these days the plural verb. <sup>c</sup> Such as the supplicationes voted for Caesar's victories in Gaul; cf. Bell. Gall. ii. 35. 4, iv. 38. 5, vii. 90. 8. <sup>d</sup> The offerings and feasts for the dead on the ninth day after the funeral; also, a festival of nine days proclaimed for the purpose of averting misfortunes whose approach was indicated by omens and prodigies.

§ 27. <sup>a</sup> The insertion of satis makes the chapter beginning conform to those at v. 57, 75, 95, 184, vi. 35, etc. <sup>b</sup> The K in Kalendae and kalo, before A, is well attested.

tur eius mensis<sup>3</sup> Nonae a pontificibus, quintanae an septimanae sint futurae, in Capitolio in Curia Calabra sic: "Die te quinti4 kalo5 Iuno Covella" (aut)6 "Sep-tim(i) die te7 kalo5 Iuno Covella."

28. Nonae appellatae aut quod ante diem nonum Idus semper, aut quod, ut novus annus Kalendae<sup>1</sup> Ianuariae ab novo sole appellatae, novus mensis (ab)2 nova luna Nonae3; eodem die4 in Urbe(m)5 (qui)6 in agris ad regem conveniebat populus. Harum rerum vestigia apparent in sacris Nonalibus in Arce, quod tunc ferias primas menstruas, quae futurae sint eo mense, rex edicit populo. Idus ab eo quod Tusci Itus, vel potius quod Sabini Idus dicunt.

29. Dies postridie Kalendas, Nonas, Idus appellati atri, quod per eos dies (nihil) novi inciperent. Dies fasti, per quos praetoribus omnia verba sine piaculo licet fari; comitiales dicti, quod tum ut (in Comitio)2 § 28. The north-eastern summit of the Capitoline. <sup>b</sup> Origin uncertain; perhaps from Etruscan, as Varro says.

200

&lt;sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for menses. <sup>4</sup> Mommsen; die te V Christ; for dictae quinque. <sup>5</sup> See note 2, § 27. <sup>6</sup> Added by Zander. <sup>7</sup> Mommsen; VII die te Christ; for septem dictae.

<sup>§ 28. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for calendae. <sup>2</sup> a added by Sciop. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for nonis. <sup>4</sup> After die, Mue. deleted enim. <sup>5</sup> Laetus, for urbe. <sup>6</sup> Added by L. Sp. § 29. <sup>1</sup> Added by Turnebus. <sup>2</sup> Added by Bergk.

&lt;sup>c</sup> See v. 13. <sup>d</sup> The statement of Macrobius, Sat. i. 15. 10, that kalo Iuno Covella was repeated five or seven times respectively, may rest merely on a corrupted form of this passage which was in the copy used by Macrobius. 6 ' Juno of the New Moon'; Covella, diminutive from covus 'hollow,' earlier form of cavus (cf. v. 19)-unless it be corrupt for Novella, as Scaliger thought. For the New Moon has a concave shape.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 27-29

Nones of this month calantur ' are announced' by the pontiffs on the Capitoline in Announcement Hall, whether they will be on the fifth or on the seventh, in this way <sup>d</sup>: "Juno Covella, <sup>e</sup> I announce thee on the fifth day" or "Juno Covella, I announce thee on the seventh day."

28. The Nones are so called either because they are always the nonus 'ninth' day before the Ides, or because the Nones are called the novus 'new' month from the new moon, just as the Kalends of January are called the new year from the new sun; on the same day the people who were in the fields used to flock into the City to the King. Traces of this status are seen in the ceremonies held on the Nones, on the Citadel, because at that time the high-priest announces to the people the first monthly holidays which are to take place in that month. The Idus b' Ides,' from the fact that the Etruscans called them the Idus, or rather because the Sabines call them the Idus.

29. The days next after the Kalends, the Nones, and the Ides, were called atri 'black,' a because on these days they might not start anything new. Dies fasti b' righteous days, court days,' on which the praetors c are permitted fari 'to say' any and all words without sin. Comitiales 'assembly days' are so called because then it is the established law that the § 29. <sup>a</sup> Cf. Macrobius, Sat. i. 15. 22; the use of ater was appropriate after the Ides, when the moon was not visible in the day nor in the early evening, nor was it visible immediately after the Kalends. <sup>b</sup> That is, when it was fas to hold court and make legal decisions; Varro connects with fari 'to say,' with which the Romans associated fas etymologically, but the connexion has recently been questioned. <sup>c</sup> Who functioned as judges.

esset populus constitutum est ad suffragium ferundum, nisi si quae feriae conceptae essent, propter quas non liceret, (ut)3 Compitalia et Latinae.

30. Contrarii horum vocantur dies nefasti, per quos dies nefas fari praetorem "do," "dico," "addico"; itaque non potest agi: necesse est aliquo (eorum)1 uti verbo, cum lege qui(d)2 peragitur. Quod si tum imprudens id verbum emisit ac quem manumisit, ille nihilo minus est liber, sed vitio, ut magistratus vitio creatus nihilo setius3 magistratus. Praetor qui tum fatus4 est, si imprudens fecit, piaculari hostia facta piatur; si prudens dixit, Quintus Mucius aiebat<sup>5</sup> eum expiari ut impium non posse.

31. Întercisi¹ dies sunt per quos mane et vesperi est nefas, medio tempore inter hostiam caesam et exta porrecta<sup>2</sup> fas; a quo quod fas tum intercedit aut eo<sup>3</sup> intercisum nefas, intercisi.4 Dies qui vocatur sic "Quando rex comitiavit fas," is dictus ab eo quod

3 Added by Lactus.

§ 30. 1 Added by Laetus, with B. 2 Laetus, for qui. <sup>3</sup> A. Sp.; secius Victorius; for sed ius.

<sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for factus.

<sup>5</sup> L. Sp., for abigebat.

§ 31. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for intercensi.

<sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for proiecta.

<sup>3</sup> L. Sp.; eo est Mue.; for eos.

<sup>4</sup> A. Sp., for intercisum.

<sup>5</sup> Before quando, B inserts Q R C F, the abbreviation found in the Fasti. 6 fas is Victorius, for fassis.

<sup>§ 30. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> For the meaning of vitio, see Dorothy M. Paschall, "The Origin and Semantic Development of Latin Vitium," Trans. Amer. Philol. Assn. lxvii. 219-231. <sup>b</sup> i. 19 Huschke.

<sup>§ 31.</sup> a March 24 and May 24. b The caedere 'to cut' in intercidere and the cedere 'to go on' in intercedere are not etymologically connected.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 29-31

people should be in the Comitium to cast their votes unless some holidays should have been proclaimed on account of which this is not permissible, such as the Compitalia and the Latin Holiday.

30. The opposite of these are called dies nefasti 'unrighteous days,' on which it is nefas' unrighteousness' for the praetor to say do 'I give,' dico 'I pronounce,' addico 'I assign'; therefore no action can be taken, for it is necessary to use some one of these words, when anything is settled in due legal form. But if at that time he has inadvertently uttered such a word and set somebody free, the person is none the less free, but with a bad omen a in the proceeding, just as a magistrate elected in spite of an unfavourable omen is a magistrate just the same. The praetor who has made a legal decision at such a time, is freed of his sin by the sacrifice of an atonement victim, if he did it unintentionally; but if he made the pronouncement with a realization of what he was doing, Quintus Mucius b said that he could not in any way atone for his sin, as one who had failed in his duty to God and country.

31. The intercisi dies 'divided days' are those a on which legal business is wrong in the morning and in the evening, but right in the time between the slaying of the sacrificial victim and the offering of the vital organs; whence they are intercisi because the fas 'right' intercedit b' comes in between 'at that time, or because the nefas' wrong' is intercisum' cut into' by the fas. The day which is called thus: "When the high-priest has officiated in the Comitium, Right," is named from the fact that on this day the high-priest pronounces the proper formulas for the sacrifice in the eo die rex sacrificio ius dicat ad Comitium, ad quod tempus est nefas, ab eo fas: itaque post id tempus lege actum saepe.

32. Dies qui vocatur "Quando stercum delatum fas," ab eo appellatus, quod eo die ex Aede Vestae stercus everritur et per Capitolinum Clivum in locum defertur certum. Dies Alliensis ab Allia² fluvio dictus: nam ibi exercitu nostro fugato Galli obsederunt Romam.

33. Quod ad singulorum dicrum vocabula pertinet dixi. Mensium nomina fere sunt aperta, si a Martio, ut antiqui constituerunt, numeres: nam primus a Marte. Secundus, ut Fulvius scribit et Iunius, a Venere, quod ea sit Aphrodite<sup>1</sup>; cuius nomen ego antiquis litteris quod nusquam inveni, magis puto dictum, quod ver omnia aperit, Aprilem. Tertius a maioribus Maius, quartus a iunioribus dictus Iunius.

34. Dehinc quintus Quintilis et sic deinceps usque ad Decembrem a numero. Ad hos qui additi, prior a principe deo Ianuarius appellatus; posterior, ut idem dicunt scriptores, ab diis inferis Februarius appellatus, <sup>7</sup> Other codices, for sacrificiolus Fv.

§ 32. <sup>1</sup> Before quando, B inserts Q S D F, the abbreviation found in the Fasti. <sup>2</sup> B, Laetus, for allio (auio f). § 33. <sup>1</sup> For afrodite.

§ 32. <sup>a</sup> June 15. <sup>b</sup> July 18; anniversary of the battle of 390 B.C., at the place where the Allia flows into the Tiber, eleven miles above Rome.

§ 34. a Varro wrote before Quintilis was renamed Iulius

<sup>§ 33. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Probably from an adjective apero- 'second,' not otherwise found in Latin. <sup>b</sup> Servius Fulvius Flaccus, consul 135 B.C., skilled in law, literature, and ancient history. <sup>c</sup> Page 121 Funaioli; page 11 Huschke. <sup>d</sup> From Maia, mother of Mercury. <sup>e</sup> From the goddess Juno; page 121 Funaioli.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 31-34

presence of the assembly, up to which time legal business is wrong, and from that time on it is right: therefore after this time of day actions are often taken under the law.

- 32. The day <sup>a</sup> which is called "When the dung has been carried out, Right," is named from this, that on this day the dung is swept out of the Temple of Vesta and is carried away along the Capitoline Incline to a certain spot. The Dies Alliensis <sup>b</sup> 'Day of the Allia' is called from the Allia River; for there our army was put to flight by the Gauls just before they besieged Rome.
- 33. With this I have finished my account of what pertains to the names of individual days. The names of the months are in general obvious, if you count from March, as the ancients arranged them; for the first month, Martius, is from Mars. The second, Aprilis, as Fulvius b writes and Junius also, is from Venus, because she is Aphrodite; but I have nowhere found her name in the old writings about the month, and so think that it was called April rather because spring aperit opens everything. The third was called Maius of May from the maiores elders, the fourth Iunius of June from the iuniores younger men.
- 34. Thence the fifth is Quintilis a 'July' and so in succession to December, named from the numeral. Of those which were added to these, the prior was called Ianuarius 'January' from the god b who is first in order; the latter, as the same writers say, was called Februarius a 'February' from the di inferi 'gods and Sextilis was renamed Augustus. <sup>b</sup> Janus. <sup>c</sup> Page 16 Funaioli; page 11 Huschke. <sup>d</sup> From a lost word feber 'sorrow.'

quod tum his paren(te)tur1; ego magis arbitror Februarium a die februato, quod tum februatur populus, id est Lupercis nudis lustratur antiquum oppidum Palatinum gregibus humanis cinctum.

V. 35. Quod ad temporum vocabula Latina attinet, hactenus sit satis dictum; nunc quod ad eas res attinet quae in tempore aliquo fieri animadverterentur, dicam, ut haec sunt: legisti, cursus, 1 ludens; de quis duo praedicere volo, quanta sit multitudo eorum et quae sint obscuriora quam alia.

36. Cum verborum declinatuum¹ genera sint quattuor, unum quod tempora adsignificat neque habet casus, ut ab lego leges, lege2; alterum quod casus habet neque tempora adsignificat, ut ab lego lectio et lector; tertium quod habet utrunque et tempora et casus, ut ab lego legens, lecturus; quartum quod neutrum habet, ut ab lego lecte ac lectissime : horum verborum si primigenia sunt ad mille,3 ut Cosconius scribit, ex eorum declinationibus verborum discrimina quingenta milia esse possunt ideo, quod a4 singulis verbis primigenii(s)5 circiter quingentae species declinationibus fiunt.

§ 35. 1 Mue., with G, H, for currus.

§ 35. a That is, all verbal forms, and the derivatives from the verbal roots.

&lt;sup>1</sup> Aug.: parentent Laetus: for parent.

&lt;sup>1</sup> B, Lactus, for declinatiuum. <sup>2</sup> V, b, for lego <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for admitte. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for quia. § 36. <sup>5</sup> Aug., for primigenii.

Three different ceremonies are confounded here: one of purification, one of expiation to the gods of the Lower World, one of fertility; cf. vi. 13, note a.

<sup>§ 36. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The verb has both meanings; some of the derivatives have only one or the other. <sup>b</sup> Q. Cosconius, orator 206 of the Lower World,' because at that time expiatory sacrifices are made to them; but I think that it was called February rather from the dies februatus' Purification Day,' because then the people februatur' is purified,' that is, the old Palatine town girt with flocks of people is passed around by the naked Luperci.

V. 35. As to what pertains to Latin names of time ideas, let that which has been said up to this point be enough. Now I shall speak of what concerns those things which might be observed as taking place at some special time a—such as the following: legisti 'thou didst read,' cursus 'act of running,' ludens 'playing.' With regard to these there are two things which I wish to say in advance: how great their number is, and what features are less perspicuous than others.

36. The inflections of words are of four kinds: one which indicates the time and does not have case, as leges 'thou wilt gather or read,' a lege 'read thou,' from lego 'I gather or read'; a second, which has case and does not indicate time, as from lego lectio 'collection, act of reading,' lector 'reader'; the third, which has both, time and case, as from lego legens 'reading,' lecturus 'being about to read'; the third, which has neither, as from lego lecte 'choicely,' lectissime 'most choicely.' Therefore if the primitives of these words amount to one thousand, as Cosconius b writes, then from the inflections of these words the different forms can be five hundred thousand in number for the reason that from each and every primitive word about five hundred forms are made by derivation and inflection.

and authority on grammar and literature, who flourished about 100 s.c.; page 109 Funaioli.

- 37. Primigenia dicuntur verba ut lego, scribo, sto, sedeo et cetera, quae non sunt ab ali\(\rightarrow\) quo¹ verbo, sed suas habent radices. Contra verba declinata sunt, quae ab ali\(\rightarrow\) quo² oriuntur, ut ab lego legis, legit, legam et sic³ indidem hinc permulta. Quare si quis primigeniorum verborum origines ostenderit, si ea mille sunt, quingentum milium simplicium verborum causas aperuerit una; sin⁴ nullius, tamen qui ab his reliqua orta ostenderit, satis dixerit de originibus verborum, cum unde nata sint, principia erunt pauca, quae inde nata sint, innumerabilia.
- 38. A quibus iisdem principiis antepositis praeverbiis paucis immanis verborum accedit numerus, quod praeverbiis (in)mutatis¹ additis atque commutatis aliud atque aliud fit: ut enim (pro)cessit² et recessit, sic accessit et abscessit; item incessit et excessit, sic successit et decessit, (discessit)³ et concessit. Quod si haec decem sola praeverbia essent, quoniam ab uno verbo declinationum quingenta discrimina fierent, his decemplicatis coniuncto praeverbio ex uno quinque milia numero efficerent(ur),⁴ ex mille ad quinquagies centum milia discrimina fieri possunt.

§ 37. <sup>1</sup> Mue.; alio Aug., G; for aliquo. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for aliquo. <sup>3</sup> After sic, Laetus deleted in. <sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for unas in.

§ 38. <sup>1</sup> GS., for mutatis. <sup>2</sup> Fritzsche, for cessit. <sup>3</sup> Added by GS (et discessit added by Vertranius). <sup>4</sup> Aldus, for efficerent.

 $\S$  37. <sup>a</sup> That is, cannot be referred to a simpler radical element.

37. Primitive is the name applied to words like lego 'I gather,' scribo 'I write,' sto 'I stand,' sedeo 'I sit,' and the rest which are not from some other word, a but have their own roots. On the other hand derivative words are those which do develop from some other word, as from lego come legis 'thou gatherest,' legit 'he gathers,' legam' I shall gather,' and in this fashion from this same word come a great number of words. Therefore, if one has shown the origins of the primitive words, and if these are one thousand in number, he will have revealed at the same time the sources of five hundred thousand separate words; but if without showing the origin of a single primitive word he has shown how the rest have developed from the primitives, he will have said quite enough about the origins of words, since the original elements from which the words are sprung are few and the words which have sprung from them are countless.

38. There are besides an enormous number of words derived from these same original elements by the addition of a few prefixes, because by the addition of prefixes with or without change a word is repeatedly transformed; for as there is processit 'he marched forward' and recessit 'drew back,' so there is accessit 'approached' and abscessit 'went off,' likewise incessit 'advanced' and excessit 'withdrew,' so also successit 'went up' and decessit 'went away,' discessit 'departed' and concessit 'gave way.' But if there were only these ten prefixes, from the thousand primitives five million different forms can be made inasmuch as from one word there are five hundred derivational forms and when these are multiplied by ten through union with a prefix five thousand different forms are produced out of one primitive.

39. Democritus, E\pi\curus,¹ item alii qui infinita principia dixerunt, quae unde sint non dicunt, sed cuiusmodi sint, tamen faciunt magnum: quae ex his constant in mundo, ostendunt. Quare si etymologus² principia verborum postulet mille, de quibus ratio ab se non poscatur, et reliqua ostendat, quod non postulat, tamen immanem verborum expediat numerum.

40. De multitudine quoniam quod satis esset admonui,¹ de obscuritate pauca dicam. Verborum quae tempora adsignificant ideo locus² difficillimus ἔτυμα,³ quod neque his fere societas cum Graeca lingua, neque vernacula ea quorum in partum memoria adfuerit nostra; e⁴ quibus, ut dixi,⁵ quae poterimus.

VI. 41. Incipiam hine primum quod dicitur ago. Actio ab agitatu facta. Hine dicimus "agit gestum tragoedus," et "agitantur quadrigae"; hine "agitur pecus pastum." Qua³ vix agi potest, hine angiportum; qua nil potest agi, hine angulus, ⟨vel⟩⁴ quod in eo locus angustissimus, cuius loci is angulus.

42. Actionum trium primus agitatus mentis, quod

§ 39. <sup>1</sup> Turnebus, for secutus Fv, securus G, H. <sup>2</sup> etymologos B, Rhol., for ethimologos Fv, ethimologus G.

§ 40. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for admonuit. <sup>2</sup> f, Aldus, for locutus. <sup>3</sup> est ἔτυμα Sciop. (L. Sp. deleted est), for est TΥΜα Fv. <sup>4</sup> A. Sp., for nostrae. <sup>5</sup> M, Laetus, for dixit.

§ 41. 1 Lactus, for primus. 2 For tragaedus. 3 Aldus, for quia. 4 Added by Mue., whose punctuation is here followed.

§ 40. a For adfuerit with the goal construction, cf. Vergil, Ecl. 2. 45 huc ades, etc. b v. 10.

<sup>§ 39. °</sup> Of Abdera (about 460–373 B.c.), originator of the atomic theory. ° Of Athens (341–270 B.c.), founder of the Epicurean school of philosophy; Epic. 201. 33 Usener. ° That is, that he should be excused from interpreting them (quod for quot).

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 39-42

39. Democritus,<sup>a</sup> Epicurus,<sup>b</sup> and likewise others who have pronounced the original elements to be unlimited in number, though they do not tell us whence the elements are, but only of what sort they are, still perform a great service: they show us the things which in the world consist of these elements. Therefore if the etymologist should postulate one thousand original elements of words, about which an interpretation is not to be asked of him, and show the nature of the rest, about which he does not make the postulation,<sup>c</sup> the number of words which he would explain would still be enormous.

40. Since I have given a sufficient reminder of the number of existing words, I shall speak briefly about their obscurity. Of the words which also indicate time the most difficult feature is their radicals, for the reason that these have in general no communion with the Greek language, and those to whose birth a our memory reaches are not native Latin; yet of these, as I have said, b we shall say what we can.

VI. 41. I shall start first from the word ago 'I drive, effect, do.' Actio 'action' is made from agitatus 'motion.' a From this we say "The tragic actor agit 'makes' a gesture," and "The chariot-team agitantur 'is driven'"; from this, "The flock agitur' is driven' to pasture." Where it is hardly possible for anything agi 'to be driven, from this it is called an angiportum o' alley'; where nothing can agi be driven, from this it is an angulus corner, or else because in it is a very narrow (angustus) place to which this corner belongs.

42. There are three actiones 'actions,' and of these primum ea quae sumus acturi cogitare debemus, deinde tum dicere et facere. De his tribus minime putat volgus esse actionem cogitationem; tertium, in quo quid facimus, id maximum. Sed et cum cogitamus¹ quid et eam rem agitamus² in mente, agimus, et cum pronuntiamus, agimus. Itaque ab eo orator agere dicitur causam et augures augurium agere dicuntur, quom in eo plura dicant quam faciant.

<sup>§ 41.</sup> a All these words are derivatives of agere, except angiportum and angulus; but actio does not develop by loss of the i in agitatus. b Cf. v. 145.

- 43. Cogitare a cogendo dictum: mens plura in unum cogit, unde eligere¹ possit. Sic e lacte coacto caseus nominatus; sic ex hominibus contio dicta, sic coemptio, sic compitum nominatum. A cogitatione concilium, inde consilium; quod ut vestimentum apud fullonem cum cogitur, conciliari2 dictum.
- 44. Sic reminisci, cum ea quae tenuit mens ac memoria, cogitando repetuntur. Hinc etiam comminisci dictum, a con et mente, cum finguntur in mente quae non sunt; et ab hoc illud quod dicitur eminisci,¹ cum commentum pronuntiatur. Ab eadem § 42. 1 Sciop., for hos agitamus Fv. 2 L. Sp., for cogitamus.

<sup>2</sup> Aug., for consiliari. § 43. <sup>1</sup> a, p, Rhol., for elicere. § 44. 1 Heusinger, for reminisci.

<sup>§ 42. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Page 16 Regell. § 43. <sup>a</sup> Here Varro gives a parenthetic list of words with the prefix co- or com-; though he is wrong in including b Cogitatio, concilium, consilium have nothing in common except the prefix.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 42-44

the first is the agitatus 'motion' of the mind, because we must first cogitare 'consider' those things which we are acturi 'going to do,' and then thereafter say them and do them. Of these three, the common folk practically never thinks that cogitatio 'consideration' is an action; but it thinks that the third, in which we do something, is the most important. But also when we cogitamus 'consider' something and agitamus 'turn it over' in mind, we agimus 'are acting,' and when we make an utterance, we agimus 'are acting.' Therefore from this the orator is said agere 'to plead' the case, and the augurs are said a agere 'to practice' augury, although in it there is more saying than doing.

43. Cogitare 'to consider' is said from cogere 'to bring together': the mind cogit 'brings together' several things into one place, from which it can choose. Thus a from milk that is coactum 'pressed,' caseus 'cheese' was named; thus from men brought together was the contio 'mass meeting' called, thus coemptio 'marriage by mutual sale,' thus compitum 'cross-roads.' From cogitatio 'consideration' came concilium 'council,' and from that came consilium 'counsel'; and the concilium is said conciliari 'to be brought into unity' like a garment when it cogitur' is pressed 'at the cleaner's.

44. Thus reminisci 'to recall,' when those things which have been held by mind and memory are fetched back again by considering (cogitando). From this also comminisci 'to fabricate a story 'is said, from con' together 'and mens' mind,' when things which are not, are devised in the mind; and from that comes the word eminisci 'to use the imagination,' when the commentum 'fabrication' is uttered. From the same mente meminisse dictum et amens, qui a mente sua discedit.2

- 45. Hinc etiam metus1 (a) mente quodam modo mota,2 ut3 metuisti (te)4 amovisti; sic, quod frigidus timor, tremuisti timuisti. Tremo dictum a similitudine vocis, quae tunc cum valde tremunt apparet, cum etiam in corpore pili, ut arista in spica hordei, horrent.
- 46. Curare a cura dictum. Cura, quod cor urat; curiosus, quod hac praeter modum utitur. Recordari, rursus in cor revocare. Curiae, ubi senatus rempublicam curat, et illa ubi cura sacrorum publica; ab his curiones.
- 47. Volo a voluntate dictum et a volatu, quod animus ita est, ut puncto temporis pervolet quo volt. Lubere ab labendo dictum, quod lubrica mens ac prolabitur, ut dicebant olim. Ab lubendo libido, libidinosus ac Venus Libentina et Libitina, sic alia.

<sup>2</sup> Aug., for descendit.

§ 45. <sup>1</sup> GS., for metuo. <sup>2</sup> Canal, for mentem quodam modo motam. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for uel. <sup>4</sup> Added by Kent, after Fay.  $\S 46$ .  $^1$  Aug., with B, for recordare.  $\S 47$ .  $^1$  L. Sp., for libere.

<sup>§ 45.</sup> a According to Mueller, the sequence of the topics indicates that this section and § 49 have been interchanged in the manuscripts. All etymologies in this section are wrong. § 46. Three etymologically distinct sets of words are here united: cura, curare, curiosus; cor, recordari; curia, curio.

<sup>§ 47.</sup> a Volo 'I wish' is distinct from volo 'I fly.' b Lubet, later libet, is distinct from labi and from lubricus. <sup>c</sup> Either as a euphemism, or from the fact that the funeral apparatus was kept in the storerooms of the Temple of Venus, which caused the epithet to acquire a new meaning.

word mens 'mind' come meminisse 'to remember' and amens 'mad,' said of one who has departed a mente 'from his mind.'

45.4 From this moreover metus 'fear,' from the mens' mind 'somehow mota' moved,' as metuisti' you feared,' equal to te amovisti' you removed yourself.' So, because timor 'fear' is cold, tremuisti' you shivered 'is equal to timuisti' you feared.' Tremo' I shiver' is said from the similarity to the behaviour of the voice, which is evident then when people shiver very much, when even the hairs on the body bristle up like the beard on an ear of barley.

46.ª Curare 'to care for, look after 'is said from cura 'care, attention.' Cura, because it cor urat 'burns the heart'; curiosus 'inquisitive,' because such a person indulges in cura beyond the proper measure. Recordari 'to recall to mind,' is revocare 'to call back' again into the cor 'heart.' The curiae 'halls,' where the senate curat 'looks after' the interests of the state, and also there where there is the cura 'care' of the state sacrifices; from these, the curiones 'priests of the curiae.'

47. Volo' I wish' is said from voluntas' free-will' and from volatus' flight,' because the spirit is such that in an instant it pervolat' flies through' to any place whither it volt 'wishes.' Lubere' 'to be pleasing' is said from labi' to slip,' because the mind is lubrica' slippery' and prolabitur' slips forward,' as of old they used to say. From lubere' to be pleasing' come libido 'lust,' libidinosus' lustful,' and Venus Libentina' goddess of sensual pleasure' and Libitina' goddess of the funeral equipment,' so also other words.

48. Metuere a quodam motu animi, cum id quod malum casurum putat refugit mens. Cum vehementius in movendo ut ab se abeat foras fertur. formido; cum (parum movetur)1 pavet, et ab eo pavor.

49. Meminisse a memoria, cum (in) id quod remansit in mente1 rursus movetur; quae a manendo2 ut manimoria<sup>3</sup> potest esse dicta. Itaque Salii quod cantant:

Mamuri Veturi.4

significant memoriam veterem.5 Ab eodem monere,6 quod is qui monet, proinde sit ac memoria; sic monimenta quae in sepulcris, et ideo secundum viam, quo praetereuntis admoneant 7 et se fuisse et illos esse mortalis. Ab eo cetera quae scripta ac facta memoriae causa monimenta dieta.

50. Maerere a marcere, quod etiam corpus marcescere(t) 1; hinc etiam macri dicti. Laetari ab eo

§ 48. Added by L. Sp.

§ 49. 1 A. Sp., for id quod remansit in mente in id quod; the omission, with Sciop. <sup>2</sup> Rhol., for manando.

<sup>3</sup> Other codices, for maniomoria Fv. <sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for memurii ueterum or ueteri. 5 Maurenbrecher; veterem memoriam Aug., with B; where, according to Victorius, F had memoriam followed by an illegible word. 6 For monerem. For admoueant Fv, admoneat B.

§ 50. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for marcescere.

<sup>§ 48.</sup> a All etymologies in the section are wrong. § 49. a See note on § 45. Meminisse, mens, monere, monimentum (or monumentum) are from the same root; memoria is perhaps remotely connected with them; but manere is to be kept apart.

b Frag. 8, page 339 Maurenbrecher; page 4 Morel. The traditional smith who made the best of the duplicate ancilia (see vi. 22, note d), and at his request was rewarded by the insertion of his name in the Hymns of the Salii (Festus, 131. 11 M.). But Varro seems 216

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 48-50

48.a Metuere 'to fear,' from a certain motus 'emotion' of the spirit, when the mind shrinks back from that misfortune which it thinks will fall upon it. When from excessive violence of the emotion it is borne foras 'forth' so as to go out of itself, there is formido 'terror'; when parum movetur' the emotion is not very strong,' it pavet 'dreads,' and from this comes pavor' dread.'

49.<sup>a</sup> Meminisse 'to remember,' from memoria 'memory,' when there is again a motion toward that which remansit 'has remained 'in the mens 'mind': and this may have been said from manere' to remain,' as though manimoria. Therefore the Salii,<sup>b</sup> when they sing

O Mamurius Veturius,<sup>c</sup>

indicate a memoria vetus 'memory of olden times.' From the same is monere' to remind,' because he who monet 'reminds,' is just like a memory. So also the monimenta 'memorials' which are on tombs, and in fact alongside the highway, that they may admonere 'admonish' the passers-by that they themselves were mortal and that the readers are too. From this, the other things that are written and done to preserve their memoria' memory 'are called monimenta' monuments.'

50.4 Maerere 'to grieve,' was named from marcere 'to wither away,' because the body too would marcescere 'waste away'; from this moreover the macri 'lean' were named. Laetari' to be happy,' from this, to feel an etymological connexion between Mamuri Veturi and memoriam veterem.

§ 50. a All etymologies wrong, except the association of laetari, laetitia, laeta.

VARRO

quod latius gaudium propter magni boni opinionem diffusum. Itaque Iuventius ait:

Gaudia
Sua si omnes homines conferant unum in locum,
Tamen mea exsuperet lactitia.

Sic cum se habent, laeta.

- VII. 51. Narro, cum alterum facio narum,¹ a quo narratio, per quam cognoscimus rem gesta⟨m⟩.² Quae pars agendi est ab dicendo³ ac sunt aut coniuncta cum temporibus aut ab his : eorum⁴ hoc genus videntur ἔτυμα.
- 52. Fatur is qui primum homo significabilem ore mittit vocem. Ab eo, ante quam ita faciant, pueri dicuntur infantes; cum id faciunt, iam fari; cum hoc vocabulum,¹ ⟨tum⟩ a similitudine vocis pueri ⟨fariolus⟩ ac fatuus dictum.² Ab hoc tempora³ quod tum pueris constituant Parcae fando, dictum fatum et res fatales. Ab hac eadem voce⁴ qui facile fantur facundi dicti, et qui futura praedivinando soleant fari fatidici; dicti idem vaticinari, quod vesana mente faciunt:

§ 51. <sup>1</sup> Victorius, for narrum. <sup>2</sup> For gesta Fv. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp.; a dicendo Ursinus; for ab adiacendo Fv. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for earum.

§ 52. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for uocabulorum. <sup>2</sup> GS., for a similitudine uocis pueri ac fatuus fari id dictum. <sup>3</sup> Popma, for tempore. 4 Canal, for ad haec eandem uocem.

siodorus, vii. 159. 8 Keil; the etymology is correct. b Cf vi. 42.

§ 52. <sup>a</sup> The etymologies in this section are correct, except those of fariolus and vaticinari. <sup>b</sup> Dialectal form, prob-218

 &lt;sup>b</sup> Com. Rom. Frag., verses 2-4 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. Juventius was a writer of comedies from the Greek, in the second century B.c. § 51.
 <sup>a</sup> Varro wrote naro, with one R, according to Cassiodorus, vii. 159. 8 Keil; the etymology is correct.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 50-52

that joy is spread latius 'more widely' because of the idea that it is a great blessing. Therefore Juventius says b:

Should all men bring their joys into a single spot, My happiness would yet surpass the total lot.

When things are of this nature, they are said to be laeta 'happy.'

VII. 51. Narro a 'I narrate,' when I make a second person narus 'acquainted with 'something; from which comes narratio 'narration,' by which we make acquaintance with an occurrence. This part of acting is in the section of saying, b and the words are united with time-ideas or are from them: those of this sort seem to be radicals.

52.a That man fatur 'speaks' who first emits from his mouth an utterance which may convey a meaning. From this, before they can do so, children are called infantes 'non-speakers, infants'; when they do this, they are said now fari 'to speak'; not only this word, but also, from likeness to the utterance of a child, fariolus b' soothsayer' and fatuus 'prophetic speaker' are said. From the fact that the Birth-Goddesses by fando 'speaking' then set the life-periods for the children, fatum 'fate' is named, and the things that are fatales 'fateful.' From this same word, those who fantur 'speak' easily are called facundi 'eloquent, and those who are accustomed fari 'to speak' the future through presentiment, are called fatidici 'sayers of the fates'; they likewise are said valicinaric' to prophesy,' because they do this with frenzied ably Faliscan, for hariolus, which is connected with haruspex.

As though fati-; but properly from the stems of vates bard and canere to sing.

sed de hoc post erit usurpandum, cum de poetis dicemus.

53. Hinc fasti dies, quibus verba certa legitima sine piaculo praetoribus licet fari; ab hoc nefasti, quibus diebus ea fari ius non est et, si fati sunt, piaculum faciunt. Hinc effata dicuntur, qui augures finem auspiciorum caelestum extra urbem agri(s)¹ sunt effati ut esset; hinc effari templa dicuntur: ab auguribus effantur qui in his fines sunt.

54. Hine fana nominata, quod¹ pontifices in sacrando fati sint finem; hine profanum, quod est ante fanum coniunctum fano; hine profanatum quid in sacrificio atque² Herculi decuma appellata ab eo est quod sacrificio quodam fanatur, id est ut fani lege fit.³ Id dicitur pollu⟨c⟩tum,⁴ quod a porriciendo est fictum: cum enim ex mercibus libamenta porrecta⁵ sunt Herculi in aram, tum pollu⟨c⟩tum⁴ est, ut cum profan⟨at⟩um⁶ dicitur, id est proinde ut sit fani factum: itaque ibi⁻ olim ⟨in⟩⁶ fano consumebatur omne quod

§ 53. 1 Laetus, for agri.

§ 53. Lactus, for agric. § 54. Lactus, for quae. 2 M, V, Lactus, for ad quae Fv. 3 Canal, for sit. 4 Aug. (quoting a friend), for pollutum. 5 Aug., with B, for proiecta. 6 Turnebus, for profanum. 7 Vertranius, for ubi. 8 Added by Vertranius.

d Cf. vii. 36.

§ 53. <sup>a</sup> Fastus and nefastus, from fas and nefas; but whether fas and nefas are from the root of fari, is questionable. <sup>b</sup> Cf. vi. 29-30. <sup>c</sup> Page 19 Regell. <sup>d</sup> Effari is used both with active and with passive meaning.

§ 54. <sup>a</sup> Fanum (whence adj. profanus), from fas, not from fari. <sup>b</sup> Profanus was used also of persons who remained 'before the sanctuary 'because they were not entitled to go inside, or because admission was refused; therefore 'uninitiated' or 'unholy,' respectively. <sup>c</sup> Wrong etymology. <sup>d</sup> Any edibles or drinkables were appropriate offerings to 220 mind: but this will have to be taken up later, when we speak about the poets.d

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 52-54

53. From this the dies fasti a 'righteous days, court days,' on which the praetors are permitted fari 'to speak' without sin certain words of legal force; from this the nefasti 'unrighteous days,' on which it is not right for them to speak them, and if they have spoken these words, they must make atonement.b From this those words are called effata ' pronounced,' by which the augurs c have effation pronounced the limit that the fields outside the city are to have, for the observance of signs in the sky; from this, the areas of observation are said effaria 'to be pronounced'; by the augurs, the boundaries effantur ' are pronounced ' which are attached to them.

54. From this the fana a 'sanctuaries' are named, because the pontiffs in consecrating them have fati 'spoken' their boundary; from this, profanum' being before the sanctuary,' b which applies to something that is in front of the sanctuary and joined to it; from this, anything in the sacrifice, and especially Hercules's tithe, is called profanatum ' brought before the sanctuary, dedicated,' from this fact that it fanatur 'is consecrated 'by some sacrifice, that is, that it becomes by law the property of the sanctuary. This is called polluctum 'offered up,' a term which is shaped of from porricere 'to lay before': for when from articles of commerce first fruits d are laid before Hercules, on his altar, then there is a polluctum 'offering-up,' just as, when profanatum is said, it is as if the thing had become the sanctuary's property. So formerly all that was profanatum e 'dedicated' used to be consumed in Hercules; cf. Festus, 253 a 17-21 M. That is, so far as

profan(at)um<sup>9</sup> erat, ut etiam (nunc)<sup>10</sup> fit quod praetor urb(an)us<sup>11</sup> quotannis facit, cum Herculi immolat publice iuvencam.

55. Ab eodem verbo fari fabulae, ut tragoediae et comoediae,¹ dictae. Hinc fassi ac confessi, qui fati id quod ab is² quaesitum. Hinc professi; hinc fama et famosi. Ab eodem falli, sed et falsum et fallacia, quae propterea, quod fando quem decipit ac contra quam dixit facit. Itaque si quis re fallit, in hoc non proprio nomine fallacia, sed tralati⟨ci⟩o,³ ut a pede nostro pes lecti ac betae. Hinc etiam famigerabile⁴ et sic compositicia⁵ alia item ut declinata multa, in quo et Fatuus et Fatuae.⁵

56. Loqui ab loco dictum.¹ Quod qui primo dicitur iam fari² vocabula et reliqua verba dicit ante quam suo quique³ loco ea dicere potest,¹ hunc Chrysippus negat loqui, sed ut loqui: quare ut imago hominis non sit homo, sic in corvis, cornicibus, pueris primitus incipientibus fari verba non esse verba, quod

 $^9$  L. Sp., for profanum.  $^{10}$  Added by L. Sp.  $^{11}$  Aug., with B, for P. R. urbis Fv.

§ 56. <sup>1</sup> Punctuation by Stroux. <sup>2</sup> For farit Fv. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp.; quidque Aug.; for quisque.

§ 56. <sup>a</sup> Wrong. <sup>b</sup> Page 143 von Arnim. <sup>c</sup> Ravens

222

<sup>§ 55.</sup>  $^1$  For tragaediae et comaediae.  $^2$  For his.  $^3$  A. Sp.; tralatitio Sciop.; for tranlatio.  $^4$  M, V, p, Aldus, for famiger fabile Fv.  $^5$  A. Sp., for composititia Fv.  $^6$  B, G, f, for fatue Fv.

<sup>§ 55. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The preceding words all belong with fari; but falli, falsum, fallacia form a distinct group. <sup>b</sup> Instead of by speaking. <sup>c</sup> That is, beet-root. <sup>d</sup> Faunus and the Nymphs.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 54-56

the sanctuary, as even now is done with that which the City Praetor offers every year, when on behalf of the state he sacrifices a heifer to Hercules.

55. From the same word fari 'to speak,' the fabulae 'plays,' such as tragedies and comedies, were named. From this word, those persons have fassi 'admitted' and confessi 'confessed,' who have fati 'spoken' that which was asked of them. From this, professi 'openly declared'; from this, fama 'talk, rumour,' and famosi 'much talked of, notorious.' a From the same, falli ' to be deceived,' but also falsum 'false' and fallacia' deceit,' which are so named on this account, that by fando 'speaking' one misleads someone and then does the opposite of what he has said. Therefore if one fallit 'deceives 'by an act, b in this there is not fallacia 'deceit' in its own proper meaning, but in a transferred sense, as from our pes 'foot' the pes 'foot' of a bed and of a beet c are spoken of. From this, moreover, famigerabile 'worth being talked about,' and in this fashion other compounded words, just as there are many derived words, among which are Fatuus 'god of prophetic speaking' and the Fatuae' women of prophecy.' d

56. Loqui 'to talk,' is said from locus 'place.'a Because he who is said to speak now for the first time, utters the names and other words before he can say them each in its own locus 'place,' such a person Chrysippus says b does not loqui 'talk,' but quasitalks; and that therefore, as a man's sculptured bust is not the real man, so in the case of ravens, crows, c and boys making their first attempts to speak, their words are not real words, because they are not talk-and crows were the chief speaking birds of the Romans; cf. Macrobius, Sat. ii. 4. 29-30.

non loquantur. Igitur is loquitur, qui suo loco quodque verbum sciens ponit, et is tum prolocutus, quom in animo quod habuit extulit loquendo.

57. Hinc dicuntur eloqui ac reloqui¹ in fanis Sabinis, e cella dei qui loquuntur.² Hinc dictus loquax, qui nimium loqueretur; hinc eloquens, qui copiose loquitur; hinc colloquium, cum veniunt in unum locum loquendi causa; hinc adlocutum mulieres ire aiunt, cum eunt ad aliquam locutum consolandi³ causa; hinc quidam loquelam dixerunt verbum quod in loquendo efferimus. Concinne loqui dictum a concinere,⁴ ubi inter se conveniunt partes ita ⟨ut⟩⁵ inter se concinant⁵ aliud alii.

58. Pronuntiare dictum (a pro)¹ et nuntiare; pro idem valet quod ante, ut in hoc: proludit. Ideo actores pronuntiare dicuntur, quod in proscaenio cnuntiant poeta(e) cogitata,² quod maxime tum³ dicitur proprie, novam fabulam cum agunt. Nuntius enim est a ⟨n⟩ovis⁴ rebus nominatus, quod a verbo

<sup>4</sup> Aug., for loquebantur. <sup>5</sup> Canal, for istum. <sup>6</sup> Fay, for prolocutum.

§ 57. ¹ Aug., with B, for eloquium ac reliqui. ² Lachmann, for eloquintur. ³ G, Aug., for consulendi. ⁴ Scaliger, for concinne. ⁵ Added by Mue.; added after inter se by L. Sp. ⁶ Mue., for condeant.

§ 58. Added by Groth. Sciop., for poeta cogitante. After tum, Laetus deleted id. Turnebus, for quis.

d That is, do not convey ideas to others.

§ 58. a Nuntiare and its compounds are derived from 224

<sup>§ 57.</sup> a Concinne, adverb to concinnus 'neatly fitted,' has nothing in common with concinere 'to sing in harmony,' except the prefix.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 56-58

ing.<sup>d</sup> Therefore he loquitur 'talks,' who with understanding puts each word in its own place, and he has then prolocutus 'spoken forth,' when he has by loquendo 'talking' expressed what he had in his spirit.

57. From this, they are said eloqui 'to speak forth' and reloqui' to speak in reply in the Sabine sanctuaries, who loquuntur 'speak 'from the chamber of the God. From this he was called loquax 'talkative,' who talked too much; from this, eloquens 'eloquent,' who talks profusely; from this, colloquium 'conference,' when persons come into one place for the purpose of talking; from this, they say that women go adlocutum ' to talk to her,' when they go to someone, to talk for purposes of consolation; from this, a word which we utter in talking has been by some called a loquela 'talk-unit.' To talk concinne a 'neatly' is said from concinere 'to harmonize,' where the parts agree with each other in such a way that they mutually concinunt 'harmonize' one with another.

58. Pronuntiare a 'to make known publicly 'is said from pro and nuntiare 'to announce'; pro means the same as ante 'before,' as in proludit 'he plays beforehand.' Therefore actors are said pronuntiare 'to declaim,' because they enuntiant 'make known' on the proscaenium 'stage' the poet's thoughts b; and the word is used with the most literal meaning, when they act a new play. For a nuntius 'messenger' was named from novae res d'new things,' which is perhaps nuntius. b As though pronuntiare united the pro of proscenium and the nuntiare of enuntiare. c A play not previously acted. d A nuntius is a novo-vent-ios, but is not from Greek; Latin novus and Greek véos are from a common original.

Graeco potest declinatum; ab eo itaque Neapolis illorum Novapolis ab antiquis vocitata nostris.

- 59. A quo etiam extremum novissimum quoque dici¹ coeptum volgo, quod mea memoria ut Aelius sic senes aliquot, nimium novum verbum quod esset, vitabant; cuius origo, ut a vetere vetust⟨i⟩us ac veterrimum,² sic ab novo declinatum ⟨novius et⟩³ novissimum, quod extremum. Sic ab eadem origine novitas et novicius et novalis in agro et "sub Novis" dicta pars in Foro aedificiorum, quod vocabulum ei pervetustum,⁴ ut Novae Viae, quae via iam diu vetus.
- 60. Ab eo quoque potest dictum nominare, quod res novae in usum quom¹ additae erant, quibus ea⟨s⟩² novissent, nomina ponebant. Ab eo nuncupare, quod tunc ⟨pro⟩³ civitate vota nova suscipiuntur. Nuncupare nominare valere apparet in legibus, ubi "nuncupatae pecuniae" sunt scriptae; item in Choro in quo est:

Aenea !--Quis (is)4 est qui meum nomen nuncupat?

§ 59. <sup>1</sup> Aug., from Gellius, x. 21. 2, for dico. <sup>2</sup> Bentinus, from Gellius, l.c., for uetustus ac ueterrimus. <sup>3</sup> Added by Aug., from Gellius, l.c. <sup>4</sup> B, Laetus, for peruetustas.

§ 60. <sup>1</sup> Aug. (quoting a friend), for quomodo. <sup>2</sup> Vertranius, for ea. <sup>3</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>4</sup> Added by Grotius.

§ 60. a Nomen and nominare are distinct from novus, and

&lt;sup>e</sup> Naples; Nova-polis is a half-way translation into Latin. § 59. <sup>a</sup> Page 57 Funaioli. <sup>b</sup> The Tabernae Novae were the shops on the north side of the Forum which replaced those burned in the fire of 210 s.c.; those on the south side, which escaped the fire, were called the Tabernae Veteres.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 58-60

derived from a Greek word; from this, accordingly, their Neapolis e 'New City' was called Nova-polis

' New-polis' by the old-time Romans.

- 59. From this, moreover, novissimum 'newest' also began to be used popularly for extremum 'last,' a use which within my memory both Aelius a and some elderly men avoided, on the ground that the proper form of the superlative of this word was nimium novum; its origin is just like vetustius older and veterrimum 'oldest' from vetus' old,' thus from novum were derived novius newer and novissimum, which means 'last.' So, from the same origin, novitas newness and novicius novice and novalis ploughed anew in the case of a field, and a part of the buildings in the Forum was called sub Novis b' by the New Shops'; though it has had the name for a very long time, as has the Nova Via 'New Street,' which has been an old street this long while.
- 60. From this can be said also nominare a 'to call by name,' because when novae 'new' things were brought into use, they set nomina 'names' on them, by which they novissent 'might know' them. From this, nuncupare b 'to pronounce vows publicly,' because then nova 'new' vows are undertaken for the state. That nuncupare is the same as nominare, is evident in the laws, where sums of money are written down as nuncupatae 'bequeathed by name'; likewise in the Chorus, in which there is c:

Aeneas !-- Who is this who calls me by my name ?

also from novisse 'to know.'

nomen and capere 'to take.'

272 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R O.L. ii. 608-609 Warmington; possibly belonging to a play entitled Proserpina, cf. vi. 94. But the title is perhaps hopelessly corrupt.

Item in Medo 5:

Quis tu es, mulier, quae me insueto nuncupasti nomine?

61. Dico originem habet Graecam, quod Graeci δεικνύω. Hinc (etiam dicare, ut ait) Ennius:

Dico VI hunc dicare (circum metulas).3

Hinc iudicare, quod tunc ius dicatur; hinc iudex, quod iu(s) dicat<sup>4</sup> accepta potestate; (hinc dedicat), id est quibusdam verbis dicendo finit: sic<sup>5</sup> enim aedis sacra a magistratu pontifice prae(e)unte<sup>7</sup> dicendo dedicatur. Hinc, ab dicendo, indicium; hinc illa: indicit (b)ellum, indixit funus, prodixit diem, addixit iudicium; hinc appellatum dictum in mimo, ac dictiosus; hinc in manipulis castrensibus (dicta<sup>11</sup> ab)<sup>12</sup> ducibus; hinc dictata in ludo; hinc dictator magister populi, quod is a consule debet dici; hinc antiqua illa (ad)dici<sup>13</sup> numo et dicis causa et addictus.

<sup>5</sup> Aldus, for medio.

§ 61. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp.; δεικνύναι Mue.; δείκω Scaliger; for Nlδlhce Fv. <sup>2</sup> Added by Kent. <sup>3</sup> Fay, for qui hunc dicare; cf. Festus, 153 a 15-21 M., and Livy, xli. 27. 6. <sup>4</sup> Aug., with B, for iudicat. <sup>5</sup> Added by Stroux. <sup>6</sup> With sic enim, F resumes; cf. v. 118, crit. note 7. <sup>7</sup> Bentinus (or earlier); praeunte f, Laetus; for prae unce F. <sup>8</sup> L. Sp., for dicando. <sup>9</sup> Turnebus, for illum. <sup>10</sup> B, Aldus, for minimo. <sup>11</sup> Added by Aug., with B. <sup>12</sup> Added by Kent; a added by Fay. <sup>13</sup> Budaeus, for dici.

&lt;sup>d</sup> Pacuvius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 239 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 260-261 Warmington; the play was named from one of Medea's sons.

<sup>§ 61. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> All the words explained in this section belong together; but dicere is cognate with the Greek word, not derived from it. <sup>b</sup> Inc. frag. 39 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; see critical note. <sup>c</sup> Rather, because he dictat 'gives orders' to the people. <sup>d</sup> Numo in the text is the older spelling, in which consonants were never doubled. <sup>e</sup> Applied to the fictitious sale of an 228

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 60-61

And likewise in the Medus d:

Who are you, woman, who have called me by an unaccustomed name?

61. Dico a ' I say ' has a Greek origin, that which the Greeks call δεικνίω ' I show.' From this moreover comes dicare ' to show, dedicate,' as Ennius says b:

I say this circus shows six little turning-posts.

From this, iudicare 'to judge,' because then ius 'right' dicitur 'is spoken'; from this, iudex 'judge,' because he ius dicat' speaks the decision' after receiving the power to do so; from this, dedicat' he dedicates, that is, he finishes the matter by dicendo 'saying' certain fixed words: for thus a temple of a god dedicatur ' is dedicated 'by the magistrate, by dicendo 'saying' the formulas after the pontiff. From this, that is from dicere, comes indicium 'information'; from this, the following: indicit 'he declares' war, indixit 'he has invited to 'a funeral, prodixit' he has postponed 'the day, addixit' he has awarded 'the decision; from this was named a dictum 'bon mot' in a farce, and dictiosus 'witty person'; from this, in the companies of soldiers in camp, the dicta 'orders' of the leaders; from this, the dictata 'dictation exercises' in the school: from this, the dictator c 'dictator,' as master of the people, because he must dici 'be appointed 'by the consul; from this, those old phrases addici nummod ' to be made over to somebody for a shilling,' and dicis causa ' for the sake of judicial form,' and addictus 'bound over f' to somebody.

inheritance to the heir. I Said of a defendant who was unable to pay the amount of debt or damages, and was delivered to the custody of the plaintiff as a virtual slave until he could arrange payment.

62. Si dico quid (sciens¹ ne)scienti,² quod ei³ quod ignoravit trado, hinc doceo declinatum vel quod cum docemus⁴ dicimus vel quod qui docentur inducuntur⁵ in id quod docentur. Ab eo quod scit ducere⁵ qui est dux aut ductor; (hinc³ doctor)³ qui ita inducit, ut doceat. Ab ducendo⁵ docere disciplina discere litteris commutatis paucis. Ab eodem principio documenta, quae exempla docendi causa dicuntur.

63. Disputatio et computatio e¹ propositione putandi, quod valet purum facere; ideo antiqui purum putum appellarunt; ideo putator, quod arbores puras facit; ideo ratio putari dicitur, in qua summa fit pura: sic is sermo in quo pure disponuntur verba, ne sit confusus atque ut diluceat, dicitur disputare.

64. Quod dicimus disserit item translati(ci)o¹ aeque² ex agris verbo: nam ut holitor disserit in areas sui cuiusque generis res, sic in oratione qui facit, disertus. Sermo, opinor, est a serie, unde serta; ctiam in vestimento sartum, quod comprehensum:

§ 62. <sup>1</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>2</sup> Scaliger, for scienti. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for det. <sup>4</sup> After docemus, Laetus deleted ut. <sup>5</sup> Reiter, for inducantur. <sup>6</sup> M, Laetus, for ducare. <sup>7</sup> Added by GS. <sup>8</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>9</sup> Fay, for docendo.

§ 63. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for et.

§ 64. <sup>1</sup> A. Sp.; translatitio Aug.; for translatio. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for atque.

§ 62. <sup>a</sup> Docere is quite independent of dicere, and also of ducere. <sup>b</sup> Disciplina was popularly associated with discere, but was really a derivative of discipulus, which came from dis+capere 'to take apart (for examination).'

§ 64. There are in Latin two verbs sero serere, distinct in etymology: serere seri satus 'to sow, plant,' and serere serui sertus 'to join together, intertwine.' The derivatives in this section are all from the second verb, except sartum, the participle of sarcio, which is distinct from both.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 62-64

62. If I dico 'say 'something that I know to one who does not know it, because I trado 'hand over 'to him what he was ignorant of, from this is derived doceo a 'I teach,' or else because when we docemus 'teach' we dicimus 'say,' or else because those who docentur 'are taught' inducuntur 'are led on' to that which they docentur 'are taught.' From this fact, that he knows how ducere 'to lead,' is named the one who is dux 'guide' or ductor 'leader'; from this, doctor 'teacher,' who so inducit 'leads on' that he docet 'teaches.' From ducere 'to lead,' come docere 'to teach,' disciplina b 'instruction,' discere 'to learn,' by the change of a few letters. From the same original element comes documenta 'instructive examples,' which are said as models for the purpose of teaching.

63. Disputatio 'discussion' and computatio 'reckoning,' from the general idea of putare, which means to make purum 'clean'; for the ancients used putum to mean purum. Therefore putator 'trimmer', because he makes trees clean; therefore a business account is said putari 'to be adjusted,' in which the sum is pura 'net.' So also that discourse in which the words are arranged pure 'neatly,' that it may not be confused and that it may be transparent of meaning, is said disputare 'to discuss' a problem or question.

64. Our word disserit is used in a figurative meaning as well as in relation to the fields: for as the kitchen-gardener disserit 'distributes' the things of each kind upon his garden plots, so he who does the like in speaking is disertus 'skilful.' Sermo 'conversation,' I think, is from series 'succession,' whence serta 'garlands'; and moreover in the case of a garment sartum 'patched,' because it is held together: for sermo enim non potest in uno homine esse solo, sed ubi (o)ratio3 cum altero coniuncta. Sic conserere manu(m)4 dicimur cum hoste; sic ex iure manu(m)5 consertum vocare: hinc adserere manu<sup>6</sup> in libertatem cum prendimus. Sic augures dicunt :

231

Si mihi auctor es7 verbenam6 manu9 asserere. dicit(o)10 consortes.

65. Hinc etiam, a quo1 ipsi consortes, sors; hinc etiam sortes, quod in his iuncta tempora cum hominibus ac rebus; ab his sortilegi; ab hoc pecunia quae in faenore sors est, impendium quod inter se iungit.2

66. Legere dictum, quod leguntur ab oculis litterae; ideo etiam legati, quod (ut)1 publice mittantur leguntur. Item ab legendo leguli, qui oleam aut qui uvas legunt; hinc legumina in frugibus variis; etiam leges, quae lectae et ad populum latae quas observet. Hinc legitima et collegae, qui una lecti, et qui in eorum locum suppositi, sublecti; additi allecti et collecta, quae ex pluribus locis in unum lecta. Ab

<sup>3</sup> Aug., for ratio. <sup>4</sup> Other codd., for manu F. for manu; cf. Gellius, xx. 10. 6p, Aug., for manum.
Aug., for est. Bergk, for verbi nam. Aug., for manum.

<sup>10</sup> A. Sp., for dicit.

§ 65.

<sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for ad qui.

§ 66.

<sup>1</sup> Added by B, Aldus.

<sup>b</sup> Genitive plural. <sup>c</sup> Page 18 Regell.

§ 65. These words belong to serere, but Varro's reason for the meaning of sors may not be correct. b To Varro, the fundamental meaning in sors is one of 'joining': ef.

§ 66. a All words discussed in this section are from various forms of the root seen in legere, which means 'to gather, pick, select, choose, read'; except legumen. b Properly participle of legare 'to appoint,' a derivative of legere. exactly, legumina are, according to Varro, fruits of various kinds that have to be picked (rather than cut, like cabbage, sermo 'conversation' cannot be where one man is alone, but where his speech is joined with another's. So we are said conserere manum' to join hand-to-hand fight' with an enemy; so to call for manum b consertum' a laying on of hands' according to law; from this, adserere manu in libertatem' to claim that so-and-so is free, when we lay hold of him. So the augurs say c:

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 64-66

If you authorize me to take in my hand the sacred bough, then name my colleagues (consortes).

65. From this, moreover, sors a 'lot,' from which the consortes 'colleagues' themselves are named; from this, further, sortes 'lots,' because in them time-ideas are joined with men and things; from these, the sortilegi 'lot-pickers, fortune-tellers'; from this, the money which is at interest is the sors 'principal,' because it joins b one expense to another.

66.a Legere 'to pick or read,' because the letters leguntur 'are picked' with the eyes; therefore also legati b' envoys,' because they leguntur 'are chosen' to be sent on behalf of the state. Likewise, from legere 'to pick,' the leguli 'pickers,' who legunt 'gather' the olives or the grapes; from this, the legumina c' beans' of various kinds; moreover, the leges 'laws,' which are lectae 'chosen' and brought before the people for them to observe. From this, legitima 'lawful things'; and collegae' colleagues,' who have been lecti' chosen' together, and those who have been put into their places, are sublecti 'substitutes'; those added are allecti' chosen in addition,' and things which have been lecta 'gathered' from several places into one, are collecta' collected.' From legere' to gather' or mowed, like wheat); but the resemblance to legere seems to be only accidental.

legendo ligna quoque, quod ea caduca legebantur in agro quibus in focum uterentur. Indidem ab legendo legio et diligens et dilectus.

67. Murmurari<sup>1</sup> a similitudine sonitus dictus, qui ita leviter loquitur, ut magis e sono id facere quam ut intellegatur videatur. Hinc etiam poctae

Murmurantia litora.

Similiter fremere, gemere, clamare, crepare ab similitudine vocis sonitus dicta. Hinc illa

Arma sonant, fremor oritur;

hine

Nihil<sup>2</sup> me increpitando commoves.

68. Vicina horum quiritare, iubilare. Quiritare dicitur is qui Quiritum fidem clamans inplorat. Quirites a Curensibus; ab his cum Tatio rege in societatem venerunt civitatis.¹ Ut quiritare urbanorum, sic iubilare rusticorum: itaque hos imitans Aprissius ait:

Io bucco !—Quis me iubilat ?— Vicinus tuus antiquus.

Sic triumphare appellatum, quod cum imperatore

 $\S$  67.  $^1$  \$\bar{L}\$. Sp., for murmuratur dictum.  $^2$  For nichil.  $\S$  68.  $^1$  Sciop., for civitates.

d Better spelling, delectus.

§ 68. <sup>a</sup> Frequentative of queri 'to complain,' and not connected with Quirites. <sup>b</sup> Cures, ancient capital city of the Sabines. <sup>c</sup> The name is corrupt, but no probable

<sup>§ 67. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Some, but not all, of the words discussed in this section are onomatopoeic. <sup>b</sup> Léviter 'lightly.' <sup>c</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag., page 314 Ribbeck³; but the words look like part of a dactylic hexameter, in which case it should read Arma sonant, oritur fremor. <sup>d</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag., page 314 Ribbeck³.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 66-68

comes also ligna 'firewood,' because the wood that had fallen was gathered in the field, to be used on the fireplace. From the same source, legere 'to gather,' came legio 'legion,' and diligens 'careful,' and dilectus d'

' military levy.'

67.<sup>a</sup> From likeness to the sound, he is said murmurari 'to murmur,' who speaks so softly <sup>b</sup> that he seems more as the result of the sound to be doing it, than to be doing it for the purpose of being understood. From this, moreover, the poets say Murmuring sea-shore.

Likewise, fremere 'to roar,' gemere 'to groan,' clamare 'to shout,' crepare 'to rattle 'are said from the likeness of the sound of the word to that which it denotes. From this, that passage c:

Arms are resounding, a roar doth arise.

From this, also,d

By your rebuking you alarm me not.

68. Close to these are quiritare a 'to shriek,' iubilare' to call joyfully.' He is said quiritare, who shouts and implores the protection of the Quirites. The Quirites were named from the Curenses' men of Cures' b; from that place they came with King Tatius to receive a share in the Roman state. As quiritare is a word of city people, so iubilare is a word of the countrymen; thus in imitation of them Aprissius c says:

Oho, Fat-Face!—Who is calling me?—Your neighbour of long standing.

So triumphare 'to triumph' was said, because the emendation has been suggested; Com. Rom. Frag., page 332 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>.

milites redeuntes clamitant per Urbem in Capitolium eunti "  $\langle I \rangle$ o² triumphe "; id a  $\theta \rho \iota \acute{a}\mu \beta \phi^3$  ac Graeco Liberi cognomento potest dictum.

69. Spondere est dicere spondeo, a sponte: nam id (idem)¹ valet et a voluntate. Itaque Lucilius scribit de Cretaea,² cum ad se cubitum venerit sua voluntate, sponte ipsam suapte adductam, ut tunicam et cetera³ reiceret. Eandem voluntatem Terentius significat, cum ait satius esse

Sua sponte recte facere quam alieno metu.

Ab eadem sponte, a qua dictum spondere, declinatum \( \delta \) \( \spondet^4 \) et respondet et desponsor et sponsa, item sic alia. Spondet enim qui dicit a sua sponte \( \text{"spondeo"; } \qui \) \( \spo\) \( \partial \) of \( \partial \) est sponsor; qui \( \lambda \) \( \delta \) dem<sup>8</sup> \( \quad \text{ut} \) faciat obligatur sponsu, \( \text{sonsponsus} \).

70. Hoc Naevius significat cum ait "consponsi." (Si) spondebatur pecunia aut filia nuptiarum causa, <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for o. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for triambo.

§ 69. Added by Fay. For Gretea. For ceterae.

GS, after Lachmann, for spondit. L. Sp., for spondit.

B, Ed. Veneta, for quidem. Added by Aug., with B.

<sup>8</sup> L. Sp., for sponsus. § 70. <sup>1</sup> Added by Fay.

<sup>d</sup> From the Greek, through the Etruscan. <sup>e</sup> Ac, introducing an appositive.

§ 69. a Verses 925-927 Marx. Cretaea was a meretrix, named from the country of her origin. Varro has paraphrased the quotation, which was thus restored to metrical form by Lachmann, the first two words being added by Marx:

Cretaea nuper, cum ad me cubitum venerat, Sponte ipsa suapte adducta ut tunicam et cetera Reiceret.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 68-70

soldiers shout "Oho, triumph!" as they come back with the general through the City and he is going up to the Capitol; this is perhaps derived d from  $\theta \rho i \alpha \mu \beta o s$ , as a Greek surname of Liber.

69. Spondere is to say spondeo 'I solemnly promise,' from sponte 'of one's own inclination': for this has the same meaning as from voluntas 'personal desire.' Therefore Lucilius writes of the Cretan woman, a that when she had come of her own desire to his house to lie with him, she was of her own sponte 'inclination' led to throw back her tunic and other garments. The same voluntas 'personal desire' is what Terence means b when he says that it is better

> Of one's own inclination right to do, Than merely by the fear of other folk.

From the same sponte from which spondere is said, are derived despondet 'he pledges' and respondet 'he promises in return, answers,' and desponsor' promiser' and sponsa 'promised bride,' and likewise others in the same fashion. For he spondet 'solemnly promises' who says of his own sponte 'inclination' spondeo 'I promise'; he who spopondit 'has promised' is a sponsor 'surety'; he who is by sponsus 'formal promise' bound to do the same thing as the other party, is a consponsus 'co-surety.'

70. This is what Naevius means a when he says consponsi. If money b or a daughter spondebatur was promised in connexion with a marriage, both the While this might accord with the Lucilian prototype of Horace, Sat. i. 5. 82-85, the meter forbids, and because of the subject matter A. Spengel proposed Licinius, writer of comedies, for Lucilius.

<sup>b</sup> Adelphoe, 75.

§ 70. ° Com. Rom. Frag., page 34 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 598 Warmington. b As dower.

appellabatur et pecunia et quae desponsa erat sponsa; quae pecunia inter se contra sponsu<sup>2</sup> rogata erat, dicta sponsio; cui desponsa quae<sup>3</sup> erat, sponsus; quo die sponsum erat, sponsalis.

71. Qui¹ spoponderat filiam, despondisse² dicebant, quod de sponte eius, id est de voluntate, exierat: non enim si volebat, dabat, quod sponsu erat alligatus: nam ut in com(o)ediis vides dici:

Sponde(n)3 tuam gnatam4 filio uxorem meo? Quod tum et praetorium ius ad legem et censorium iudicium ad aequum existimabatur. Sic despondisse animum quoque dicitur, ut despondisse filiam, quod suae spontis statuerat finem.

72. A sua sponte dicere cum spondere, (respondere)1 quoque dixerunt, cum a(d) sponte(m)2 responderent, id est ad voluntatem rogatoris.3 Itaque qui ad id quod rogatur non dicit, non respondet, ut non spondet ille statim qui dixit spondeo, si iocandi

3 Mue., for quo. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for sponsum.

<sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for a sponte. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for rogationis.

§ 71. a Com. Rom. Frag., page 134 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>§ 71.</sup> ¹ G, B, Laetus, for quo. ² B, Aldus, for disponsse. ³ Aug.; spondem Rhol.; for sponde. ⁴ Rhol., for agnatam. § 72. 1 Lachmann, for a qua sponte dicere cumspondere.

&lt;sup>c</sup> To be forfeited to the other party as damages by that party which might break the agreement.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 70-72

money and the girl who had been desponsa 'pledged' were called sponsa 'promised, pledged'; the money which had been asked under the sponsus 'engagement' for their mutual protection against the breaking of the agreement, was called a sponsio 'guarantee deposit'; the man to whom the money or the girl was desponsa 'pledged,' was called sponsus 'betrothed'; the day on which the engagement was made, was called sponsalis 'betrothal day.'

71. He who spoponderat 'had promised' his daughter, they said, despondisse 'had promised her away,' because she had gone out of the power of his sponte 'inclination,' that is, from the control of his voluntas 'desire': for even if he wished not to give her, still he gave her, because he was bound by his sponsus 'formal promise': for you see it said, as in comedies a:

Do you now promise your daughter to my son as wife?

This was at that time considered a principle established by the praetors to supplement the statutes, and a decision of the censors for the sake of fairness. So a person is said despondisse animum 'to have promised his spirit away, to have become despondent,' just as he is said despondisse filiam 'to have promised his daughter away,' because he had fixed an end of the power of his sponte 'inclination.'

72. Since spondere was said from sua sponte dicere 'to say of one's own inclination,' they said also respondere 'to answer,' when they responderunt 'promised in return' to the other party's spontem 'inclination,' that is, to the desire of the asker. Therefore he who says "no" to that which is asked, does not respondere, just as he does not spondere who has immediately said causa dixit, neque agi potest cum eo ex sponsu. Itaqu(e) is4 qu(o)i dicit(ur)5 in comoedia6:

Meministin<sup>7</sup> te spondere<sup>8</sup> mihi gnatam<sup>9</sup> tuam ? quod sine sponte sua dixit, cum eo non potest agi ex sponsu.

73. Etiam spes a sponte potest esse declinata, quod tum sperat cum quod1 volt fieri putat : nam quod non volt si putat, metuit, non sperat. Itaque hi² quoque qui dicunt in Astraba Plauti:

Nunc³ sequere adseque, Polybadisce, meam spem cupio consequi.-Sequor hercle (e)quidem,4 nam libenter mea(m) sperata(m) consequor:

quod sine sponte dicunt, vere neque ille sperat qui dicit adolescens neque illa (quae) sperata est.

Sponsor et praes et vas neque idem, neque res a quibus hi, sed e re simili.2 Îtaque praes qui a magistratu interrogatus, in publicum ut praestet; a quo et cum respondet, dicit "praes." Vas appel-

 $^4$  L. Sp., for itaquis.  $^5$  Kent, for qui dicit F (d'r a=dicitur).  $^5$  L. Sp., for tragoedia.  $^7$  Aug., for meministine. <sup>8</sup> Lachmann, metri gratia, for despondere. <sup>9</sup> Rhol., for agnatam.

§ 73. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for quod cum. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for hic. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for ne. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for quidem. <sup>5</sup> Ritschl, for mea sperata. <sup>6</sup> Added by Kent. <sup>2</sup> Sciop., for simile.

imperative form; cf. Neue-Wagener, Formenlehre der lat. 240

<sup>§ 72.</sup> a Hanging nominative, resumed by cum eo after the quotation. <sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag., page 305 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; but as the content indicates that it came from a comedy rather than from a tragedy, I have accepted L. Spengel's emendation comoedia for the manuscript tragoedia. § 73. <sup>a</sup> Wrong. <sup>b</sup> Frag. I Ritschl. <sup>c</sup> Adseque, active

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 72-74

spondeo, if he said it for a joke, nor can legal action be taken against him as a result of such a sponsus 'promise.' Thus he a to whom someone says in a comedy,b

Do you recall you pledged your daughter unto me? which he had said without his sponte 'inclination,' cannot be proceeded against under his sponsus.

73. Spes 'hope' is perhaps also derived a from sponte 'inclination,' because a person then sperat 'hopes,' when he thinks that what he wishes is coming true; for if he thinks that what he does not wish is coming true, he fears, not hopes. Therefore these also who speak in the Astraba of Plautus b:

Follow now closely, Polybadiscus, I wish to overtake my hope.— Heavens I surely do: I'm glad to overtake her whom I hope:

because they speak without sponte' feeling of success,' the youth who speaks does not truly 'hope,' nor does the girl who is 'hoped for.' d

74. Sponsor and praes and vas are not the same thing, nor are the matters identical from which these terms come; but they develop out of similar situations.<sup>a</sup> Thus a praes is one who is asked by the magistrate that he praestat 'make a guarantee' to the state; from which, also when he answers, he says, "I am your praes." He was called a vas

Spr.3 iii. 89. d Sperata, a regular term for the object of a young man's love.

§ 74. a Varro apparently says that a sponsor is one who undertakes an engagement toward an individual or individuals; a praes is one who undertakes an engagement on his own behalf, toward the state: a vas is one who guarantees another person's engagement toward the state.

VARRO

latus, qui pro altero vadimonium promittebat. Consuetudo erat, cum reus³ parum esset idoneus inceptis rebus, ut pro se alium daret; a quo caveri4 postea lege coeptum<sup>5</sup> est ab his, qui praedia venderent, vadem ne darent; ab eo ascribi coeptum5 in lege mancipiorum:

Vadem ne poscerent nec dabitur.

75. Canere, accanit et succanit ut canto et cantatio ex Camena permutato pro M N.2 Ab eo quod semel, canit, si saepius, cantat. Hinc cantitat, item alia; nec sine canendo (tubicines, liticines, cornicines),3 tibicines dicti: omnium enim horum quoda(m)4 canere; etiam bucinator a vocis similitudine et cantu dictus.

76. Oro ab ore et perorat et exorat et oratio et orator et osculum dictum. Indidem omen, ornamentum; alterum quod ex ore primum elatum est, osmen dictum; alterum nunc cum propositione dicitur vulgo ornamentum, quod sicut olim ornamenta1

§ 76. 1 GS., for ornamentum.

§ 76. These words are from os, except omen, ornamentum, oscines.

For reos.
 For caeptum.
 75.
 For canerae.
 Mue., for N.M.
 Added by L. Sp., after Mue. recognized the lacuna and its contents, but set it after tibicines; cf. v. 91.
 Kent; quoddam Canal; for quod a.

<sup>§ 75.</sup> a The words explained in this section belong together, except Camena, which stands apart. b Either sing or 'play on an instrument.' c Usually in the plural; Italian goddesses of springs and waters, regularly identified with the Greek Muses. d The insertion in the text is rendered necessary by omnium horum; cf. also critical note. Quodam, ablative with canere.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 74-76

bondsman' who promised bond for another. It was the custom, that when a party in a suit was not considered capable of fulfilling his engagements, he should give another as bondsman for him; from which they later began to provide by law against those who should sell their real estate, that they should not offer themselves as bondsmen. From this, they began to add the provision in the law about the transfer of properties, that "they should not demand a bondsman, nor will a bondsman be given."

75.ª Canere b' to sing, 'accanit' he sings to 'something, and succanit' he sings a second part,' like canto' I sing' and cantatio 'song,' from Camena c' Muse,' with N substituted for M. From the fact that a person sings once, he canit; if he sings more often, he cantat. From this, cantitat' he sings repeatedly,' and likewise other words; nor without canere 'singing, playing' are the tubicines 'trumpeters,' named, and the liticines 'cornetists,' cornicines 'horn-blowers,' a tibicines 'pipes-players': for canere 'playing' on some special instrument c belongs to all these. The bucinator 'trumpeter' also was named from the likeness of the sound and the cantus 'playing.'

76.4 Oro 'I beseech' was so called from os 'mouth,' and so were perorat' he ends his speech 'and exorat' he gains by pleading,' and oratio 'speech' and orator 'speaker' and osculum' kiss.' From the same, omen 'presage' and ornamentum 'ornament': because the former was first uttered from the os 'mouth,' it was called osmen; the latter is now commonly used in the singular with the general idea of ornament, but as formerly most of the play-actors use it in scaenici plerique dicunt. Hinc oscines dicuntur apud augures, quae ore faciunt auspicium.

VARRO

VIII. 77. Tertium gradum agendi esse dicunt, ubi quid faciant; in eo propter similitudinem agendi et faciendi et gerendi quidam error his qui putant esse unum. Potest enim aliquid facere et non agere, ut poeta facit fabulam et non agit, contra actor agit et (non)<sup>1</sup> facit, et sic a poeta fabula fit, non agitur, ab actore agitur, non fit. Contra imperator quod dicitur res gerere, in eo neque facit neque agit, sed gerit, id est sustinet, tralatum ab his qui onera<sup>2</sup> gerunt, quod hi sustinent.

78. Proprio nomine dicitur facere a facie, qui rei quam facit imponit faciem. Ut fictor cum dicit fingo, figuram imponit, quom dicit formo,¹ formam, sic cum dicit facio, faciem imponit; a qua facie discernitur, ut dici possit aliud esse vestimentum, aliud vas, sic item quae fiunt apud fabros, fictores, item alios alia. Qui quid² amministrat, cuius opus non extat quod sub

 $\S$  77.  $^1$  Omitted in F.  $^2$  G, H, for honera F.  $\S$  78.  $^1$  L.  $Sp_{\bullet}$ , for informo.  $^2$  Aug., for quicquid.

§ 78. a Facies is from facere.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Found only in the plural in the scenic poets, who used it of ornaments for the head and face (os); it is a derivative of ornare 'to adorn,' which comes from ordo ordinis. <sup>c</sup> From prefix ops+can-'sing'; cf. o(p)s-tendere' to show.' § 77. <sup>a</sup> Cf. vi. 41-42. <sup>b</sup> The distinction is almost impossible to imitate in translation, but the argument is good so far as the examples in the text are concerned.

the plural.<sup>b</sup> From this, oscines c'singing birds' are spoken of among the augurs, which indicate their premonitions by the os 'mouth.'

VIII. 77. The third stage of action a is, they say, that in which they faciunt' make' something: in this, on account of the likeness among agere 'to act' and facere 'to make' and gerere 'to carry or carry on,' a certain error is committed by those who think that it is only one thing.b For a person can facere something and not agere it, as a poet facit 'makes' a play and does not act it, and on the other hand the actor agit 'acts' it and does not make it, and so a play fit 'is made' by the poet, not acted, and agitur' is acted 'by the actor, not made. On the other hand, the general, in that he is said to gerere 'carry on' affairs, in this neither facit 'makes' nor agit 'acts,' but gerit 'carries on,' that is, supports, a meaning transferred from those who gerunt 'carry' burdens, because they support them.

78. In its literal sense facere 'to make' is from facies a 'external appearance': he is said facere 'to make 'a thing, who puts a facies 'external appearance 'on the thing which he facit 'makes.' As the fictor' image-maker,' when he says "Fingo' I shape,' "puts a figura' shape 'on the object, and when he says "Formo' I form,' "puts a forma' form' on it, so when he says "Facio' I make,' "he puts a facies' external appearance 'on it; by this external appearance there comes a distinction, so that one thing can be said to be a garment, another a dish, and likewise the various things that are made by the carpenters, the imagemakers, and other workers. He who furnishes a service, whose work does not stand out in concrete form so as to come under the observation of our sensu(m)<sup>3</sup> veniat, ab agitatu, ut dixi, magis agere quam facere putatur; sed quod his magis promiscue quam diligenter consuetudo est usa, translaticiis utimur verbis: nam et qui dicit, facere verba dicimus, et qui aliquid agit, non esse inficientem.

79. (Et facere lumen,¹ faculam)² qui adlueet, dicitur. Lucere ab luere, (quod) et³ luce dissolvuntur tenebrae; ab luce Noctiluea,⁴ quod propter lucem amissam is cultus institutus. Acquirere est ad et quaerere; ipsum quaerere ab eo quod quae res ut reciperetur datur opera; a quaerendo quaestio, ab his tum quaestor.⁵

80. Video a visu, (id a vi)<sup>1</sup>: qui(n)que<sup>2</sup> enim sensuum maximus in oeulis: nam cum sensus nullus quod abest mille passus sentire possit, oculorum sensus vis usque pervenit ad stellas. Hinc:

Visenda vigilant, vigilium invident.

Et Acci3:

II, Aldus, for sensu.
 § 79.
 Added by GS.
 Added by Fay, from Plautus,
 Persa, 515.
 quod et Kent; quod A. Sp.; for et.
 After Noctiluca, L. Sp. deleted lucere item ab luce, a marginal gloss that had crept into the text.
 Kent, for conquestor.

§ 80. 1 Added by L. Sp. 2 For qui que. 3 Kent, for atti.

<sup>b</sup> vi. 41-42.

§ 80. a Video is to be kept distinct from vis and from vigilium. b Part of a verse from an unknown play, in physical senses, is, from his agitatus 'action, motion,' as I have said, b thought rather agere 'to act' than facere 'to make' something; but because general practice has used these words indiscriminately rather than with care, we use them in transferred meanings; for he who dicit 'says' something, we say facere 'makes' words, and he who agit' acts' something, we say is not inficiens 'failing to do' something.

<sup>§ 79. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Wrong etymology. <sup>b</sup> This sentence, if properly reconstructed, goes with the preceding section. <sup>c</sup> Wrong. <sup>a</sup> As dis-so-luuntur, which is in fact its origin. <sup>e</sup> This sentence is out of place, but its proper place cannot be determined; ef. v. 81. <sup>f</sup> Correct etymologies, except that of quaerere itself.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 78-80

79. And he who lights a faculam a 'torch,' is said to facere 'make' a light. Lucere 'to shine,' from luere c' to loose,' because it is also by the light that the shades of night dissolvuntur d 'are loosed apart'; from lux 'light' comes Noctiluca 'Shiner of the Night,' because this worship was instituted on account of the loss of the daylight. Acquirere c' to acquire 'is ad' in addition' and quaerere 'to seek'; quaerere itself is from this, that attention is given to quae res 'what thing' is to be got back; from quaerere comes quaestio 'question'; then from these, quaestor 'investigator, treasurer.'

80. Video a 'I see,' from visus ' sight,' this from vis ' strength'; for the greatest of the five senses is in the eyes. For while no one of the senses can feel that which is a mile away, the strength of the sense of the eyes reaches even to the stars. From this b:

They watch for what is to be seen, but hate to stay awake.

Also the verse of Accius d:

which the persons are watching the night sky for omens. <sup>a</sup> Invidere 'to look at with dislike' originally took a direct object, as here; cf. Cicero, Tusc. iii. 9. 20. <sup>d</sup> If properly reconstituted, an iambic tetrameter catalectic, referring to Actaeon, who inadvertently beheld Artemis bathing with the nymphs.

VARRO

Cum illud o(c)uli(s) violavit<sup>4</sup> (is),<sup>5</sup> qui invidit<sup>6</sup> invidendum.

A quo etiam violavit virginem pro vit(i)avit dicebant; acque eadem modestia potius cum muliere fuisse quam concubuisse dicebant.

81. Cerno idem valet: itaque pro video ait Ennius:

Lumen-iubarne ?-in caelo cerno.

Cassius1:

Sensumque inesse et motum in membris cerno.

Dictum cerno a cereo, id est a creando; dictum ab eo quod cum quid creatum est, tunc denique videtur. Hinc fines capilli discripti,² quod finis videtur, discrimen; et quod³ in testamento ⟨cernito⟩,⁴ id est facito videant te esse heredem: itaque in cretione adhibere iubent testes. Ab eodem est quod ait Medea:

 $\label{eq:continuous} \mbox{Ter sub armis malim $vi$} \mbox{tam}^{5} \mbox{ cernere,} \\ \mbox{Quam semel modo parere ;}$ quod, ut decernunt de vita eo tempore, multorum videtur vitae finis.

<sup>4</sup> Mue., for obliuio lavet (obviolavit Aug., with B).
<sup>5</sup> Added by Kent, metri gratia.
<sup>6</sup> Kent; vidit Mue.; for incidit.

§ 81. ¹ Schoell, marginal note in his copy of A. Sp.'s edition, for canius. ² A. Sp., for descripti. ³ Turnebus, for qui id. ⁴ Added by Turnebus. ⁵ Bentinus, from Nonius Marc. 261. 22 M., for multa.

&lt;sup>e</sup> See note c. <sup>f</sup> Invidendum with negative prefix in-, unlike the preceding word; cf. infectum meaning both 'stained' and 'not done.'

<sup>§ 81.</sup> a Literally 'separate'; hence 'distinguish, see,' and also 'discriminate, decide.' Cerno has no connexion 248

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 80-81

When that he violated with his eyes, Who looked upon • what ought not to be seen.

From which moreover they used to say violavit 'he did violence to 'a girl instead of vitiavit 'ruined' her; and similarly, with the same modesty, they used to say rather that a man fuit 'was' with a woman, than that he concubuit 'lay' with her.

81. Cerno a has the same meaning; therefore Ennius b uses it for video:

I see light in the sky-can it be dawn?

Cassius c says:

I see that in her limbs there's feeling still and motion.

Cerno 'I see' is said from cereo, that is, creo 'I create'; it is said from this fact, that when something has been created, then finally it is seen. From this, the boundary-lines of the parted hair, because a boundary-line is seen, got the name discrimen 'separation'; and the cernito' let him decide, which is in a will, that is, make them see that you are heir: therefore in the cretio' decision' they direct that the heir bring witnesses. From the same is that which Medea says!

I'd rather thrice decide, in battle wild, My life or death, than bear but once a child.

Because, when they decernunt 'decide' about life at that time, the end of many persons' lives is seen.

with creo. b Trag. Rom. Frag., verse 338 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 226-227 Warmington; from the Ajax; cf. vi. 6 and vii. 76. c Fitting Cassius's play Lucretia; cf. vi. 7 and vii. 72. d Capillus in the singular was used as a collective by Varro, according to Charisius, i. 104. 20 Keil. c Cf. Gaius, Institut. ii. 174. f Ennius, Medea, 222-223 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 316-317 Warmington; translated from Euripides, Medea, 250-251.

82. Spectare dictum ab (specio)<sup>1</sup> antiquo, quo etiam Ennius usus :

(Q)uos² Epulo postquam spexit, et quod in auspiciis distributum est qui habent spectionem, qui non habeant, et quod in auguriis etiam nunc augures dicunt avem specere. Consuetudo com(m)unis quae cum praeverbi(i)s coniun(c)ta fuerunt etiam nunc servat, ut aspicio, conspicio, respicio, suspicio, despicio,³ sic alia; in quo etiam expecto quod spectare volo. Hinc speculo(r),⁴ hinc speculum, quod in eo specimus imaginem. Specula, de quo prospicimus. Speculator, quem mittimus ante, ut respiciat quae volumus. Hinc qui oculos inunguimus quibus specimus, specillum.

83. Ab auribus verba videntur dicta audio et ausculto; aures¹ ab aveo,² quod his avemus di⟨s⟩cere³ semper, quod Ennius videtur ἔτυμον ostendere velle in Alexandro cum ait:

Iam dudum ab ludis animus atque aures avent, Avide expectantes nuntium.

Propter hanc aurium aviditatem theatra replentur. Ab audiendo etiam auscultare declinatum, quod hi

§ 82. <sup>1</sup> Added by Aug. <sup>2</sup> A. Sp., from Festus, 330 b 32 M., for uos. <sup>3</sup> M, Laetus, for didestspicio. <sup>4</sup> Canal, for specula.

§ 83. 1 Mue., for audio. 2 Laetus, for abaucto.

3 Aug., for dicere.

§ 83. a Auris, audio, ausculto belong ultimately together,

250

<sup>§ 82. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Annales, 421 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 148-149 Warmington; given in better form by Festus, 330 b 32 M.: Quos ubi rex (Ep)ulo spesit de cotibus (=cautibus) celsis. Epulo was a king of the Istrians, who fought against the Romans in 178-177 s.c.; cf. Livy, xli. 1, 4, 11. <sup>b</sup> Page 20 Regell. <sup>c</sup> Page 17 Regell.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 82-83

82. Spectare 'to see' is said from the old word specere, which in fact Ennius used a:

After Epulo saw them, and because in the taking of the auspices b there is a division into those who have the spectio 'watch-duty' and those who have not; and because in the taking of the auguries even now the augurs say c specere ' to watch 'a bird. Common practice even now keeps the compounds made with prefixes, as aspicio 'I look at,' conspicio 'I observe,' respicio 'I look back at,' suspicio 'I look up at,' despicio 'I look down upon,' and similarly others; in which group is also expecto 'I look for, expect 'that which I wish spectare 'to see.' From this, speculor 'I watch'; from this, speculum 'mirror,' because in it we specimus 'see' our image. Specula 'look-out,' that from which we prospicimus 'look forth.' Speculator 'scout,' whom we send ahead, that he respiciat 'may look attentively 'at what we wish. From this, the instrument with which we anoint our eyes by which we specimus 'see,' is called a specillum 'eye-spatula.'

83. From the aures 'ears' seem to have been said the words audio 'I hear' and ausculto 'I listen, heed'; aures 'ears' from aveo a' I am eager,' because with these we are ever eager to learn, which Ennius seems to wish to show as the radical in his Alexander, b when he says:

A long time eager have been my spirit and my ears, Awaiting eagerly some message from the games.

It is on account of this eagerness of the ears that the theatres are filled. From audire 'to hear' is derived also auscultare 'to listen, heed,' because they are said but are not to be connected with aveo. b Trag. Rom. Frag. 34-35 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 236-237 Warmington.

auscultare dicuntur qui auditis parent, a quo dictum poetae:

Audio, (h)aut4 ausculto.5

Littera commutata dicitur odor olor, hine olet et odorari et odoratus et odora res, sic al(ia).7

- 85. A manu manupretium<sup>1</sup>; mancipium, quod manu capitur; (quod)<sup>2</sup> coniungit plures manus, manipulus; manipularis, manica. Manubrium, quod manu tenetur. Mantelium, ubi manus terguntur....<sup>3</sup>

§ 84. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for edon. <sup>2</sup> Canal; escae edulia Aldus; for escaedulia. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for genete. <sup>4</sup> Aug. (quoting a friend), for repotatio.

§ 85. <sup>1</sup> Victorius, for mantur praetium. <sup>2</sup> Added by G, H. <sup>3</sup> Lacuna recognized by Aug.

§ 84. The etymological connexions are correct (except for puteus; cf. v. 25 note a), but the Latin words are cognate 252.

&lt;sup>4</sup> Aug. (quoting a friend), for aut. <sup>5</sup> B, Laetus, for obsculto. <sup>6</sup> L. Sp., for odoratur. <sup>7</sup> sic alia ab ore A. Sp., for sic ab ore (Mue. deleted sic, and set ab ore at the beginning of the next section).

&lt;sup>c</sup> That is, with au changed to o, as if audor were the origin of odor; olor, with the well-known change of d to l, is not attested elsewhere in Latin literature, but is found in the glosses and survives in the Romance languages. These words belong together, but are not to be grouped with audio.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 83-85

auscultare who obey what they have heard; from which comes the poet's saying:

I hear, but do not heed.

With the change of a letter are formed odor <sup>c</sup> or olor 'smell'; from this, olet'it emits an odour,' and odorari 'to detect by the odour,' and odoratus 'perfumed,' and an odora 'fragrant' thing, and similarly other words.

84. With the mouth edo 'I eat,' sorbeo 'I suck in,' bibo 'I drink,' poto 'I drink.' Edo from Greek  $\check{\epsilon}\delta\omega$ ' I eat '; from this, esculentum 'edible 'and esca 'food' and edulia 'eatables'; and because in Greek it is  $\gamma \check{\epsilon} \iota \check{\epsilon} \iota \iota \iota$  'he tastes,' in Latin it is gustat. Sorbere 'to suck in,' and likewise bibere 'to drink,' from the sound b of the word, as for water fervere 'to boil' is from the sound like the action. From the same language, because there it is  $\pi \acute{\epsilon} \iota \iota \iota \iota \iota$  drink,' is potio 'drink,' whence poculum 'cup,' potatio 'drinking-bout,' repotia 'next day's drinking.' From the same comes puteus 'well,' because the old Greek word was like this, and not  $\iota \iota \iota \iota \iota \iota$  is now.

85. From manus 'hand' comes manupretium' workman's wages'; mancipium 'possession of property,' because it capitur 'is taken' manu' in hand'; manipulus 'manipule,' because it unites several manus 'hands'; manipularis 'soldier of a maniple,' manica 'sleeve.' Manubrium 'handle,' because it is grasped by the manus 'hand.' Mantelium 'towel,' on which the manus 'hands' terguntur 'are wiped.' . . . a with the Greek, not derived from it. b These words are not onomatopoeic.

§ 85. The gap is serious: the subject matter shifts abruptly, and many appropriate topics are missed, such as the actions of the feet, and some further discussion of the distinctions among agere, facere, gerere, cf. § 77.

IX. 86. Nunc primum ponam (de)<sup>1</sup> Censoriis Tabulis:

Ubi noctu in templum censor² auspicaverit atque de caelo nuntium erit, praeconi³ sic imperato⁴ ut viros vocet : "Quod bonum fortunatum felix salutareque siet⁵ populo Romano Quiritibus⁵ reique publicae populi Romani Quiritium mihique collegaeque meo, fidei magistratuique nostro : omnes Quirites pedites armatos, privatosque, curatores omnium tribuum, si quis pro se sive pro³ altero rationem dari volet, voca⁵ inlicium huc ad me."

87. Praeco in templo primum vocat, postea de moeris¹ item vocat. Ubi lucet,² censor⟨es⟩³ scribae magistratus murra unguentisque unguentur. Ubi praetores tribunique plebei quique inlicium⁴ vocati sunt venerunt, censores inter se sortiuntur, uter lustrum faciat. Ubi templum factum est, post tum conventionem habet qui lustrum conditurus est.

88. In Commentariis Consularibus scriptum sic inveni:

Qui exercitum imperaturus erit, accenso dicito: "C.¹ Calpurni, voca inlicium omnes Quirites huc ad me." Accensus dicit sic: "Omnes Quirites, inlicium vos ite² huc ad iudices." "C. Calpurni," cos,³ dicit, "voca ad conventionem omnes Quirites huc ad me." Accensus dicit sic: "Omnes Quirites, § 86. ¹ Added by Laetus. ² Aldus, for censora F¹ (censura F²). ³ Aldus, for praeconis. ⁴ Possibly the verbs coordinate to imperato in this section and in § 87 should all be imperatives; but the manuscript reading supports this only for imperato and partially for dicito, § 88. ⁵ Laetus, for salutare quesierit. ⁶ Brissonius, with b, for quiritium. ¬ Sciop., for si uerbo. § Aug., with B, for uocat.

§ 87. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for post eadem aeris. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for licet. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for censor. <sup>4</sup> Sciop., for in consilium.

§ 88. <sup>1</sup> Bruns Mommsen, for dicit hoc. <sup>2</sup> A. Sp.; ite Sciop.; for visite. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for calpurnicos (punctuation by Mue., after Gronov.).

<sup>§ 86. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The preparation for the lustratio, at the completion of the census. <sup>b</sup> Page 21 Regell. <sup>c</sup> Technical 254

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 86-88

IX. 86. Now first I shall put down some extracts from the Censors' Records a:

When by night the censor has gone into the sacred precinct to take the auspices, and a message has come from the sky, he shall thus command the herald to call the men: "May this be good, fortunate, happy, and salutary to the Roman people—the Quirites—and to the government of the Roman people—the Quirites—and to me and my colleague, to our honesty and our office: All the citizen soldiers under arms and private citizens as spokesmen of all the tribes, call hither to me with an inlicium c 'invitation,' in case any one for himself or for another wishes a reckoning d to be given."

87. The herald calls them first in the sacred precinct, afterwards he calls them likewise from the walls. When it is dawn, the censors, the clerks, and the magistrates are anointed with myrrh and ointments. When the praetors and the tribunes of the people and those who have been called to the invitation meeting have come, the censors cast lots with each other, as to which one of them shall conduct the ceremony of purification. When the sacred precinct a has been determined, then after that he who is to perform the purification conducts the assembly.

88. In the Consular Commentaries I have found the following account:

He who is about to summon the citizen-army, shall say to his assistant, "Gaius Calpurnius," call all the citizens hither to me, with an inlicium 'invitation.'" The assistant speaks thus: "All citizens, come ve hither to the judges, to an invitation meeting." "Gaius Calpurnius," says the consul, "call all the citizens hither to me, to a gathering." The assistant speaks thus: "All citizens, come hither to the judges, to a name for an invitation to a specially called assembly; cf. § 93-§ 94. With vocare, inlicium is an inner object. is, makes a protest against the censor's rating.

<sup>§ 87.</sup> This is another templum, in the Campus Martius. § 88. G Used as a type name, or taken from the records of some specific instance. b An old name for the consuls; cf. Livy, iii. 55. 11.

ite ad conventionem huc ad iudices." Dein consul eloquitur ad exercitum: "Impero qua convenit ad comitia centuriata."

89. Quare hic1 accenso, illic praeconi dicit, haec est causa: in aliquot rebus item² ut praeco accensus acciebat,3 a quo accensus quoque dictus. Accensum4 solitum ciere Boeotia ostendit, quam comoediam<sup>5</sup> alii (Plauti, alii Aquili)6 esse dicunt, hoc versu:

Ubi primum accensus clamarat meridiem.

Hoc idem Cosconius in Actionibus scribit praetorem accensum solitum tum esse iubere, ubi ei videbatur horam esse tertiam, inclamare horam tertiam esse. itemque meridiem et horam nonam.

90. Circum muros<sup>1</sup> mitti solitum<sup>2</sup> quo modo inliceret populum in eum (locum),3 unde vocare posset ad contionem, non solum ad consules et censores, sed etiam quaestores, Commentarium indicat vetus Anquisitionis4 M'.5 Sergii, Mani filii, quaestoris,6 qui capitis accusavit (T)rogum7; in qua8 sic est:

§ 89. 1 Aldus, for hinc. 2 Bentinus, for idem. <sup>3</sup> Lactus, for accipiebat. <sup>4</sup> Lactus, for ad censum. <sup>5</sup> For commaediam. 6 Added by Riese.

§ 90. 1 moeros Ursinus, for auras. 2 Aug., for solitus. <sup>3</sup> Added by Aug., cf. § 94. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for inquisitionis; cf. § 92. <sup>5</sup> L. Sp., for M. <sup>6</sup> For questores. <sup>7</sup> B, Vertranius, for rogum; cf. § 92. 8 Aug., for in aqua.

<sup>c</sup> From early times, the chief deliberative and legislative assembly of the Roman people.

<sup>§ 89.</sup> a Properly, passive participle of ac-censere 'to reckon thereto,' hence one assigned to help another; it has no connexion with acciere. b Gellius, iii. 3. 4, says that Varro, on the basis of style, attributed the Boeotia to Plautus, though it was reputed to be a work of Aquilius. Com. Rom. Frag. II, page 39 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; Plautus, Frag. verse 30 256 gathering." Then the consul makes declaration to the army: "I order you to go by the proper way to the centuriate assembly."

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 88-90

89. Why the latter speaks to the accensus 'assistant' and the former to the herald—this is the reason: in some affairs the accensus a' assistant 'acciebat' gave the call' just like a herald, from which the accensus also got his name. That the accensus was accustomed ciere 'to give the call,' is shown by the Boeotia, b a comedy which some say is a work of Plautus, and others say is a work of Aquilius, in this verse c:

Soon as the aide had called that 'twas the hour of noon.

Cosconius d records the same in his work on Civil Cases, that the praetor had the habit of ordering his accensus, at the time when he thought that it is the third hour, to call out that it is the third hour, and likewise midday and the ninth hour.

90. That someone was regularly sent around the walls, inlicere 'to entice' a the people to that place from which he might call them to the gathering, not only before the consuls and the censors, but also before the quaestors, is shown by an old Commentary on the Indictment which the quaestor Manius Sergius b son of Manius brought against Trogus, accusing him of a capital offence; in which there is the following:

Ritschl. <sup>d</sup> Page 109 Funaioli; page 10 Huschke. <sup>e</sup> If he wished to divide the day evenly, this means the end (not the beginning) of the third and the ninth hours.

§ 90. The origin of inlicium seems to be, as Varro says, from the fact that the announcer inliciebat 'enticed' the people to the meeting. Sergius and his commentary, and the case against Trogus, are entirely unknown except from this passage and § 92; but the mention of praetors sets the incident after 242 B.C., when the number of praetors was increased from one to two.

- 91. Auspicio o(pe)ram des et¹ in templo auspices,² tum³ aut ad praetorem aut ad consulem mittas auspicium petitum; comi/(ti)atum⁴ praetor ⟨r⟩eum⁵ vocet ad te, et eum de muris vocet praeco; id imperare ⟨o⟩portet.⁵ Cornic⟨in⟩em² ad privati ianuam et in Arcem mittas, ubi canat.⁵ Collegam⁵ roges¹⁰ ut comitia edicat¹¹ de rostris et argentarii tabe⟨r⟩nas occludant. Patres censeant exquæras et adesse iubeas; magistratus censea⟨n⟩t¹² ex⟨qua⟩era⟨s⟩,¹³ consules praetores tribunosque plebis collegasque ⟨t⟩uos,¹⁴ et in templo adesse iubeas omnes¹⁵; ac cum mittas, contionem a⟨d⟩voces.¹⁵
- 92. In eodem Commentario Anquisitionis¹ ad extremum scriptum caput edicti hoc est:

Item quod attingat qui de censoribus<sup>2</sup> classicum ad comitia centuriata redemptum habent, uti curent eo die quo die comitia erunt, in Arce classicus canat<sup>3</sup> circumque muros et ante privati huiusce T. Quinti Trogi scelerosi ostium<sup>4</sup> canat, et ut in Campo cum primo luci adsiet.<sup>5</sup>

- 93. Inter id cum circum muros mittitur et cum contio advocatur, interesse tempus apparet ex his quae interea fieri inlicium¹ scriptum est; sed ad comitiatum² vocatur populus ideo, quod alia de causa hic magistratus non potest exercitum urbanum con-
- § 91. <sup>1</sup> Bergk, for orande sed. <sup>2</sup> Mommsen, for auspiciis. <sup>3</sup> L. Sp., for dum. <sup>4</sup> Sciop., for commeatum. <sup>5</sup> Kent; praeco reum Aug.; for praetores. <sup>6</sup> Laetus, for portet. <sup>7</sup> Aug., with B, for cornicem. <sup>8</sup> Aldus, for cannat. <sup>9</sup> Rhol., for colligam. <sup>10</sup> Mue., for rogis. <sup>11</sup> Victorius, for comitiae dicat. <sup>12</sup> Mue., for censeat. <sup>13</sup> Bergk; exquiras Mue.; for extra. <sup>14</sup> Sciop., for homines. <sup>16</sup> B, G, Aug., for aug.s. <sup>15</sup> Sciop., for homines. <sup>16</sup> B, G, Aug., for aug.s. with B, for acquisitionis. <sup>2</sup> Aug., with

§ 92. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for acquisitionis. <sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for decessoribus. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for cannatum. <sup>4</sup> Sciop., for hostium. <sup>5</sup> Sciop., for adsit et.

§ 93.  $^{1}$  Aldus, for illicitum  $F^{1}$  (illicium  $F^{2}$ ).  $^{2}$  Sciop., for comitia tum.

<sup>§ 91. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> The document is addressed to Sergius as quaestor. <sup>b</sup> Page 21 Regell. <sup>a</sup> The northern summit of the Capito-258

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 91-93

- 91. You a shall give your attention to the auspices, and take the auspices in the sacred precinct; then you shall send to the praetor or to the consul the favourable presage which has been sought. The praetor shall call the accused to appear in the assembly before you, and the herald shall call him from the walls: it is proper to give this command. A horn-blower you shall send to the doorway of the private individual and to the Citadel, where the signal is to sound. Your colleague you shall request that from the speaker's stand he proclaim an assembly, and that the bankers shut up their shops.4 You shall seek that the senators express their opinion, and bid them be present; you shall seek that the magistrates express their opinion, the consuls, the praetors, the tribunes of the people, and your colleagues, and you shall bid them all be present in the temple; and when you send the request, you shall summon the gathering.
- 92. In the same Commentary on the Indictment, at the end, this summing up of the edict is written:

Likewise in what pertains to those who have received from the censors the contract for the trumpeter who gives the summons to the centuriate assembly, they shall see to it that on that day, on which the assembly shall take place, the trumpeter shall sound the trumpet on the Citadel and around the walls, and shall sound it before the house-entrance of this accursed Titus Quintius Trogus, and that he be present in the Campus Martius at daybreak.<sup>a</sup>

93. That between the sending around the walls and the calling of the gathering some time elapses, is clear from those things the doing of which in the meantime is written down as the inlicium 'invitation'; but the people is called to appear in the assembly because for any other reason this magistrate <sup>a</sup> cannot call together the citizen-army of the City. The line. <sup>d</sup> These shops (cf. § 59 and note), on both sides of the Forum, were to be closed during the trial of Trogus.

§ 92. <sup>a</sup> In early Latin, lux was normally masculine, as in Plautus, Aul. 748, Cist. 525, Capt. 1008; Terence, Adel. 841. § 93. <sup>a</sup> The praetor.

vocare; censor, consul, dictator, interrex potest, quod censor<sup>3</sup> exercitum centuriato constituit quinquennalem, cum lustrare4 et in urbem ad vexillum ducere debet; dictator et consul in singulos annos, quod hic exercitui imperare potest quo eat, id quod propter centuriata comitia imperare solent.

94. Quare non est dubium, quin1 hoc inlicium sit, cum circum muros itur, ut populus inliciatur ad magistratus conspectum, qui (vi)ros2 vocare3 potest, in eum locum unde vox ad contionem vocantis exaudiri possit. Quare una origine illici et inlicis quod in Choro Proserpinae est, et pellexit, quod in Hermiona est, cum ait Pacuius :

Regni alieni cupiditas

Pellevit.

Sic Elicii Iovis ara4 in Aventino, ab eliciendo.

95. Hoc nunc aliter fit atque olim, quod augur consuli adest tum cum exercitus imperatur ac praeit quid eum dicere oporteat. Consul augur(i) imperare solet, ut inlicium2 vocet, non accenso aut praeconi. Id inceptum credo, cum non adesset accensus; et nihil intererat cui imperaret, et dicis causa fieba(n)t3

<sup>3</sup> Laetus, for censorem. <sup>4</sup> Scaliger, for lustraret. § 94. 1 Vertranius, for cum.

3 Aldus, for uocari. 4 Victoria L. Sp., for qui ros.

<sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for fiebat.

&lt;sup>4</sup> Victorius, for iobis uisa ara. r augur. <sup>2</sup> B, Laetus, for is licium. § 95. 1 Victorius, for augur.

b This statement refers to the consul only; the part defining the dictator's powers seems to have fallen out of the text.

<sup>§ 94.</sup> a Trag. Rom. Frag., page 272 Ribbeck3, of an unknown poet; unless Chorus Proserpinae is a substitute name for Eumenides, a tragedy of Ennius. b Trag. Rom. Frag., verses 170-171 Ribbeck3; R.O.L. ii. 226-227 Warmington. A popular etymology only, since Jupiter could hardly be 260 censor, the consul, the dictator, the interrex can, because the censor arranges in centuries the citizenarmy for a period of five years, when he must ceremonially purify it and lead it to the city under its standards; the dictator and the consul do so every year, because the latter can order the citizen-army where it is to go, a thing which they are accustomed to order on account of the centuriate assembly.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 93-95

94. Therefore there is no doubt that this is the inlicium, when they go around the walls that the people may inlici 'be enticed' before the eyes of the magistrate who has the authority to call the men into that place from which the voice of the one who is calling them to the gathering can be heard. Therefore there come from the same source also illici 'to be enticed' and inlicis 'thou enticest,' which are in the Chorus of Proserpina, and pellexit' lured,' which is in the Hermiona, when Pacuvius says b:

Desire for another's kingdom lured him on.

So also the altar of Jupiter Elicius ' the Elicited ' on the Aventine, from elicere ' to lure forth.' °

95. This is now done otherwise than it was of old, because the augur is present with the consul when the citizen-army is summoned, and says in advance the formulas which he is to say. The consul regularly gives order to the augur, not to the assistant nor to the herald, that he shall call the inlicium 'invitation.' I believe that this was begun on an occasion when the assistant was not present; it really made no difference to whom he gave the order, and it was for form's sake quaedam neque item facta neque item dieta semper. Hoc ipsum inlicium scriptum inveni in M. Iunii Commentariis; quod tamen (inlex apud Plautum in Persa est qui legi non paret), ibidem est quod illicit illex, (f)it quod (I) cum E et C cum G magnam habet co(m)munitatem.

&#x27;tricked'; according to G. S. Hopkins, Indo-European deiwos and Related Words, 27-32, Elicius is a derivative of liquere 'to be liquid,' and Jupiter Elicius is a rain-god.

X. 96. Sed quoniam in hoc de paucis rebus verba feci plura, de pluribus rebus verba faciam pauca, et potissimum quae in Graeca lingua putant Latina, ut scalpere a σκαλεύειν, 1 sternere a στρωννύειν, 2 lingere a λιχμᾶσθαι, 3 i ab ἴθζι), 4 ite ab ἴτε, 5 gignitur ⟨a⟩6 γίγνεται, 7 ferte a φέρετε, 8 providere (a) 10 προιδεῖν, 11 errare ab ἔρρειν, 12 ab eo quod dicunt στραγγαλᾶν 13 strangulare, tingue⟨re⟩14 a τέγγειν. 15 Praeterea ⟨depsere⟩ a δεψῆσ⟨αι⟩16; ab eo quod illi μαλάσσειν 17 nos malaxare, ut gargarissare ab ἀναγαργαρίζεσθαι, 18 putere a πύθεσθαι, 10 domare a δαμάζειν, 20 mulgere ab ἀμέλγειν, 21 peetere a πέκειν, 22 stringere a στλεγγίζειν 23:

4 Added by GS. <sup>5</sup> GS., for illicite illexit quae F (quod Mue., for quae). § 96. <sup>1</sup> Rhol., 6 Added by Ciacconius apud Aug. for SCOLPSa.&. <sup>2</sup>L. Sp., for <sup>3</sup>L. Sp., for Λhyμωστε. <sup>4</sup>A. Sp., for <sup>3</sup>L. Sp., for Λhyμωστε. STPONYIN. he. 5 L. Sp., for hte. 6 Added by L. Sp. 7 L. Sp., for YhYNOITe. 8 L. Sp., for ferete. 9 p, Laetus, for 10 Added by GS. 11 Rhol., for ΠΡωhδεhN. <sup>12</sup> Scaliger, for ERREHN. <sup>13</sup> L. Sp. (after Buttmann), for 14 B, Rhol., for tingue. 15 Buttmann, for THNK $\epsilon\Delta\epsilon$ . <sup>16</sup> Ellis (after L. Sp.), for ades. $\psi\epsilon$ C. <sup>18</sup> L. Sp., for aNaPΓaPHCTε. Sp., for MAAA $\Sigma \in \mathbb{N}$ . 19 Canal, for potare a ΠοΙΘε CTaε. 20 L. Sp., for Δμαισhν. <sup>21</sup> Rhol., for AMεΛΓΗΝ. <sup>22</sup> L. Sp., for ΠεΣεΡε. <sup>23</sup> GS., for CRHNTH $\Delta \epsilon$ .

<sup>§ 95. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> lurisprud. Antehadr. Rel., i. 39 Bremer, 262

only that certain things were done, but they were not always said or done in just the same way. This very word inlicium I have found written in the Commentaries of Marcus Junius a; that however inlex in Plautus's Persa b is a person who does not obey the lex 'law,' and in the same work illex is also that which illicit 'entices,' c is the result of the fact that I has much in common with E and C with G.

X. 96. But since in this connexion I have spoken at length on a few matters, I shall speak briefly on a number of topics, and especially on the Latin words whose origin they think a to be in the Greek tongue b: as scalpere 'to engrave' from σκαλεύειν 'to scratch,' sternere 'to spread out' from στρωννύειν, lingere 'to lick up 'from λιχμᾶσθαι, i 'go thou 'from "θι, ite 'go ye' from ἴτε, gignitur 'he is born' from γίγνεται, ferte 'bear ye' from φέρετε, providere 'to act with foresight' from προιδείν 'to see ahead, foresee,' errare 'to stray 'from ἔρρειν 'to go away '; strangulare ' to strangle ' from the word στραγγαλάν, tinguere ' to dip, dye 'from τέγγειν. Besides, there is depsere ' to knead ' from δεψησαι; from the word which they call μαλάσσειν, we say malaxare 'to soften,' as gargarissare 'to gargle' from ἀναγαργαρίζεσθαι, putere to stink 'from πύθεσθαι' to decay, 'domare' to subdue ' from δαμάζειν, mulgere ' to milk ' from ἀμέλγειν, pectere 'to comb' from πέκειν, stringere 'to scrape

<sup>b</sup> Persa, 408 and 597. <sup>c</sup> The insertion by GS. must be approximately correct, in view of Festus, 113. 6, Nonius, 446.

34, Corp. Gloss. Lat. vi-vii. s.v. illex.

<sup>§ 96.</sup> Page 116 Funaioli. These Latin words are mostly cognate with the Greek words, not derived from them; but strangulare, depsere, malaxare, gargarissare, and runcina are derived from the Greek words, and errare and stringere are not related at all to the alleged Greek sources.

VARRO

id enim a  $\sigma \tau \lambda \epsilon \gamma \gamma i s$ , 4 ut runcinare a runcina, cuius ρυκάνη<sup>25</sup> origo Graeca.

XI. 97. Quod ad origines verborum huius libri pertinet, satis multas arbitror positas huius generis¹; desistam, et quoniam de hisce rebus tri⟨s⟩² libros ad te mittere institui, de oratione soluta duo, poetica unum, et ex soluta oratione ad te misi duo, priorem de locis et quae in locis sunt, hunc de temporibus et quae cum his sunt coniuncta, deinceps in proximo de poeticis verborum originibus scribere in⟨cipiam⟩.³

<sup>24</sup> GS., for CHNTHMHC.
 § 97.
 <sup>1</sup> For gaeneris.
 <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for tri.
 <sup>3</sup> Groth, with a, b, for in F, after which the space of twenty lines is left vacant; for incipiam, cf. viii. 1 and viii. 25.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VI. 96-97

from στλεγγίζειν: for this is from στλεγγίς 'scraper,' as runcinare' to plane 'from runcina' plane,' of which ρυκάνη is the Greek source.

XI. 97. As to what concerns the sources of the words which belong to this book, sufficiently numerous examples of this kind have, I think, been set down; I shall stop, and since I have undertaken to send you three books on these topics, two about prose composition and one about poetical, and I have sent you the two about prose, the former about places and the things that are in them, the latter about time-ideas and those things which are associated with them, I shall at last, in the next book, begin to write of the sources of words used in poetry.

(M. TERENTI VARRONIS DE LINGUA LATINA

LIBER VI EXPLICIT; INCIPIT

LIBER VII>1

HIC DEEST IN EXEMPLARI FOLIUM I IN QUO EST PRINCIPIUM LIBRI VII<sup>2</sup>

I. 1. 〈DIFFICILIA sunt explicatu poetarum vocabula. Saepe enim significationem aliquam prioribus temporibus impositam〉¹ repens ruina operuit,² 〈a〉ut³ verbum quod conditum est e quibus litteris oportet inde post aliqua dempta, sic⁴ obscurior⁵ fit voluntas impos〈i〉toris.⁶ Non reprehendendum igitur in illis qui in scrutando verbo litteram adiciunt aut demunt, quo⁵ facilius quid sub ea voce subsit videri⁵ possit : ut⁵ enim facilius obscuram operam 〈M〉yrmecidis¹o ex

&lt;sup>1</sup> The lost heading is restored after that of Book VI. <sup>2</sup> F contains this statement of loss; B and the Leipzig codex contain an interpolated beginning: Temporum vocabula et corum quae coniuncta sunt, aut in agendo fiunt, aut cum tempore aliquo enuntiantur, priore libro dixi. In hoc dicam de poeticis vocabulis et eorum originibus, in quis multa difficilia: nam, after which comes repens ruina aperuit.

MARCUS TERENTIUS VARRO'S ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE

BOOK VI ENDS, AND HERE BEGINS

BOOK VII

AT THIS POINT, IN THE MODEL COPY, ONE LEAF IS LACKING, ON WHICH IS THE BEGINNING OF BOOK VII

I. 1. The words of the poets are hard to expound. For often some meaning that was fixed in olden times has been buried by a sudden catastrophe, or in a word whose proper make-up of letters is hidden after some elements have been taken away from it, the intent of him who applied the word becomes in this fashion quite obscure. There should be no rebuking then of those who in examining a word add a letter or take one away, that what underlies this expression may be more easily perceived: just as, for instance, that the eyes may more easily see Myrmecides' indistinct ebore oculi videant, extrinsecus admovent nigras setas.

<sup>§ 1.</sup> ¹ Proposed by A. Sp., as the most probable indication of what immediately preceded. ² Turnebus, for aperuit. ³ A. Sp., for ut. ⁴ Turnebus, for sit. ⁵ Aldus, H, for obscurius. ⁶ Victorius, for in posterioris. ⁻ Turnebus, for quid. ጾ L. Sp., for uidere. ॰ Victorius, for et. ¹⁰ L. Sp.; Myrmetidis Aldus; for yrmeci dum.

- 2. Cum haec amminicula addas ad eruendum voluntatem impositoris, tamen latent multa. Quod si poetice (quae)1 in carminibus servavit2 multa prisca quae essent, sic étiam cur essent posuisset,3 fecundius4 poemata ferrent fructum; sed ut in soluta oratione sic in poematis verba (non) omnia quae habent ἔτυμα possunt dici, neque multa ab eo, quem non erunt in lucubratione litterae prosecutae, multum licet legeret. Aelii7 hominis in primo in litteris Latinis exercitati interpretationem Carminum Saliorum videbis et exili littera expedita(m)8 et praeterita obscuraº multa.
- 3. Nec mirum, cum non modo Epimenides<sup>1</sup> (s)opor(e)2 post annos L experrectus a multis non cognoscatur, sed etiam Teucer Livii post XV annos ab suis qui sit ignoretur. At3 hoc quid ad verborum poeticorum aetatem? Quorum si Pompili regnum fons in Carminibus Saliorum neque ea ab superioribus

§ 3. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for Epamenidis. <sup>2</sup> GS., for opôs. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for ad.

§ 1. a Cf. ix. 108; his carvings were so tiny that the detail in the white ivory could be seen only against a black background.

<sup>§ 2. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>2</sup> Victorius, for servabit. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for posuissent. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for secundius. <sup>5</sup> Added by Mue. <sup>6</sup> For haberent. <sup>7</sup> H, B, Ed. Veneta, for helii. <sup>6</sup> Laetus, for expedita. <sup>9</sup> For praeteritam obscuram.

<sup>§ 3.</sup> a A Cretan poet and prophet, reputed to have cleansed Athens of a plague in 596 B.c. According to one story, in his boyhood he went into a cave to escape the noonday sun, and fell into a sleep that lasted fifty-seven years. When he awoke, 268 handiwork a in ivory, men put black hairs behind the objects.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 1-3

2. Even though you employ these tools to unearth the intent of him who applied the word, much remains hidden. But if the art of poesy, which has in the verses preserved many words that are early, had in the same fashion also set down why and how they came to be, the poems would bear fruit in more prolific measure; unfortunately, in poems as in prose, not all the words can be assigned to their primitive radicals, and there are many which cannot be so assigned by him whom learning does not attend with favour in his nocturnal studies, though he read prodigiously. In the interpretation of the Hymns of the Salians, which was made by Aelius, an outstanding scholar in Latin literature, you will see that the interpretation is greatly furthered by attention to a single poor letter, and that much is obscured if such a letter is passed by.

3. Nor is this astonishing: for not only were there many who failed to recognize Epimenides a when he awoke from sleep after fifty years, but even Teucer's own family, in the play of Livius Andronicus, do not know who he is after his absence of fifteen years. But what has this to do with the age of poetic words? If the reign of Numa Pompilius is the source of those in the Hymns of the Salians and those words were not received from earlier hymn-makers, they are none the everything was changed; his younger brother had become an old man. b Livius Andronicus, Trag. Rom. Frag., page 7 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. ii. 14-15 Warmington. Teucer, son of Telamon king of Salamis, was absent from home during the Trojan War, and again during his exile after his return from that war. 'Second king of Rome, founder of the Salian priesthood.

accepta, tamen habent DCC annos. Quare cur scriptoris industriam reprehendas qui herois tritavum, atavum non potucrit reperire, cum ipse tui tritavi matrem dicere non possis? Quod intervallum multo tanto propius nos, quam hinc ad initium Saliorum, quo Romanorum prima verba poetica dicunt Latina.

- 4. Igitur de originibus verborum qui multa dixerit commode, potius boni consulendum, quam qui aliquid nequierit reprehendendum, praesertim quom dicat etymologice¹ non omnium verborum posse dici causa⟨m⟩,² ut qui a⟨c⟩ qua re res u⟨tilis³ sit⟩⁴ ad medendum medicina; neque si non norim radices arboris, non posse me dicere pirum esse ex ramo, ramum ex arbore, eam ex radicibus quas non video. Quare qui ostendit equitatum esse ab equitibus, equites ab equite, equitem ab equo neque equus unde sit dicit, tamen hic docet plura et satisfacit grato, quem imitari possimusne ipse liber erit indicio.
- II. 5. Dicam in hoc libro de verbis quae a poetis sunt posita, primum de locis, dein quae in locis sunt, tertio de temporibus, tum quae cum temporibus sunt coniuncta, (se)d is¹ ut quae cum his sint coniuncta, <sup>§ 4. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> For ethymologice. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for causa. <sup>3</sup> Ellis, for quia quare res u and a blank space capable of holding about seven letters. <sup>4</sup> Added by Kent. § 5. <sup>1</sup> A. Sp.; sed ita Mue.; for dis.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 3-5

less seven hundred years old. Therefore why should you find fault with the diligence of a writer who has not been able to find the name of the great-grandfather or the grandfather of a demigod's great-grandfather, when you yourself cannot name the mother of your own great-grandfather's great-grandfather? This interval is much closer to us, than the stretch from the present time to the beginning of the Salians, when, they say, the first poetic words of the Romans were composed, in Latin.

4. Therefore the man who has made many apt pronouncements on the origins of words, one should regard with favour, rather than find fault with him who has been unable to make any contribution; especially since the etymologic art says that it is not of all words that the basis can be stated-just as it cannot be stated how and why a medicine is effective for curing; and that if I have no knowledge of the roots of a tree, still I am not prevented from saying that a pear is from a branch, the branch is from a tree, and the tree from roots which I do not see. For this reason, he who shows that equitatus 'cavalry' is from equites 'cavalrymen,' equites from eques 'cavalryman,' eques from equus 'horse,' even though he does not give the source of the word equus, still gives several lessons and satisfies an appreciative person; whether or not we can do as much, the present book itself shall serve as testifying witness.

II. 5. In this book I shall speak of the words which have been put down by the poets, first those about places, then those which are in places, third those about times, then those which are associated with time-ideas; but in such a way that to them I shall add those which are associated with these, and adiungam, et si quid excedit² ex hac quadripertitione, tamen in ea ut comprehendam.

6. Incipiam hine:

Unus erit quem tu tolles in caerula caeli Templa.

Templum tribus modis dicitur: ab natura, ab auspicando,¹ a similitudine;  $\langle ab \rangle^2$  natura in caelo, ab auspiciis in terra, a similitudine sub terra. In caelo te $\langle m \rangle$ plum dicitur, ut in Hecuba:

O magna templa caelitum, commixta stellis splendidis.

In terra, ut in Periboea:

Scrupea saxea Ba(c)chi Templa prope aggreditur.

Sub terra, ut in Andromacha:

Acherusia templa alta Orci, salvete, infera.

7. Quaqua¹ in⟨tu⟩iti era⟨n⟩t² oculi, a tuendo primo templum dictum : quocirca caelum qua attuimur dictum templum ; sic :

Contremuit templum magnum Iovis altitonantis,

 $^2$  Sciop., for excidit.  $\S$  6.  $^1$  Groth, with V, p, for auspicendo.  $^2$  Added by L. Sp.  $\S$  7.  $^1$  Aug., for quaquia.  $^2$  Sciop., for initium erat.

<sup>§ 6. °</sup> Said of Romulus, by Ennius, Ann. 65-66 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 22-23 Warmington; quoted without templa by Ovid, Met. xiv. 814 and Fast. ii. 487. ° Properly a 'limited space,' for divination or otherwise; from the root tem-'cut.' ° Page 18 Regell. d' That is, likeness to a templum in the sky or on the earth. Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 163 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 292-293 Warmington. 272

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 5-7

that if any word lies outside this fourfold division, I shall still include it in the account.

6. I shall begin from this:

One there shall be, whom thou shalt raise up to sky's azure temples. a Templum b 'temple' is used in three ways, of nature, of taking the auspices, c from likeness a: of nature, in the sky; of taking the auspices, on the earth; from likeness, under the earth. In the sky, templum is used as in the Hecuba c:

O great temples of the gods, united with the shining stars.

On the earth, as in the Periboea f:

To Bacchus' temples aloft On sharp jagged rocks it draws near.

Under the earth, as in the Andromacha 9:

Be greeted, great temples of Orcus, By Acheron's waters, in Hades.

7. Whatever place the eyes had intuiti 'gazed on,' was originally called a templum 'temple,' from tueri 'to gaze'; therefore the sky, where we attuimur 'gaze at' it, got the name templum, as in this a:

Trembled the mighty temple of Jove who thunders in heaven, f Pacuvius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 310 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 278-279 Warmington; anapaestic; said of a Bacchic rout. Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 70-71 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 254-255 Warmington; anapaestic; quoted more fully by Cicero, Tusc. Disp. i. 21. 48.

§ 7. Ennius, Ann. 541 Vahlen2; R.O.L. i. 450-451

Warmington.

id est, ut ait Naevius,

Hemisphaerium³ ubi conca⟨vo⟩⁴ Caerulo⁵ septum stat.

Eius templi partes quattuor dicuntur, sinistra ab oriente, dextra ab occasu, antica ad meridiem, postica ad septemtrionem.

8. In terris dictum templum locus augurii aut auspicii causa quibusdam conceptis verbis finitus. Concipitur verbis non isdem¹ usque quaque; in Arce sic:

Tem<pla> tescaque² me ita sunto, quoad ego ea rite³ linqua⁴ nuncupayero.

Olla  $ver\langle a \rangle^{6}$  arbos quirquir est, quam me sentio dixisse, templum tescumque me esto<sup>6</sup> in sinistrum.

Olla ver(a)? arbos quirquir est, quam<sup>6</sup> me sentio dixisse, te(m)plum tescumque me esto<sup>6</sup> (in)<sup>9</sup> dextrum.

Inter ea conregione conspicione cortumione, utique ea (rit)e dixisse me<sup>19</sup> sensi.

9. In hoc templo faciundo arbores constitui fines apparet et intra eas regiones qua oculi conspiciant, id

<sup>3</sup> Turnebus, B, for hiemisferium. <sup>4</sup> Mue., for conca.

<sup>5</sup> For cherulo.

§ 8.  $^1$  Mue., for hisdem.  $^2$  Turnebus, for item testaque.  $^3$  ea rite L. Sp., for eas te.  $^4$  Victorius, p, for linquam.  $^5$  Kent, for ullaber.  $^6$  tescum Turnebus, -que me Fay, esto Scaliger and Turnebus, for tectum quem festo.  $^7$  Kent, for ollaner.  $^6$  Mue., for quod.  $^9$  Added by B, Laetus.  $^{10}$  L. Sp., ; ea dixisse me Sciop. ; for ea erectissime.

<sup>b</sup> An uncertain fragment, not listed in the collections of the fragments of Naevius. <sup>c</sup> Cf. p. 18 Regell.

§ 8. a Page 18 Regell. b Text and translation both very problematic. I take me as dative (cf. Fest. 160. 2); regard quirquir as equal to quisquis, either by manuscript corruption or with rhotacism in the phrase quisquis est, 274

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 7-9

that is, as Naevius says, b

Where land's semicircle lies, Fenced by the azure vault.

Of this temple c the four quarters are named thus: the left quarter, to the east; the right quarter, to the west; the front quarter, to the south; the back quarter, to the north.

8. On the earth, templum is the name given to a place set aside and limited by certain formulaic words for the purpose of augury a or the taking of the auspices. The words of the ceremony are not the same everywhere; on the Citadel, they are as follows b:

Temples and wild lands be mine in this manner, up to where I have named them with my tongue in proper fashion.

Of whatever kind that truthful tree is, which I consider that I have mentioned, temple and wild land be mine to that point on the left.

Of whatever kind that truthful tree is, which I consider that I have mentioned, temple and wild land be mine to that point on the right.

Between these points, temples and wild lands be mine for direction, for viewing, and for interpreting, and just as I have felt assured that I have mentioned them in proper fashion.

9. In making this temple, it is evident that the trees are set as boundaries, and that within them the regions are set where the eyes are to view, that is we becoming quisquir est (so Fay, Amer. Journ. Phil. xxxv. 253); take as datives the three words in -one in the last sentence (meanings, vii. 9), supplying after them templa tescaque me sunto. For meaning of tescum, cf. vii. 10-11. That is, lending itself to true predictions through the auspices.

275

est tueamur, a quo templum dictum, et contemplare, ut apud Ennium in Medea:

Contempla et templum Cereris ad laevam aspice.

Contempla et conspicare  $id\langle em \rangle^1$  esse apparet, ideo dicere tum, cum  $te\langle m \rangle plum^2$  facit, augurem conspicione, qua oculorum conspectum finiat. Quod cum dicunt conspicionem, addunt cortumionem, dicitur a cordis visu: cor enim cortumionis origo.

10. Quod addit templa ut si\(\alpha\)\tesca,² aiunt sancta esse qui glossas scripserunt. Id est falsum: nam Curia Hostilia templum est et sanctum non est; sed hoc ut putarent aedem sacram esse templum, \(\lambda\) eo videtur\(\rangle^3\) esse factum quod in urbe Roma pleraeque aedes sacrae sunt templa, eadem sancta, et quod loca quaedam agrestia, quae\(\alpha\) alicuius dei sunt, dicuntur\(\frac{5}\) tesca.

§ 9. <sup>1</sup> Bentinus, for id. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for cum conteplum. § 10. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for sit. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for dextra. <sup>3</sup> Added by GS. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for quod. <sup>5</sup> Bentinus, for dicentur.

<sup>§ 9. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> As Varro derives templum from tueri, he must insist on the meaning 'to gaze,' because in his time its usual meaning was 'to protect.' <sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 244 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 324-325 Warmington. The preceding verse ended with Athenas anticum oppidum, which is the object of contempla, but Varro obviously understood his shortened citation as it is here translated. <sup>e</sup> He means, from cor and tueri; but the second part is rather from the root tem-'to cut,' as in aestimare 'to cut bronze, 276

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 9-10

tueamur 'are to gaze,' a from which was said templum and contemplare 'to contemplate,' as in Ennius, in the Medea b:

Contemplate and view Ceres' temple on the left.

Contempla 'do thou contemplate' and conspicare' do thou view' are the same, it is obvious, and therefore the augur, when he makes a temple, says conspicione' for viewing,' with regard to where he is to delimit the conspectus' view' of the eyes. As to their adding cortumio when they say conspicio, this term is derived from the vision of the cor' heart'; for cor is the basis of cortumio.c

10. As to his adding that the temples shall be tesca 'wild lands,' those who have written glossaries a say that this means that the temples are inviolable. This is quite wrong: for the Hostilian Meeting-House is a temple and is not inviolable. But that people should have the idea that a temple is a consecrated building, seems to have come about from the fact that in the city Rome most consecrated buildings are temples, and they are likewise inviolable, and that certain places in the country, which are the property of some god, are called tesca.

evaluate, think,' and the whole word means perhaps 'interpreting.'

§ 10. a Page 113 Funaioli. b That is, where any violence, at whatever directed, is sacrilege toward the gods. Temple is in this statement used in the wide meaning of a limited space, not in the derived sense of a building for the worship of the gods or of a god, which is an aedes sacra. In the Comitium; traditionally built by Tullus Hostilius, third king of Rome, as a meeting place for the Senate. a A locus sacer (consecrated to a deity) was always sanctus, but a locus sanctus was not always sacer.

11. Nam apud Accium in1 Philocteta2 Lemnio:

Quis tu es mortalis, qui in deserta et tesca te apportes³ loca?

(Ea)4 enim loca quae sint designat, cum dicit:

Lemnia praesto Litora rara, <sup>5</sup> et celsa Cabirum Delubra tenes, <sup>6</sup> mysteria quae Pristina castis <sup>7</sup> concepta sacris.

Dein:

Volcania<sup>8</sup> (iam)<sup>9</sup> templa sub ipsis Collibus, in quos delatus locos Dicitur alto ab limine<sup>10</sup> caeli.

Et:

Nemus expirante vapore vides, Unde ignis<sup>11</sup> cluet<sup>12</sup> mortalibus (clam)<sup>13</sup> Divis(us).<sup>14</sup>

Quare haec quo(d) tesca dixit, non erravit, neque ideo quod sancta, sed quod ubi mysteria fiunt attuentur. 15 tuesca dicta.

12. Tueri duo significat, unum ab aspectu ut dixi, unde est Ennii¹ illud:

Tueor te, senex? Pro Iupiter!

§ 11. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for ut. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for philocto etatem. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for appones (cf. adportas Festus, 356 a 26 M.). <sup>4</sup> Added by Mue. <sup>5</sup> Aug., with B, for prest olitor a rarat. <sup>6</sup> For teues. <sup>7</sup> Aldus, for castris. <sup>8</sup> For uolgania. <sup>9</sup> Added by Ribbeck. <sup>10</sup> Aug., with B, for lumine. <sup>11</sup> Vertranius (from Cicero, Tusc. ii. 10. 23), for ignes. <sup>12</sup> Aldus, for clauet. <sup>13</sup> Added by Victorius (from Cicero, l.c.). <sup>14</sup> Turnebus (from Cicero, l.c.), for diuis. <sup>15</sup> Mue., for aut tuentur.

§ 12. ¹ Sciop., for enim.

<sup>§ 11. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 554 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 514-515 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 525-534 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; 278

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 11-12

11. For there is the following in Accius, in the Philoctetes of Lemnos  $^a$ :

What man are thou, who dost advance To places desert, places waste?

What sort of places these are, he indicates when he says  $^{b}$ :

Around you you have the Lemnian shores, Apart from the world, and the high-seated shrines Of Cabirian Gods, and the mysteries which Of old were expressed with sacrifice pure.

Then:

You see now the temples of Vulcan, close by Those very same hills, upon which he is said To have fallen when thrown from the sky's lofty sill.

And:

The wood here you see with the smoke gushing forth, Whence the fire—so they say—was secretly brought To mankind.<sup>d</sup>

Therefore he made no mistake in calling these lands tesca, and yet he did not do so because they were consecrated; but because men attuentur 'gaze at 'places where mysteries take place, they were called tuesca.e

12. Tueri has two meanings, one of 'seeing' as I have said, whence that verse of Ennius a:

I really see thee, sire? Oh Jupiter!

R.O.L. ii. 506-507 Warmington; anapaestic. <sup>c</sup> He fell on Lemnos, as related in Iliad, i. 590-594. <sup>d</sup> This last portion is quoted by Cicero, Tusc. Disp. ii. 10. 23, who continues with a summary of the story of Prometheus. <sup>e</sup> Varro means that tesca is for tuesca, waste or wild land where men may look at (attueri) celebrations of religious mysteries: an incorrect etymology.

§ 12. a Trag. Rom. Frag. 335 Ribbecks; R.O.L. i. 290-

291 Warmington.

Et:

Quis pater aut cognatus volet vos² contra tueri?

Alterum a curando ac tutela, ut cum dicimus "vellet³ tueri villam," a quo etiam quidam dicunt illum qui curat aedes sacras aedituum, non aeditumum⁴; sed tamen hoc ipsum ab eadem est profectum origine, quod quem volumus domum curare dicimus "tu domi videbis," ut Plautus cum ait:

Intus para, cura, vide. Quod opus(t)5 fiat.

Sic dicta vestis(pi)ca,<sup>6</sup> quae vestem spiceret, id est videret vestem ac tueretur. Quare a tuendo et templa et tesca dicta cum discrimine eo quod dixi.

13. Etiam indidem illud Ennii1:

Extemplo acceptam² me necato³ et filiam.⁴ Extemplo enim est continuo, quod omne te⟨m⟩plum esse debet conti⟨nu⟩o septum nec plus unum introitum habere.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Ann. 463 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 172-173 Warmington.
<sup>c</sup> Aeditumus is original, with the second part of uncertain origin.
<sup>d</sup> Varro compares the two meanings of tueri with the two meanings of videre, 'to see' and 'to see after, care for.'
<sup>e</sup> Men. 352.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 12-13

And b:

Who will now wish, though father or kinsman, to look on your faces?

The other meaning is of 'caring for' and tutela' guardianship,' as when we say "I wish he were willing tueri' to care for' the farmhouse," from which some indeed say that the man who attends to consecrated buildings is an aedituus and not an aeditumus '; but still this other form itself proceeded from the same source, because when we want some one to take care of the house we say "You will see to d matters at home," as Plautus does when he says ':

Inside prepare, take pains, see to 't; Let that be done, that's needed.

In this way the vestispica 'wardrobe maid' was named, who was spicere 'to see' the vestis 'clothing,' that is, was to see to the clothing and tueri 'guard' it. Therefore, both temples and tesca 'wastes' were named from tueri, with that difference of meaning which I have mentioned.

13. Moreover, from the same source comes the word in Ennius a:

Extemplo take me, kill me, kill my daughter too.

For extemplo b on the spot is continuo without interval, because every templum ought to be fenced in uninterruptedly and have not more than one entrance.

§ 13. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 355 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 380-381 Warmington; perhaps spoken by the captive Hecuba, who gave her name to a tragedy by Ennius. <sup>b</sup> Templum denotes a limited portion of time as well as of space; in extemplo the application is to time.

14. Quod est apud Accium:

Pervade polum, splendida mundi Sidera, bigis, (bis)¹ continui(s) Se(x ex)picti signis,² polus Graecum, id significat circum caeli : quare quod est pervade polum valet³ vade  $\pi\epsilon\rho$ ì  $\pi\delta\lambda\nu\nu$ . Signa dicuntur eadem et sidera. Signa quod aliquid significent, ut libra aequinoctium ; sidera, quae  $\langle qua \rangle$ si⁴ insidunt atque ita significant aliquid in terris perurendo ali $ave^5$  qua re : ut signum candens in pecore.

15. Quod est:

Terrarum anfracta revisam.1

anfractum est flexum, ab origine duplici dictum, ab ambitu et frangendo: ab eo leges iubent in directo pedum VIII esse (viam),² in anfracto XVI, id est in flexu.

16. Ennius:

Ut tibi

Titanis Trivia dederit stirpem liberum.

Titanis Trivia Diana est, ab eo dicta Trivia, quod in $\S$  14. \(^1\) Added by Kent; cf. GS., note. \(^2\) Continui se cepit spoliis F; continuis sex apti signis Scaliger; picti Ribbeck, exceptis Fay, expicti Kent. \(^3\) Victorius, for valde. \(^4\) quae quasi GS.; quod quasi L. Sp.; for quae si. \(^5A. Sp., for aliudue.

§ 15. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for anfractare visum. <sup>2</sup> Added by GS; following Sciop., who added viam after inbent.

<sup>§ 14.</sup> a Trag. Rom. Frag. 678-680 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 572-573 Warmington; anapaestic. The passage is apparently addressed to Phaethon, but possibly to the Sun-God or to the Moon-God. The twelve signs of the zodiac are conceived as taken by the Universe and worn by it as a girdle. b Properly 'white-hot'; the Roman poets often speak of 989.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 14-16

14. As for what is in Accius, a

With thy team do thou go through the sky, through the bright

Constellations aloft, which the universe holds, Adorned with its twice six continuous signs, the word polus 'sky' is Greek, it means the circle of the sky: therefore the expression pervade polum 'traverse the sky' means 'go around the  $\pi \delta \lambda os$ .' Signa 'signs of the zodiac' means the same as sidera 'constellations.' Signa are so called because they significant' indicate' something, as the Balance marks the equinox; those are sidera which so to speak insidunt' settle down' and thus indicate something on earth by burning or otherwise: as for example a signum candens 'scorching sign,' b in the matter of the flocks.

15. In the phrase

Again of the land I shall see the anfracta,ª anfractum means 'bent or curved,' being formed from a double source, from ambitus 'circuit' and frangere' to break.' Concerning this the laws b bid that a road shall be eight feet wide where it is straight, and sixteen at an anfractum, that is, at a curve.

16. Ennius says a:

As surely as to thee Titan's daughter Trivia shall grant a line of sons.

The Trivian Titaness is Diana, called Trivia from the the flocks as being burned by the heat of Canicula 'the Dog-star,' which is visible while the sun is in the sign of Leo. § 15. Accius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 336 Ribbeck'; R.O.L. ii. 440-441 Warmington. Cf. XII Tabulae, page 138 Schoell.

§ 16. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 362 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 260-261 Warmington.

283

trivio ponitur fere in oppidis Graecis, vel quod luna dicitur esse, quae in caelo tribus viis movetur, in altitudinem et latitudinem et longitudinem. Titanis dicta, quod eam genuit, ut  $ai\langle t \rangle^1$  Plautus, Lato; ea, ut scribit Manilius, Est Coe(o) creata<sup>2</sup> Titano.

Ut idem scribit:

Latona pari\('\epsilon'\) casta complexu Iovis Deliad\('a\s^4\) geminos, id est Apollinem et Dianam. Dii, quod Titanis (Deli eos peperit), Deliadae.

17. Eidem¹:

O sancte Apollo, qui umbilicum certum terrarum optines.

Umbilicum dictum aiunt ab umbilico nostro, quod is medius locus sit terrarum, ut umbilicus in nobis; quod utrumque est falsum: neque hic locus est terrarum medius neque noster umbilicus est hominis medius. Itaque pingitur qu $ae^2$  vocatur  $\langle \dot{\alpha} \nu \tau \rangle i \chi \theta \omega v^3$   $\Pi v \theta a \gamma \acute{\rho} \rho a$ , ut media caeli ac terrae linea ducatur infra

 $\S$  16. <sup>1</sup> Kent, after L. Sp., for ni. <sup>2</sup> Mue., for coccreata. <sup>3</sup> Neue, for parit. <sup>4</sup> Lachmann, for delia dõs. <sup>5</sup> Added by L. Sp.

§ 17. A. Sp. (nom. sing. masc.), for eadem. 2 Mue.,

for qui. 3 G. Hermann, for IXTON.

§ 17. a Trag. Rom. Frag. inc. inc. 19-20 Ribbeck3;

284

&lt;sup>b</sup> This first etymology is better; it should be referred to images set up in Italian towns, not in Greek towns. <sup>c</sup> Lato, from which the Romans made Latona (cf. Plautus, Bac. 893), is the Greek form in Doric and in all other dialects except Attic-Ionic. <sup>d</sup> Frag. Poet. Lat., page 52 Morel. <sup>e</sup> Deliadae is a word not found elsewhere; but it seems difficult not to admit it in this passage.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 16-17

fact that her image is set up quite generally in Greek towns where three roads meet,<sup>b</sup> or else because she is said to be the Moon, which moves in the sky by tres viae 'three ways,' upwards, sidewise, and onwards. She is called Titanis 'daughter of Titan,' because her mother was, as Plautus says, Lato <sup>c</sup>; and she, as Manilius writes,<sup>d</sup>

Was begot by the Titan Coeus.

As the same author writes,d

The chaste Latona shall give birth, by Joye's embrace, To Deliad twins, that is, to Apollo and Diana. These gods were called Deliads because the Titaness gave birth to them on the island of Delos.

17. The same has this a:

O holy Apollo, who dost hold The true established umbilicus of the lands.

The umbilicus, they say, b was so called from our umbilicus 'navel,' because this is the middle place of the lands, as the navel in us. But both these are false statements: this place is not the middle of the lands, nor is the navel the middle point of a man. But in this fashion is indicated the so-called 'counter-earth of Pythagoras,' c so that the line which is midway in sky and earth should be drawn below the navel

R.O.L. ii. 602-603 Warmington, who doubtfully attributes it to Ennius, since Cicero, de Divin. ii. 56. 115, citing this passage more fully, had last quoted from Ennius; preceded by eidem (nom. sing. masc.), it belongs to Manilius. Pythagoras taught that around the fire in the centre of the universe there swung the earth and a counter-earth, each forming part of a sphere, and balancing each other.

umbilicum per id quo discernitur homo mas an femina sit, ubi ortus humanus similis ut in mundo4: ibi5 enim omnia nascuntur in medio, quod terra mundi media. Praeterea si quod medium id est umbilicus pila(e)6 terrae, non Delphi medium; et terrae medium—non<sup>7</sup> hoc, sed quod vocant—Delphis<sup>7</sup> in aede ad latus est quiddam ut thesauri specie, quod Graeci vocant ὁμφαλόν, quem Pythonos aiunt esse tumulum<sup>9</sup>; ab eo nostri interpretes ομφαλόν umbilicum dixerunt.

18. Pacuius:

Calydonia altrix terra ex(s)uperantum virum.

Ut ager Tusculanus, sic Calydonius ager est, non terra; sed lege poetica, quod terra Aetolia in qua Calydon, a parte1 totam accipi Aetoliam voluit.

19. Acci :

Mystica ad dextram vada Praetervecti.

Mystica a mysteriis, quae ibi in propinquis locis nobilia fiunt.

<sup>4</sup> A dittography in F, written ubi ortus humanus situlis ut in mundo, is here excised. <sup>5</sup> Aug., for ubi. <sup>6</sup> ut pilae Mue., for ut pila F (but ut was deleted by  $F^1$ ). <sup>7</sup> The dashes were inserted by Stroux. <sup>8</sup> Aldus, for OM $\Phi$ a $\Lambda$ VN. § 18. 1 For aperte.

d Nonius, 333. 35 M., quotes Varro as using the expression terra pila (or terrae). The "treasure-houses" at Delphi were small buildings in which the valuable dedicatory gifts were kept; a number of cities had special treasure-houses of their own. Slain here by Apollo after the flood of Deucalion and Pyrrha.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 17-19

through that by which the distinction is made whether a human being is male or female, where human life starts—and the like is true in the case of the universe: for there all things originate in the centre, because the earth is the centre of the universe. Besides, if the ball of the earth  $^a$  has any centre, or umbilicus, it is not Delphi that is the centre; and the centre of the earth at Delphi—not really the centre, but so called—is something in a temple building at one side, something that looks like a treasure-house,  $^e$  which the Greeks call the  $^i \mu \phi a \lambda \delta s$ , which they say is the tomb of the Python. From this our interpreters turned the word into umbilicus 'navel.'

18. Pacuvius has this verse a:

Calydonian terra, nurse of mighty men.

But just as Tusculum has an ager 'field-land,' so Calydon has an ager and not a terra 'land' 'b'; but by the privilege of the poets, because Aetolia in which Calydon is located is a terra, he wished all Aetolia to be understood from the name of the part.

19. In this of Accius,<sup>a</sup>

Sailing past the mystic waters b on the right, mystica 'mystic 'is from the famous mysteria 'mysteries,' which are performed there in places close at hand.

§ 18. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 404 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 274-275 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Varro objects to the use of terra with a city-name attached, since terra means the whole state, and cannot belong to a city: a city owns only an ager.

§ 19. * Trag. Rom. Frag. 687-688 Ribbeck*; R.O.L. ii. 568-569 Warmington. * Probably those at Eleusis, where mysteries of Demeter were celebrated; or possibly those near Samothrace, where the Cabiri were worshipped, cf. vii. 34.

Ennii:

Areopagitae quia1 dedere (ae)quam pilam.2 Areopagitae ab Areopago; is locus<sup>3</sup> Athenis.

Musae quae pedibus magnum pulsatis Olympum.

Caelum dicunt Graeci Olympum, montem in Macedonia omnes; a quo potius puto Musas dictas Olympiadas: ita enim ab terrestribus locis aliis cognominatae Libethrides, Pipleides, Thespiades,1 Heliconides.

21.  $Ca\langle s\rangle si^1$ :

Hellespontum et claustra.

(Claustra),2 quod Xerxes3 quondam eum locum clausit: nam, ut Ennius ait, Isque Hellesponto pontem contendit in alto.

Nisi potius ab eo quod Asia et Europa ibi con(c)ludit(ur)4 mare; inter angustias facit Propontidis fauces.

 $\S$  19.  $^1$  Ribbeck, for quid.  $^2$  Ribbeck; aequam pugnam Mue.; aequom palam Bothe; for quam pudam.  $^3$  Laetus, for his locis.

§ 20. 1 For piple ide (=id est) espiades, with h above the e of esp. 21. Mue.; Cassius Sciop.; for quasi. Added by <sup>3</sup> Bentinus, for exerses. <sup>4</sup> A. Sp.; concludit Laetus; for colludit.

&lt;sup>e</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 349 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 272-273 d At the trial of Orestes for the murder Warmington. of his mother.

<sup>§ 20. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 1 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 2-3 Warmington; opening the poem. b As home of the gods. c That is, not merely the Greeks. d Pipleides or Pim-288

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 19-21

In the verse of Ennius,c

Since the Areopagites have cast an equal vote,d

Areopagitae ' Areopagites ' is from Areopagus ; this is a place at Athens.

20. Muses, ye who with dancing feet beat mighty Olympus.<sup>a</sup>

Olympus is the name which the Greeks give to the sky, b and all peoples c give to a mountain in Macedonia; it is from the latter, I am inclined to think, that the Muses are spoken of as the Olympiads: for they are called in the same way from other places on earth the Libethrids, the Pipleids, the Thespiads, the Heliconids. c

21. In this phrase of Cassius,a

The Hellespont and its barriers, claustra 'barriers' is used because once on a time Xerxes clausit' closed' the place by barriers b: for, as Ennius says,c

He, and none other, on Hellespont deep did fasten a bridgeway.

Unless it is said rather from the fact that at this place the sea concluditur 'is hemmed in' by Asia and Europe; in the narrows it forms the entrance to the Propontis.

pleides. Respectively from Libethra, a fountain sacred to the Muses, near Libethrum and Magnesia, in Macedonia; Pimpla, a place and fountain in Pieria, in Macedonia; Thespiae, a town of Boeotia at the foot of Helicon; and Helicon, a mountain-range in Boeotia.

§ 21. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. inc. inc. 106 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; with the text as here emended, it belongs to Cassius. <sup>b</sup> Cf. Herodotus, vii. 33-36. <sup>c</sup> Ann. 378 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i.

136-137 Warmington.

22. Pacui:

Li\(\n\)qui\(^1\) in Aegeo fretu.2

Dictum fretum ab similitudine ferventis aquae, quod in fretum saepe concurrat aestus atque effervescat. Aegeum dictum ab insulis, quod in eo mari scopuli in pelago vocantur ab similitudine caprarum aeges.

23. Ferme aderant aequore in alto ratibus repentibus.

Mare appellatum  $\langle \text{aequor} \rangle$ , quod a $\langle \text{e} \rangle$ quatum² cum commotum vento non est. Ratis navis  $\text{longa} \langle \text{s} \rangle^3$  dixit, ut Naevius cum ait:

⟨Ut⟩⁴ conferre queant⁵ ratem aeratam qui Per liquidum⁶ mare sudantes eunt atque sedentes.<sup>7</sup>

Ratis dicta navis longa propter remos, quod hi, cum per aquam sublati sunt dextra et sinistra, duas rates<sup>8</sup> efficere videntur: ratis enim, unde hoc tralatum, illi ubi plures mali aut asseres (iuncti aqua ducuntur. Hine naviculae cum remis ratariae dicuntur).<sup>9</sup>

§ 22. ¹ Kent, for liqui. ² A. Sp., for fretum. § 23. ¹ Added here by A. Sp.; added before mare by Laetus. ² Loetus, for aquatum. ³ Mue., for longa. ⁴ Added by Kent. ⁵ Turnebus, for conferreque aut. ⁶ Scaliger, for perit quidum. ¬ Scaliger, for sedantes. ⁶ Mue., for partes. ⁰ Added by Mue., after Serv. Dan. in Aen. i. 43 and Gellius, x. 25. 5.

§ 23. Given as Trag. Rom. Frag. inc. inc. 225 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>;

290

<sup>§ 22. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 420 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 306-307 Warmington; perhaps spoken by Ariadne, deserted by Theseus on the island of Naxos. <sup>b</sup> Incorrect etymology. <sup>c</sup> Like goats on a plain: a very dubious etymology, or worse. <sup>d</sup> That is, Greek alves 'goats.'

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 22-23

22. In the verse of Pacuvius, a

To be forsaken in the Aegean strait, fretum 'strait' is named from the likeness to fervens 'boiling' water, because the tide often dashes into a strait and boils up. The Aegean is named from the islands, because in this sea the craggy islands in the open water are called aeges' goats, c from their likeness to she-goats.

23. They had almost arrived; on the aequor deep the rates were gliding.

Aequor 'level water' is a name given to the sea, because it is aequatum 'levelled' when it is not stirred up by the wind. b By ratis 'raft' he meant a war-ship, as does Naevius when he says c:

That they may clash 'gainst the foe
Their bronze-shod raft, in which
They go o'er the liquid sea,
Sweating as they sit.<sup>d</sup>

A war-ship is called a ratis from the oars, because these, when they are raised through the water on the right and on the left, seem to form two rafts *; for it is a ratis—from which this word is transferred—there where several poles or beams are joined together and floated on the water. From this, the adjective ratarius is applied to small boats with oars.

but more probably a dactylic hexameter of Ennius, R.O.L. i. 458-459 Warmington:

Ferme aderant ratibus repentibus aequore in alto, quoted by Varro with wrong order of the words, as is shown by his explanation of aequor before he takes up ratis (cf. Vahlen, Ennius², p. xxxvii.). b Correct etymology. Frag. Poet. Rom., p. 48 Baehrens; R.O.L. ii. 68-69 Warmington; Saturnian, but text very dubious. d The seated rowers. The same word ratis means ship and raft, whether or not this explanation is correct.

HIC DEEST IN EXEMPLARI FOLIUM I10

III. 24. . . . (hostias) agrestis ab agro dictas apparet; inful(at)as hostias,2 quod velamenta his e lana quae adduntur, infulae: itaque tum, quod ad sepulcrum<sup>3</sup> ferunt frondem ac flores, addidit:

Non lana4 sed velatas frondenti coma.5

Cornu(t)a taurum umbra (in pugna)m laci(t).1 25.

Dicere apparet cornutam a cornibus; cornua a curvore dicta, quod pleraque curva.

Musas1 quas memorant nosce(s)2 nos esse 26. (Camenas).2

Ca(s)menarum<sup>3</sup> priscum vocabulum ita natum ac scriptum est alibi; Carmenae ad eadem origine sunt declinatae. In multis verbis in quo4 antiqui dicebant S, postea dicunt R, ut in Carmine Saliorum sunt haec:

<sup>10</sup> This statement is in the margin of F, opposite a blank space which amounts to one and one half pages.

§ 24. ¹ Added by L. Sp. and by Bergk. ² Mue., for infulas hostiis.
⁵ For sepulchrum. ⁴ L. Sp. and Ribbeck, for lanas.
⁵ L. Sp. and Ribbeck, for frondentis comas.

§ 25. ¹ GS. (cornutam umbram L. Sp.; cornutarum umbram Victorius; iacit Scaliger), for cornua taurum umbram iaci.

§ 26. <sup>1</sup> Scaliger, for curvamus ac (which includes the last ord of § 25). <sup>2</sup> Additions by Jordan. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for word of § 25). <sup>2</sup> Adautons of 4 Later codd., for quod F.

<sup>§ 24. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. inc. inc. 220-221 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. § 25. a Trag. Rom. Frag. inc. inc. 222 Ribbeck3.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Cornu and curvus are not connected etymologically. § 26. <sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 2 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>. <sup>b</sup> Perhaps of Etruscan origin; at any rate, not connected with canere 'to sing.' A spelling caused by association with carmen and Car-292

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 23-26

HERE ONE LEAF IS LACKING IN THE MODEL COPY

III. 24. . . . it is clear that agresses 'rural' sacrificial victims were so called from ager 'field-land'; that infulatae' filleted' victims were so called, because the head-adornments of wool which are put on them, are infulae' fillets': therefore then, with reference to the carrying of leafy branches and flowers to the burial-place, he added a:

Decked not with wool, but with a hair-like shock of leaves.

25. The horned shadow lures the bull to fight.

It is clear that cornuta 'horned' is said from cornua 'horns'; cornua is said from curvor 'curvature,' because most horns are curva 'curved.' <sup>b</sup>

26. Learn that we, the Camenae, are those whom they tell of as Muses.<sup>a</sup>

Casmenae b is the early form of the name, when it originated, and it is so written in other places; the name Carmenae c is derived from the same origin. In many words, at the point where the ancients said S, the later pronunciation is R,d as the following in the Hymn of the Salians c:

menta; though no etymological connexion with them exists. The well-known phenomenon of rhotacism, the change of intervocalic S to R. Fragg. 2-3, pp. 332-335 Maurenbrecher; page 1 Morel. It is hazardous in the extreme to attempt to restore and interpret the text of the Hymn. These sentences seem to invoke Mars not as God of War, but in his old Italic capacity of God of Agriculture, spoken of in several functions. It was the view of L. Spengel, approved by A. Spengel, that this verbatim text of the Hymn was an interpolation, and that foedesum foederum of § 27 immediately followed in Carmine Saliorum sunt haec.

Cozevi oborieso. Omnia vero ad Patule(ium) commisse(i).

laneus iam es, duonus Cerus es, du(o)nus Ianus.

Ven(i)es po(tissimu)m melios eum recum . . . 5

HIC SPATIUM X LINEARUM RELICTUM ERAT IN EXEMPLARI<sup>6</sup>

27. . . . fooedesum foederum, plusima plurima, meliosem meliorem, asenam arenam, ianitos ianitor. Quare e² Casmena Carmena, (e)³ Carmena R extrito Camena factum. Ab eadem voce canite, pro quo in Saliari versu scriptum est cante, hoc versu:

Divum em pa<sup>5</sup> cante, divum deo supplicate.<sup>6</sup>

28. In Carmine Priami¹ quod est:

Veteres Casmenas cascam rem volo profarier,2

<sup>5</sup> F has: Cozeulodori eso. Omnia uero adpatula coemisse, ian cusianes duonus ceruses. dunus ianusue uet pom melios eum recum. This is here emended as follows: Cozevi Havet; oborieso Kent; Patulcium Kent, after Bergk; commissei Kent; Ianeus GS., cf. Festus, 103. 11 M.; iam es Kent; duonus Cerus es, duonus Ianus Bergk; ueniet V, venies Kent; potissimum, cf. Festus, 205 a 11 M. <sup>6</sup> At this point, the remainder of the line and the next four lines are vacant in F, with traces of writing in the last empty line, which must have given the data for this statement, found in H and a.

§ 27.  $^1$  For faederum.  $^2$  A. Sp.; ex Ursinus; for  $\overline{e}$  (=est).  $^3$  Added by A. Sp.  $^4$  A. Sp., for carmina carmen.  $^5$  Bergk, for empta.  $^6$  Grotefend, for supplicante.

§ 28. <sup>1</sup> At this point, the rest of the page (three and one-third lines) remains vacant in F, but there is no gap in the text. <sup>2</sup> Scaliger, for profariet.

f Cozevi, voc. of Consivius (epithet of Janus, in Macrobius, Sat. i. 9. 15), with NS developing to NTS as in Umbrian, the N not written before the consonants (cf. Latin cosol for consul), and z having the value of ts, as in the Umbrian 204

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 26-28

O Planter God, arise. Everything indeed have I committed unto (thee as) the Opener. Now art thou the Doorkeeper, thou art the Good Creator, the Good God of Beginnings. Thou'lt come especially, thou the superior of these kings . . .

HERE A SPACE OF TEN LINES WAS LEFT VACANT IN THE MODEL COPY  $^i$

27. . . . (In the Hymn of the Salians are found such old forms as) foedesum for foederum of treaties, plusima for plurima most, meliosem for meliorem better, asenam for arenam sand, ianitos for ianitor a doorkeeper. Therefore from Casmena came Carmena, and from Carmena, with loss of the R, came Camena. From the same radical came canite sing ye, for which in a Salian verse is written cante, and this is the verse:

Sing ye to the Father <sup>d</sup> of the Gods, entreat the God of Gods. <sup>e</sup>

28. In The Song of Priam there is the following a:
I wish the ancient Muses to tell a story old.

alphabet. <sup>9</sup> Epithet of Janus, in Macrobius, Sat. i. 9. 15. <sup>h</sup> The god is addressed as more powerful than all earthly lords, whether kings or (perhaps) priests. The gen. plural eum, equal to eorum. is elsewhere attested. <sup>4</sup> The vacant lines in the model copy may have represented more of the text of the Hymn, too illegible to copy.

§ 27. <sup>a</sup> Fragg. 4, 7, 20, 26, 27, pages 335, 339, 347, 349 Maurenbrecher. Ianitos is an incorrect form, since the word had an original R; but all the other words have R from earlier S. <sup>b</sup> Cf. § 26, note b. <sup>c</sup> Frag. 1, page 331 Maurenbrecher; page 1 Morel. <sup>d</sup> Here em pa stands for in patrem; so Th. Bergk, Zts. f. Allertumswiss. xiv. 138 = Kleine Philol. Schriften, i. 505, relying on Festus, 205 a 11 M., pa pro parte (read patre) et po pro potissimum positum est in Saliari Carmine. <sup>e</sup> Equal to 'father of the gods.'

§ 28. a Frag. Poet. Lat., page 29 Morel.

primum cascum significat vetus; secundo eius origo Sabina, quae usque radices in Oscam linguam egit. Cascum vetus esse significat Ennius quod ait:

Quam Prisci casci populi tenuere3 Latini.

Eo magis Manilius quod ait:

Cascum duxisse cascam non mirabile est, Quoniam cariosas<sup>4</sup> conficiebat nuptias.

Item ostendit Papini epigrammation, quod in adolescentem fecerat Cascam:

Ridiculum est, cum te Cascam tua dicit amica,<sup>5</sup> Fili(a)<sup>6</sup> Potoni, sesquisenex<sup>7</sup> puerum. Dic tu illam<sup>8</sup> pusam: sie fiet "mutua<sup>9</sup> muli": Nam vere pusus tu, tua amica senex.

29. Idem ostendit quod oppidum vocatur Casinum (hoc enim ab Sabinis orti Samnites tenuerunt) et¹ nostri etiam nunc Forum Vetus appellant. Item significat² in Atellanis aliquot Pappum, senem quod Osci³ casnar appellant.

 $^3$  Columna, for genuere.  $^4$  L. Sp. and Lachmann, for carioras.  $^5$  Laetus, B, for amici.  $^6$  Popma, for fili.  $^7$  Turnebus, for potonis es qui senex.  $^8$  Turnebus, for dicit pusum puellam.  $^9$  Pantagathus, for mutuam.  $^8$  29.  $^1$  L. Sp. deleted nunc after et.  $^2$  For significant.  $^3$  For ostii.

&lt;sup>b</sup> The native Latin word was cānus 'grey-haired,' from casnos, with the same root as in cascus, but a different suffix. <sup>c</sup> Sabine was not a dialect of Oscan, but stood on an equal footing with it. <sup>d</sup> Ann. 24 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 12-13 Warmington. <sup>e</sup> Frag. Poet. Lat., page 52 Morel. <sup>f</sup> Frag. Poet. Lat., page 52 Morel; the poet's name is doubtful: Priscian, ii. 90. 2 K., calls him Pomponius, and Bergk, Opusc. i. 88, proposes Pompilius. <sup>e</sup> Casca was a male cognomen in the Servilian gens only; for this reason Potonius is rather to be taken as a jesting family name of the amica. <sup>h</sup> Pusum puellam (see crit. note) was origin-296

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 28-29

First, cascum means 'old'; secondly, it has its origin from the Sabine language, b which ran its roots back into Oscan. That cascum is 'old,' is indicated by the phrase of Ennius d:

Land that the Early Latins then held, the long-ago peoples.

It is even better shown in Manilius's utterance e:

That Whitehead married Oldie is surely no surprise: The marriage, when he made it, was aged and decayed.

It is shown likewise in the epigram of Papinius, $^f$  which he made with reference to the youth Casca:

Funny it is, when your mistress tenderly calls you her "Casca" g;

Daughter of Rummy she, old and a half—you a boy. Call her your "laddie" h; for thus there will be the mule's trade of favours i:

You're but a lad, to be sure; Oldie's the name for your girl.

29. The same is shown by the fact that there is a town named Casinum,<sup>a</sup> which was inhabited by the Samnites, who originated from the Sabines,<sup>b</sup> and we Romans even now call it Old Market. Likewise in several Atellan farces <sup>c</sup> the word denotes Pappus, an old man's character, because the Oscans call an old man casnar.

ally a marginal gloss to pusam, since pusus had no normal feminine form; cf. French la garçonne. But the gloss crept into the text.

i Proverbial phrase, equal to 'tit for tat,' or 'an eye for an eye.'

§ 29. <sup>a</sup> A town of southeastern Latium, on the borders of Samnium. <sup>b</sup> The Samnites and the Sabines were separate peoples, but their names are etymologically related, and so presumably were the two peoples. <sup>c</sup> Com. Rom. Frag. inc. nom. vii. p. 334 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; these farces were named from Atella, an Oscan town in Campania a few miles north of Naples.

297

30. Apud Lucilium:

Quid tibi ego ambages Ambiv(i)1 scribere coner?

Profectum a verbo ambe, quod inest in ambitu et ambitioso.

31. Apud Valerium Soranum:

Vetus adagio est, O Publi¹ Scipio, quod verbum usque eo evanuit, ut Graecum pro eo positum magis sit apertum: nam id(em) est2 quod παροιμίαν vocant Graeci, ut est:

> Auribus lupum teneo: Canis caninam non est.

Adagio est littera commutata a(m)bagio,3 dicta ab eo quod ambit orationem, neque in aliqua una re consistit sola. (Amb)agio4 dicta ut a(m)bustum,5 quo(d)6 circum ustum est, ut ambegna7 bos apud augures, quam circum aliae hostiae constituuntur.

32. Cum tria sint conjuncta in origine verborum quae sint animadvertenda, a quo sit impositum et in quo et quid, saepe non minus de tertio quam de primo dubitatur, ut in hoc, utrum primum una canis

§ 30. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for ambiu. § 31. <sup>1</sup> Abbreviated to P in F. <sup>2</sup> idem est Mue.; idem early edd., with later codd.; for id est F. 3 Turnebus, for abagio. 4 L. Sp.; adagio Laetus; for agio. 5 Aug., for adustum. 6 Laetus, M, for quo. 7 Turnebus, with Festus, 4. 16 M., for ambiegna.

<sup>a</sup> A little-known writer of the second century B.C.; Frag. Poet, Lat., page 40 Morel. b Adagio, gen. -onis; not 298

<sup>§ 30.</sup> a 1281 Marx. b If the text is correctly restored, this is L. Ambivius Turpio, famous stage director and actor of Caecilius Statius and of Terence; Lucilius puns on his name. <sup>c</sup> Equal to Greek ἀμφί, and found in Latin only as a prefix.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 30-32

30. In Lucilius a:

Why should I try to tell to you Roundway's b round-about speeches?

The word ambages 'circumlocutions' comes from the word ambe 'round about,' which is present in ambitus' circuit' and in ambitiosus' going around (for votes), ambitious.'

31. In Valerius of Sora a is the following:

It is an old adagio, Publius Scipio.

This word has gone out of use to such a point that the Greek word put for it is more easily understood: for it is the same as that which the Greeks call  $\pi a \rho o \iota \mu \iota a$  'proverb,' as for example:

I'm holding a wolf by the ears, c Dog doesn't eat dog-flesh.

Now adagio d is only ambagio with a letter changed, which is said because it ambit goes around the discourse and does not stop at some one thing only. Ambagio resembles ambustum, which is burnt around, and an ambegna cow f in the augural speech, which is a cow around which other victims are arranged.

32. Whereas there are three things combined which must be observed in the origin of words, namely from what the word is applied, and to what, and what it is, often there is doubt about the third no less than about the first, as in this case, whether the word for dog in the singular was at first canis or canes:

the more usual adagium. <sup>c</sup> Terence, Phor. 506, etc. <sup>d</sup> Really from ad 'thereto' and the root of aio 'I say.' <sup>c</sup> That is, it applies also to other things than that which it specifically mentions. <sup>f</sup> 'Having a lamb (agna) on each side.' <sup>g</sup> Page 17 Regell.

aut canes  $\operatorname{si} t^1$  appellata : dicta enim apud veteres una canes. Itaque Ennius scribit :

Tantidem quasi feta<sup>2</sup> canes sine dentibus latrat.

Lucilius:

Nequam et magnus homo, laniorum immanis³ canes ut.

Impositio unius debuit esse canis, plurium canes; sed neque Ennius consuetudinem illam sequens reprehendendus, nec is qui nunc dicit:

Canis canina(m)4 non est.

Sed canes quod latratu<sup>5</sup> signum dant, ut signa canunt, canes appellatae, et quod ea voce indicant noctu quae latent, latratus appellatus.

33. Sic dictum a quibusdam ut una canes, una trabes:

 $\langle \text{Trabes} \rangle^1$  remis rostrata per altum.

Ennius:

Utinam ne in nemore Pelio² securibus Caesa accidisset abiegna ad terram trabes, cuius verbi singularis casus  ${

m rect} us^3$  correptus $^4$  ac facta trabs.

§ 32. <sup>1</sup> For sic. <sup>2</sup> For faeta. <sup>3</sup> Aug., with B, for immanes. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for canina. <sup>5</sup> M, V, p, Laetus, for latratus. <sup>8</sup> 33. <sup>1</sup> Added by Columna. <sup>2</sup> For polio. <sup>3</sup> Sciop.,

for recte. 4 Lactus, for correctus.

<sup>§ 32. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Ann. 528 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 432-433 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Her bark is worse than her bite, as a pregnant bitch was proverbially harmless; cf. Plautus, Most. 852, Tam placidast (illa canis) quam feta quaevis. <sup>c</sup> 1221 300 for in the older writers the expression is one canes. Therefore Ennius writes the following, using canes a:

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 32-33

Barks just as loud as a pregnant bitch: but she's toothless b

Lucilius also uses canes c:

Worthless man and huge, like the monstrous dog of the butchers.

When applied to one, the word should have been canis, and when applied to several it should have been canes; but Ennius ought not to be blamed for following the earlier custom, nor should he who now says:

Canis ' dog ' doesn't eat dog-flesh.

But because dogs by their barking give the signal, as it were, canunt 'sound' the signals, they are called canes; and because by this noise they make known the things which latent 'are hidden 'in the night, their barking is called latratus.d

33. As some have said canes in the singular, so others have said trabes 'beam, ship' in the singular:

The beaked trabes is driven by oars through the waters.a

Ennius used trabes in the following b:

I would the trabes of the fir-tree ne'er had fall'n To earth, in Pelion's forest, by the axes cut!

But now the nominative singular of this word has lost a vowel and become trabs.

Marx. d Canis is not etymologically connected with canere, nor latratus with latere. § 33. <sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 616 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 458-459 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Medea Exul, Trag. Rom. Frag. 205-206 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 312-313 Warmington; that is, " would that the ship Argo had never been built."

301

34. In Medo:

Caelitum camilla, expectata advenis: salve, hospita.

Camilla(m)<sup>1</sup> qui glos(s)emata interpretati dixerunt administram; addi oportet, in his quae occultiora: itaque dicitur nuptiis camillus2 qui cumerum3 fert, in quo quid sit, in ministerio plerique extrinsecus ne(s)ciunt.4 Hinc Casmilus nominatur Samothrece(s) mysteri(i)s dius quidam amminister diis magnis. Verbum esse Graecum arbitror, quod apud Callimachum in poematibus eius inveni.

35. Apud  $En\langle n\rangle i\langle u\rangle m^1$ :

Subulo quondam marinas propter astabat plagas.2 Subulo dictus, quod ita dicunt tibicines Tusci: quocirca radices eius in Etr(ur)ia, non Latio quaerundae.3

Versibus quo(s)1 olim Fauni2 vatesque canebant. 36.

Fauni dei Latinorum, ita ut et Faunus et Fauna sit; hos versibus quos vocant Saturnios in silvestribus locis traditum est solitos fari (futura,3 a)4 quo fando

§ 35. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for enim. <sup>2</sup> Mue., from Fest. 309 a 5 M., for aquas. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for querunda e. § 36. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for quo. <sup>2</sup> Laetus deleted et after Fauni, following Cicero, Div. i. 50. 114, Brut. 18. 71, Orator, 51. 171. <sup>3</sup> Added by Mue., from Serv. Dan. in Georg. i. 11. <sup>4</sup> Added by Aug.

<sup>§ 34. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Mue., for camilla. <sup>2</sup> Turnebus, for scamillus. <sup>3</sup> Turnebus, for quicum merum. <sup>4</sup> Turnebus, for nectunc. <sup>5</sup> For casmillus.

 $\S$  34. <sup>a</sup> Pacuvius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 232 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 256-257 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Page 112 Funaioli. <sup>c</sup> Probably certain belongings of the bride. <sup>d</sup> Identified with Hermes, the messenger of the gods, according to Macrobius, Sat. iii. 8. 6. More probably Etruscan than Greek: there were Etruscans on Lemnos, not far from Samothrace, which may explain the use of the similar word 302

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 34-36

34. In the Medus a:

Long awaited, camilla of the gods, thou comest; guest, all hail!

A camilla, according to those who have interpreted b difficult words, is a handmaid assistant; one ought to add, in matters of a more secret nature: therefore at a marriage he is called a camillus who carries the box the contents of which c are unknown to most of the uninitiated persons who perform the service. From this, the name Casmilus is given, in the Samothracian mysteries, to a certain divine personage who attends upon the Great Gods. The word, I think, is Greek, because I have found it in the poems of Callimachus.

35. In Ennius there is the verse a:

Once a subulo was standing by the stretches of the sea.

Subulo is said, because that is the name which the Etruscans give to pipers; therefore the roots of the word are to be sought in Etruria, not in Latium.

36. With those verses which once the Fauns used to sing, and the poets.<sup>a</sup>

Fauni 'Fauns' are divinities of the Latins, of both sexes, so that there are both Faunus and Faunus; the story has come down that they, in the so-called Saturnian verses, were accustomed in well-wooded spots fari 'to speak' those events that were to come, from which speaking they were called Fauni. As for in the mysteries celebrated there. 'Frag. 409 Schneider; Callimachus had occasion to mention the Samothracian rites. § 35. * Sat. 65 Vahlen*; R.O.L. i. 388-389 Warmington; perhaps referring to the story in Herodotus, i. 141.

§ 36. <sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 214 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 82-83 Warmington; 'sing' in the sense of 'prophesy.' <sup>b</sup> Wrong etymologies, both for Faunus and for vates.

Faunos dictos. Antiqui<sup>5</sup> poetas vates appellabant a versibus viendis, ut (de)<sup>6</sup> poematis cum scribam ostendam.

37. Corpore Tartarino prognata Paluda virago.

Tartarino dictu\(\pi\mo\) a Tartaro. Plato in IIII de fluminibus apud inferos quae sint in his unum Tartarum appellat: quare Tartari origo Graeca. Paluda a paludamentis. Haec insignia atque ornamenta militaria: ideo ad bellum cum exit imperator ac lictores mutarunt vestem et signa incinuerunt, paludatus dicitur proficisci; quae propter quod conspiciuntur qui ea habent ac fiunt palam, paludamenta dicta.

38. Plautus:

Epeum fumificum, qui legioni nostrae habet Coctum cibum.

Epeum fumificum cocum, ab Epeo illo qui dicitur ad Troiam fecisse Equum Troianum et Argivis cibum curasse.

39. Apud Naevium:

Atque¹ prius pariet lucusta² Lucam bovem.

Luca bos elephans; cur ita sit dicta, duobus modis <sup>6</sup> Canal and L. Sp., for antiquos. <sup>6</sup> Added by L. Sp., cf. vi. 52.

§ 37. Laetus, for dicta.

§ 39. <sup>1</sup> For at quae. <sup>2</sup> For lucustam.

<sup>c</sup> This applies both to words and to music. <sup>d</sup> Page 213 Funaioli.

§ 37. ° Ennius, Ann. 521 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 96-97 Warmington; referring to Discordia, an incarnation of chaos, <sup>b</sup> Phaedo, 112-113; in Thrasyllus' numbering of Plato's dialogues, the Phaedo was the fourth in the first tetralogy. But in Plato's account, Tartarus is not a river of Hades, but the abyss beneath, into which all the rivers of Hades empty. ° Of unknown etymology; not from palam.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 36-39

vates 'poets,' the old writers used to give this name to poets from viere 'to plait' verses, as I shall show when I write about poems.

37. Born of a Tartarine body, the warrior maiden Paluda.<sup>a</sup>

Tartarinum 'Tartarine' is derived from Tartarus. Plato in his Fourth Dialogue, b speaking of the rivers which are in the world of the dead, gives Tartarus as the name of one of them; therefore the origin of Tartarus is Greek. Paluda c is from paludamenta, which are distinguishing garments and adornments in the army; therefore when the general goes forth to war and the lictors have changed their garb and have sounded the signals, he is said to set forth paludatus wearing the paludamentum.' The reason why these garments are called paludamenta is that those who wear them are on account of them conspicuous and are made palam plainly visible.

38. Plautus has this a:

Epeus the maker of smoke, who for our army gets The well-cooked food.

Epeus fumificus ' the smoke-maker ' was a cook, named from that Epeus who is said to have made the Trojan Horse at Troy and to have looked after the food of the Greeks.<sup>b</sup>

39. In Naevius is the verse a:

And sooner will a lobster give birth to a Luca bos.

Luca bos is an elephant; why it is thus called, I have inveni scriptum. Nam et in Cornelii Commentario erat ab Libycis Lucas, et in Vergilii3 ab Lucanis Lucas; ab co quod nostri, cum maximam quadripedem quam ipsi haberent vocarent bovem et in Lucanis Pyrrhi bello primum vidissent apud hostis elephantos, id est4 item quadripedes cornutas (nam quos dentes multi dicunt sunt cornua), Lucanam bovem quod putabant, Lucam bovem appellasse(nt).5

§ 38. * Fab. inc. frag. 1 Ritschl. * Epeus is not elsewhere said to have been a cook, though he is said to have furnished the Atridae with their water supply.

§ 39. a Frag. Poet. Lat., page 28 Morel; R.O.L. ii. 72-73

Warmington.

40. Si ab Libya dictae essent Lucae, fortasse an pantherae quoque et leones non Africae bestiae dicerentur, sed Lucae; neque ursi potius Lucani quam Luci. Quare ego1 arbitror potius Lucas ab luce, quod longe relucebant propter inauratos regios clupeos, quibus eorum tum ornatae erant turres.

41. Apud Ennium:

Orator sine pace redit regique refert rem.

Orator dictus ab oratione: qui enim verba¹ haberet publice adversus eum quo legabatur,2 ab oratione orator dictus; cum res maior erat (act)ioni,3 lege-

Mue., for appellasse.

§ 40. <sup>1</sup> G, H, M, for ergo.

§ 41. <sup>1</sup> Sciop. deleted orationum after verba.

ger, for legebatur. 3 GS. (maior erat Turn.), for maiore ratione.

<sup>4</sup> Aug. deleted non after est. <sup>3</sup> For uirgilius. 5 G. H.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Cf. v. 150. CAn otherwise unknown author, page depth. Funaioli. Varro is wrong; elephants' tusks are leeth. e Apparently correct; Lucanus was in Oscan Lucans, pronounced Lucas by the Romans, to which a feminine form Luca was made.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 39-41

found set forth by the authors in two ways. For in the Commentary of Cornelius b was the statement that Lucas is from Libyci' the Libyans, and in that of Vergilius, that Lucas was from Lucani' the Lucanians': from the fact that our compatriots used to call the largest quadruped that they themselves had, a bos' cow'; and so, when among the Lucanians, in the war with Pyrrhus, they first saw elephants in the ranks of the enemy—that is, horned quadrupeds likewise (for what many call teeth are really horns d), they called the animal a Luca bos, because they thought it a Lucana bos' Lucanian cow.'

40. If the Lucae boves were really named from Libya, quite probably panthers also and lions would be called not African beasts, but Lucae 'Lucan'; and bears are no more Lucanian than Lucan, though they are called Lucanian. Therefore I rather think that Lucas is from lux 'light,' a because the elephants glistened afar on account of the gilded royal shields, with which their towers b at that time were adorned.

41. In Ennius there is this a:

Back without peace comes th' orátor, hands back to his ruler the business.

Orator 'spokesman' is said from oratio 'speech'; for he who was to present a verbal plea before the one to whom b he was sent as envoy, was called an orator, from oratio. When the business was of greater im-

§ 40. <sup>a</sup> See § 39, note e. <sup>b</sup> War-towers on the backs of the elephants, too high to be called merely howdahs.

§ 41. * Ann. 207 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 72-73 Warmington; referring to an embassy to another ruler, making demands the refusal of which will result in a declaration of war, cf. Livy, i. 22. * Quo 'whither' is here used with a rasculine antecedent.

bantur potissimum qui causam commodiss(im)e orare poterant. Itaque Ennius ait :

Oratores doctiloqui.

42. Apud Ennium:

Olli respondit suavis sonus Eg(e)riai.1

Olli valet dictum illi ab olla et ollo, quod alterum comitiis cum recitatur a praecone dicitur olla centuria, non illa; alterum apparet in funeribus indictivis, quo dicitur

Ollus leto2 datus est, quod Graecus dicit  $\lambda \dot{\eta} \theta \eta$ , id est oblivioni.

43. Apud Ennium:

Mensas constituit idemque ancilia (primus.1

Ancilia)<sup>2</sup> dicta ab ambecisu, quod ea arma ab utraque parte ut *Th*racum incisa.

44. Libaque, fictores, Argeos et tutulatos.

Liba, quod libandi causa fiunt. Fictores dicti a fingendis libis. Argei ab Argis; Argei fiunt e scirpeis, simulacra hominum XXVII; ea quotannis de § 42. 1 Victorius, for egria i. 2 For laeto.

§ 43. <sup>1</sup> Added by Scaliger. <sup>2</sup> Added by B, Laetus.

§ 44. 1 Victorius, for incisa saliba quae (which includes the end of § 43).

<sup>c</sup> Ann. 582 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 438-439 Warmington.

§ 43. <sup>a</sup> Ann. 120 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 42-43 Warmington; enumerating the institutions of Numa Pompilius. <sup>b</sup> Of the priests; cf. Livy, i. 20. <sup>c</sup> Cf. vi. 22.

§ 44. <sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 121 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 42-43

<sup>§ 42. *</sup> Ann. 119 Vahlen²; R.O.L. i. 42-43 Warmington; a conversation between Numa Pompilius and his adviser, the nymph Egeria. * Fest. 254 a 34 M. inserts Quiris in this formula after ollus. * Of uncertain etymology, but not from the Greek.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 41-44

port, those were selected for the pleading who could plead the case most skilfully. Therefore Ennius says  $^c$ :

Spokesmen, learnedly speaking.

42. In Ennius is this a:

Olli answered Egeria's voice, speaking softly and sweetly.

Olli 'to him' is the same as illi, dative to feminine olla and to masculine ollus. The one of these is said by the herald when he announces at the elections "Olla 'that' century," and not illa. The other is heard in the case of funerals of which announcement is made, wherein is said

Ollus b 'that man 'has been given to letum c 'death,' which the Greek calls  $\lambda \dot{\eta} \theta \eta$ , that is, oblivion.

43. In Ennius this verse is found <sup>a</sup>:

Banquets b he first did establish, and likewise the shields c that are holy

The ancilia 'shields' were named from their ambecisus 'incision on both sides,' because these arms were incised at right and left like those of the Thracians.

44. Cakes and their bakers, Argei and priests with conical topknots.<sup>a</sup>

Liba 'cakes,' so named because they are made libare' to offer 'to the gods.<sup>b</sup> Fictores' bakers' were so called from fingere' to shape 'the liba. Argei from the city Argos <sup>c</sup>: the Argei are made of rushes, human figures twenty-seven <sup>d</sup> in number; these are each Warmington; continuing the list of Numa's institutions. b Libare is derived from liba! c Etymology of Argei and of tutulus quite uncertain. d On the number, see v. 45, note a.

Ponte Sublicio a sacerdotibus publice deici² solent in Tiberim. Tutulati dicti hi, qui in sacris in capitibus habere solent ut metam; id tutulus appellatus ab eo quod matres familias crines convolutos ad verticem capitis quos habent vit\(\lambda\) velatos\(^4\) dicebantur tutuli, sive ab eo quod id tuendi causa capilli fiebat, sive ab eo quod altissimum in urbe quod est, Arcs,\(^5\) tutissimum vocatur.

45. Eundem Pompilium ait fecisse flamines, qui cum omnes sunt a singulis deis cognominati, in quibusdam apparent ἔτνμα, ut cur sit Martialis et Quirinalis; sunt in quibus flaminum cognominibus latent origines, ut in his qui sunt versibus plerique:

Volturnalem, Palatualem, Furinalem, Floralemque¹ Falacrem et Pomonalem fecit Hic idem, quae o(b)scura sunt; eorum origo Volturnus, diva Palatua, Furrina, Flora, Falacer pater, Pomona.<sup>2</sup> 46. Apud Ennium:

Iam cata signa ferae<sup>1</sup> sonitum dare voce parabant.

Cata acuta: hoc enim verbo dicunt Sabini: quare

Catus Aelius Sextus

Rhol., for duci.
 Mue.; vittis Popma; for uti.
 Laetus, for velatas.
 For ares.
 45.
 Mue., for floralem qui.
 Turnebus, for pomorum nam.

§ 46. ¹ So F; but fera (agreeing with voce) Mue.

310

<sup>See § 44 note c.
§ 45. <sup>a</sup> Ennius, Ann. 122-124 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 44-45
Warmington. <sup>b</sup> The protecting spirit of the Palatine.
§ 46. <sup>a</sup> Ann. 459 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 182-183 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Ennius, Ann. 331 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 120-121</sup>

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 44-46

year thrown into the Tiber from the Bridge-on-Piles, by the priests, acting on behalf of the state. These are called tutulati 'provided with tutuli,' since they at the sacrifices are accustomed to have on their heads something like a conical marker; this is called a tutulus from the fact ** that the twisted locks of hair which the matrons wear on the tops of their heads wrapped with a woollen band, used to be called tutuli, whether named from the fact that this was done for the purpose of tueri 'protecting' the hair, or because that which is highest in the city, namely the Citadel, was called tutissimum 'safest.'

45. He says a that this same Pompilius created the flamens or special priests, every one of whom gets a distinguishing name from one special god: in certain cases the sources are clear, for example, why one is called Martial and another Quirinal; but there are others who have titles of quite hidden origin, as most of those in these verses:

those in these verses:

The Volturnal, Palatual, the Furinal, and Floral, Falacrine and Pomonal this ruler likewise created; and these are obscure. Their origins are Volturnus, the divine Palatua,<sup>b</sup> Furrina, Flora, Father Falacer, Pomona.

46. In Ennius is this verse a:

Now the beasts were about to give cry, their shrill-toned signals.

In this, cata 'shrill-toned' is acuta 'sharp or pointed,' for the Sabines use the word in this meaning; therefore

Keen Aelius Sextus b

Warmington; Sextus Aelius Paetus, consul 198, censor 194, a distinguished writer on Roman law.

non, ut aiunt, sapiens, sed acutus, et quod est:

Tunc cooppit memorare simul cata² dicta, accipienda acuta dicta.

47. Apud Lucilium:

Quid est? Thynno capto cobium excludunt foras,

et

Occidunt, Lupe, saperdae te³ et iura siluri

et

Sumere te atque amian.

Piscium nomina sunt eorumque in Graecia origo.

48. Apud Ennium:

Quae cava corpore caeruleo (c)ortina receptat.¹
Cava cortina dicta, quod est inter terram et caelum ad similitudinem cortinae Apollinis; ea a eorde, quod inde sortes primae existimatae.

49. Apud Ennium:

Quin inde invitis sumpserunt¹ perduellibus.

 $^2$  Bergk filled out the verse by reading simul stulta et cata ; Vahlen, by proposing simul lacrimans cata.

§ 47. L. Sp., for quidem. 2 Mue., for corium.

3 Turnebus, for lupes aper de te.

§ 48. ¹ Mue. (following Turnebus in cava and cortina receptat, and Scaliger in deleting in and caelo; he himself deleted que and transposed corpore cava), for quaeque in corpore causa ceruleo caelo orta nare ceptat.

§ 49. 1 M, Laetus, for sumpserint.

<sup>c</sup> Page 115 Funaioli. <sup>d</sup> Ennius, Ann. 529 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 458-459 Warmington.

§ 47. <sup>a</sup> Respectively 938, 54, 1304 Marx. <sup>b</sup> Lucilius puns on iura, 'sauces' and 'rights, justice,' and on Lupe, a man's name and also a kind of fish. <sup>c</sup> Respectively θύννος 'tunny,' called horse-mackerel and tuna in America; κωβιός 'sand-goby,' a worthless fish; σαπέρδης, perhaps 'salted perch,' the word coming from the region of Pontus; σίλουρος 312

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 46-49

does not mean 'sage,' as they say, but 'sharp'; and in the verse d

Then he began to say at the same time words that were cata.

the cata words must be understood as sharp or pointed.

47. In Lucilius are the following a:

What then? A tunny caught, they throw the goby out.

And

Sauces of salted perch and of catfish are killing you, Lupus.b

And

That you take a . . . and a scomber.

These words are names of fishes; they originated in Greece.c

48. In Ennius we find a:

What the hollow caldron takes back in its skybluish belly.

Cava cortina 'hollow caldron' is thus said because that which is between earth and sky is somewhat in the shape of Apollo's tripod-caldron b; cortina is derived from cor 'heart,' because it is from this caldron that the first fortune-telling lots are believed to have been taken.

49. In Ennius we find a:

Nay even, they carried them off from there despite the foes.

'sheatfish,' a large river-fish of the catfish type; ἀμία, a variety of the tunny which ascends rivers. § 48. <sup>a</sup> Ann. 9 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 432-433 Warmington; meaning the inverted kettle-shaped space between the earth and the sky. b At Delphi.

§ 49. a Trag. Rom. Frag. 385 Ribbeck3; R.O.L. i. 366-

367 Warmington.

VARRO

Perduelles dicuntur hostes; ut perfecit, sic perduellis,² (a per)³ et duellum: id postea bellum. Ab eadem causa facta Duellona⁴ Bellona.

50. Apud Plautum:

Neque Iugula,¹ neque Vesperugo, neque Vergiliae occidunt.

Iugula signum, quod Accius appellat Oriona, cum ait :

Citius Orion patefit.

Huius signi caput dicitur ex tribus stellis, quas infra duae clarae, quas appellant Umeros; inter quas quod videtur iugulum, Iugula dicta. Vesperugo stella quae vespere oritur, a quo eam Opillus scribit Vesperum: itaque dicitur alterum:

Vesper adest,

quem Graeci dicunt di (vum)<sup>2</sup> έσπέριον.

51. Naevius:

Patrem suum supremum optumum appellat.

<sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for perduellum. <sup>3</sup> Added by A. Sp. <sup>4</sup> For duelliona.

§ 50. <sup>1</sup> This is certainly Varro's text (so F; cf. Iugula in the next line also); but Plautus has Nec Iugulae, which is assured by the trochaic rhythm. <sup>2</sup> Fay, for di.

<sup>§ 50. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Amph. 275. Varro quotes from memory, and incorrectly; cf. critical note. <sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 693 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 576-577 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Usually called Orion's Belt. <sup>d</sup> Properly not 'rising' in the evening, but visible at that time. <sup>e</sup> Page 93 Funaioli. Aurelius Opillus, a freedman of Oscan origin, and teacher at Rome, voluntarily accompanied Rutilius Rufus into exile at Smyrna about 92 B.C.; the extant fragments of his works bear on the interpretation of difficult words. <sup>f</sup> Some think that Opillus is mentioned as using the word 314

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 49-51

The enemy are called perduelles 'foes'; as perfecit' accomplished' is formed from per 'through, thoroughly' and fecit' did,' so perduellis is formed from per and duellum' war': this word afterward became bellum. From the same reason, Duellona' Goddess of War' became Bellona.

50. In Plautus is this a:

Not the Collar-Bone nor Evening-Star nor Pleiads now do set.

Iugula 'Collar-Bone' is a constellation, which Accius calls Orion when he says  $^b$ :

More quickly now Orion comes to sight.

The head of this constellation is said to consist of three stars, below which are two bright stars which they call the Shoulders c; the space between them is the neck, as it were, and is called the Iugula 'Collar-Bone.' Vesperugo 'Evening-Star' is the star which rises vespere 'in the evening,' d from which Opillus c writes its name as Vesper f: therefore the word is said in a second meaning g:

Vesper is here,"

he whom the Greeks call the Evening-time Deity. 51. Naevius has the following a:

She addresses her own father, the best and the supreme.

as a neuter, Vesperum, but this is not a necessary inference.

For the meaning of alterum, cf. v. 179.

A phrase familiar in marriage hymns, as in Catullus, 62. 1: Vesper is not a mere star, but is personified as a deity.

An explanation of Vergiliae is expected here, but is not in the extant text.

<sup>§ 51. °</sup> Frag. Poet. Lat., page 20 Morel; R.O.L. ii. 52-53 Warmington; Saturnian verse.

Supremum ab superrumo dictum : itaque Duodecim Tabulae¹ dicunt :

Solis occasu diei suprema tempestas esto.

Libri Augurum pro tempestate tempestutem dicunt supremum augurii tempus.

52. In Cornicula (ria)1:

Qui regi latrocinatus decem annos Demetrio.

Latrones dicti ab latere, qui circum latera erant regi atque ad latera habebant ferrum, quos postea a stipatione stipatores² appellarunt, et qui conducebantur: ea enim merces Graece dicitur  $\lambda \acute{\alpha} \tau \rho o \nu$ .³ Ab eo veteres poetae nonnunquam milites appellant latrones.  $\langle At$  nunc viarum obsessores dicuntur latrones, $\rangle$ 4 quod item ut milites  $\langle \text{sunt} \rangle$ 5 cum ferro, aut quod latent ad insidias faciendas.

53. Apud Naevium:

Risi egomet mecum cassabundum ire ebrium.

Cassabundum a cadendo. Idem:

Diabathra in pedibus¹ habebat, erat amictus epicroco. Utrumque vocabulum Graecum.

§ 51. <sup>1</sup> Sciop., for tabulis. § 52. <sup>1</sup> Vertranius, for cornicula; cf. v. 153. <sup>2</sup> For stipateres. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for CATPON. <sup>4</sup> Added by Kent, from Festus, 118. 16 M.; the lacuna was first noted by L. Sp. <sup>5</sup> Added by GS., from Serv. Dan. in Aen. xii. 7. § 53. <sup>1</sup> Rhol., for pecudibus.

§ 53. a Com. Rom. Frag. 120 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 144-

316

b Page 119 Schoell; cf. vi. 5. By Roman law, legal proceedings could not continue after sunset.
 c Page 16 Regell.
 § 52.
 d Plautus, Corn. frag. II Ritschl.
 b Derivation

<sup>§ 52. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Plautus, Corn. frag. 11 Ritschl. <sup>a</sup> Derivation from the Greek, and not from Latin latus, seems to be right. <sup>a</sup> As in Plautus, Mil. 76, Poen. 663, etc.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 51-53

Supremum is derived from superrimum, superlative of superum 'higher': therefore the Twelve Tables say b:

Let the last (suprema) time of day be at sunset.

The Books of the Augurs c call the last time for augury a tempestus and not a tempestus.

52. In The Story of the Helmet-Horn is the verse a:

Who for ten years fought for wages (latrocinatus) for the King Demetrius.

Those were called latrones 'mercenaries' from latus 'side,' who were at the King's side and had a sword at their own side (afterwards they called them stipatores 'body-guards' from stipatio 'close attendance') and were hired for pay: for this pay is in Greek called  $\lambda \acute{\alpha} \tau \rho o v$ . From this, the old poets sometimes call regular soldiers latrones. But now the name latrones is given to the highwaymen who block the roads, because like regular soldiers they have swords, or else because they latent 'lie in hiding' to ambush their victims.

53. In Naevius a:

I laughed inside to see a drunk go tottering.

Cassabundum 'tottering,' from cadere 'to fall.' The same author has this:

Slippers on his feet he wore, he was wrapped about with a saffron robe.

Both words (diabathra 'slippers,' and epicrocum 'saffron robe') are Greek.

145 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 54 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 130-131 Warmington. This and the preceding quotation were formerly attributed to the Lycurgus, a tragedy of Naevius; while Bergk, Philol. xxxiii. 281-282, joined them (reading moechum for mecum and omitting habebat) as consecutive lines in an unidentified comedy.

54. In Mengeehmis:

Inter ancillas sedere inbeas, lanam carere.

Idem hoc est verbum in Cemetria Naevii. Carere a carendo, quod eam tum purgant ac deducunt, ut careat spurcitia; ex quo carminari dicitur tum lana, cum ex ea carunt¹ quod in ea haeret neque est lana, quae in Romulo Naevius appellat asta ab Oscis.

55. In Persa:

Iam pol ille hic aderit, credo, congerro meus.

Congerro a gerra; hoc¹ Graecum est et in Latina cratis.²

56. In Menaechmis:

Idem istuc aliis ascriptivis fieri ad legionem solet.

Ascriptivi dicti, quod olim ascribebantur inermes armatis militibus qui succederent, si quis eorum deperisset.

57. In Trinummo:

Nam illum tibi¹ $\langle$ Ferentarium esse amicum inventum intellego $\rangle$ .²

Ferentarium a ferendo id (quod non)2 est inane ac

§ 54. 1 Neukirch, for carent.

§ 55. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp. and Groth, for hic. <sup>2</sup> For gratis.

§ 57. 1 Victorius, for libi. 2 Added by L. Sp.

§ 55. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Persa, 89. <sup>b</sup> Properly, one who contributes his share to a common feast, from congerere.

318

<sup>§ 54. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Plautus, Men. 797. <sup>b</sup> Doubtless a corrupted name; for which Commotria was proposed by Turnebus, Cosmetria by Mue., Demetria by GS.; R.O.L. ii. 597 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Properly carrere; not connected with carēre <sup>c</sup> to lack. <sup>d</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag., Praet. I Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. <sup>e</sup> Of uncertain meaning; possibly <sup>c</sup> nap, pile, from ad-sta-<sup>c</sup> stand on. <sup>c</sup>

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 54-57

54. In The Menaechmia:

Why, you'd bid me sit among the maids at work and card the wool.

This same word carere 'to card' is in the Cemetria b of Nacvius. Cārĕre c is from cărēre 'to lack,' because then they cleanse the wool and spin it into thread, that it may carere 'be free 'from dirt: from which the wool is said carminari 'to be carded' then when they carunt 'card' out of it that which sticks in it and is not wool, those things which in the Romulus Naevius d calls asta, from the Oscans.

55. In The Persian a:

Now sure he'll be here at once, I think, my jolly chum.

Congerro b 'chum,' from gerra c 'wickerwork'; this is a Greek word, d the Latin equivalent of which is cratis.

56. In The Menaechmia:

The others enrolled as extras in the army are treated just that way.

Ascriptivi 'enrolled as extras' were so called because in the past men who did not receive arms ascribebantur' used to be enrolled as extras,' to take the place of the regularly armed soldiers if any of them should be killed.

57. In The Three Shillings a:

For I clearly see In him a ferentarius friend has been found for you.

Ferentarius, from ferre 'to bring' that which is not Usually plural, gerrae; with derived meaning of 'trifles, nonsense.' <sup>d</sup> γέρον 'wickerwork' or anything made of it, especially shields.

§ 56. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Men. 183. § 57. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Trin. 455-456. sinc fructu; aut quod ferentarii equites hi dicti qui ea modo habebant arma quae ferrentur, ut iaculum. Huiuscemodi equites pictos vidi in Aesculapii aede vetere et ferentarios ascriptos.

58. In Frivolaria:

Ubi rorarii¹ estis? En² sunt. Ubi sunt accensi? Ecce (sunt).³

Rorarii dicti ab rore qui bellum committebant, ideo quod ante rorat quam pluit.<sup>4</sup> Accensos ministratores Cato esse scribit; potest id (ab censione, id est) ab arbitrio: nam ide(m) ad arbitrium eius cuius minister.

59. Pacuvius:

Cum deum triportenta . . . . 1

60. In Mercatore:

Non tibi1 istuc magis dividiaest2 quam mihi hodie fuit.

(Eadem  $\langle vi \rangle^3$  hoc est in Corollaria Naevius  $\langle usus \rangle$ .4) Dividia ab dividendo dieta, quod divisio distractio est doloris : itaque idem in Curculione ait :

Sed quid tibi est?—Lien enecat,<sup>5</sup> renes dolent, Pulmones distrahuntur.

§ 58.  $^1$  Rhol., for rorani.  $^2$   $F^2$ , for an  $F^1$ .  $^3$  Added by Kent, to complete verse metrically.  $^4$   $H^2$  and p, for plusti.  $^5$  For acensos  $F^1$ , adcensos  $F^2$ .  $^6$  Added by GS.  $^7$  Brakmann, for inde.

§ 59. Lacuna marked by Scaliger.

§ 60. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp. deleted in mercatore non tibi, here repeated in F. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for dividia est, from the text of Plautus.

<sup>3</sup> Added by GS. <sup>4</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>5</sup> b, for liene negat.

§ 59. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 381 Říbbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 304-320

&lt;sup>b</sup> That is, not to be retained in the hand during use. § 58. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Friv. frag. IV Ritschl. <sup>b</sup> Page 81. 14 Jordan. <sup>c</sup> For correct etymology, see vi. 89, note a.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 57-60

empty and profitless; or because those were called ferentarii cavalrymen who had only weapons which ferrentur 'were to be thrown,' b such as a javelin. Cavalrymen of this kind I have seen in a painting in the old temple of Aesculapius, with the label "ferentarii."

58. In The Story of the Trifles a:

Where are you, rorarii? Behold, they're here. Where are the accensi? See, they're here.

Rorarii 'skirmishers' were those who started the battle, named from the ros 'dew-drops,' because it rorat 'sprinkles' before it really rains. The accensi, Cato writes, b were attendants; the word may be from censio 'opinion,' that is, from arbitrium 'decision,' for the accensus c is present to do the arbitrium of him whose attendant he is.

59. Pacuvius says a:

When the gods' portents triply strong . . .

60. In The Trader a:

That's no more a dividia to you than 'twas to me to-day. (This word was used by Naevius in The Story of the Garland, in the same meaning.) Dividia 'vexation' is said from dividere 'to divide,' because the distractio 'pulling asunder' caused by pain is a division; therefore the same author says in the Curculio c:

But what's the matter?—Stitch in the side, an aching back,

And my lungs are torn asunder.

305 Warmington; perhaps referring to portents of the infernal deities.

§ 60. a Plautus, Merc. 619. b Com. Rom. Frag. IX Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. c Plautus, Curc. 236-237; literally, 'my spleen kills me, my kidneys hurt me.'

VOL. I Y 321

61. In Pagone:

Honos syncerasto peri(i)t,1 pernis, gla(n)dio.2

Syncerastum est omne edulium<sup>3</sup> antiquo vocabulo Graeco.

62. In Parasito Pigro:

Domum ire c(o)epi tramite (in) dextra via.

Trames<sup>2</sup> a transverso dictus.

63. In Fugitivis:

Age (e)rgo1 specta, vide vibices2 quantas.—Iam inspexi. Quid est?3

Vibices<sup>2</sup> alte<sup>4</sup> excitatum verberibus corpus.

64. In Cistellaria:

Non quasi nunc haec sunt hic limaces, lividae.

Limax ab limo, quod ibi vivit.

Diobolares, sch(o)enicolae, miraculae.

Diobolares a binis obolis.<sup>2</sup> Sch(o)enicolae<sup>3</sup> sch(o)eno, nugatorio ung(u)ento.4 Miraculae a miris, id est monstris; a quo Accius ait:

§ 61. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for perit. <sup>2</sup> Pius, for gladios. 3 Aug., for medullium.

§ 62. <sup>1</sup> Added by Kent. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for tramis. § 63. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp., for agerge. <sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for vivices. <sup>3</sup> quid B, Laetus, est Scaliger, for quidem esset. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp., for alii.

§ 64.  $^1$  Turnebus, for scenicolae.  $^2$  B, Victorius, for sabini sobolis.  $^3$  Turnebus, for scenicolas  $F^2$ , -is  $F^1$ . 4 Aldus, for nungento.

<sup>§ 61.</sup> a Plautus, Frag. 101 Ritschl; the play's name is otherwise unknown: Pius proposed in Phagone, Ladewig proposed in Phaone (cf. Ritschl, Parerga, 151, 205; Rhein. Mus. X. 447 = Opusc. ii. 731). b That is, the speaker has lost his appetite.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 61-64

61. In the Pagon a:

Respect for hash is gone, for haunch of ham, for chops.

Syncerastum 'hash' is all kinds of food mixed together, under an old Greek name.

62. In The Lazy Hanger-on a:

I started to go home by a side-way to the right.

Trames b 'side-way' is said from transversum' turned across.'

63. In The Runaways a:

Then come and look, and see what welts.—I've looked now; well, what next?

Vibices 'welts,' the flesh of the body raised high by lashes.

64. In The Story of the Trinket-Box a:

As if they aren't here now, the dark and dirty slugs.  $Limax^b$  'slug' from limus 'slimy mud,' because it lives there.

Diobolous women, rush-perfumed, quite wonder-foul. Diobolares 'diobolous,' from two obols a apiece. Schoenicolae rush-perfumed,' from schoenus aromatic rush,' an unpleasant perfumed ointment. Miraculae wonder-foul,' from mira wonderful things,' that is, monstrosities; from which Accius says !

§ 62. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Frag. 108 Ritschl. <sup>b</sup> Probably from trans and meare ' to go.'

§ 63. Plautus, Frag. 90 Ritschl.

§ 64. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Cist. 405. <sup>b</sup> Probably from Greek  $\lambda\epsilon i\mu a\xi$  'slug,' though akin to limus. <sup>c</sup> Plautus, Cist. 407. <sup>d</sup> One third of a drachma, or franc of the pre-war standard; now somewhat over five pence British, or ten cents U.S.A. <sup>e</sup> Used of ugly things by the early Romans, according to Festus, 123. 5 M. <sup>f</sup> Frag. Poet. Rom., page 271 Baehrens: R.O.L. ii. 582-583 Warmington.

VARRO

Personas distortis oribus deformis miriones.

65. Ibidem:

Scratiae, s(c)rup(i)pedae, s(t)rittabillae, tantulae.

Ab excreando scratiae<sup>3</sup> sic(c)as significat.<sup>4</sup> Scrup(i)pedam<sup>5</sup> Aurelius scribit ab scauripeda<sup>6</sup>; Iuventius comicus dicebat a vermiculo piloso, qui solet esse in fronde cum multis pedibus; Valerius a pede ac scrupea. Ex eo Acci positum curiose7: itaque est in Melanippo<sup>8</sup>:

Reicis abs te religionem? Scrupeam<sup>9</sup> imponas (tibi).<sup>10</sup> Strittabillas a strettillando; strittare ab eo qui sistit aegre.

66. In Astraba<sup>1</sup>:

Acsitiosae<sup>2</sup> annonam caram e vili concinnant viris. Ideo in Sitellitergo idem ait:

> Mulier es(t)3 uxorcula: Ut4 ego novi, scio acsitio(s)a quam5 si(e)t.6

Madvig, for distortas. § 65. <sup>1</sup> Mue. (stritabillae Bentinus), for scraties ruppae ides rittabillae. 2 So F; but Gellius, iii. 3. 6, and Nonius, 169. 9 M., have sordidae. 3 A. Sp., with B, for scraties. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp.; siccam significat Turnebus; for sic assignificat. <sup>5</sup> A. Sp.; scrupipedas Mue.; for scruppidam. <sup>6</sup> Bothe; a scauro pede Turnebus; for auscauripeda. <sup>7</sup> Ribbeck, for curiosa. <sup>8</sup> Warmington, for melanippa. <sup>9</sup> For scruppeam. <sup>10</sup> Added by Mue., metri gratia. <sup>8</sup> 66. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for astriba. <sup>2</sup> GS.; axitiosae Aldus; for ac sitiose. <sup>3</sup> Seyfert; mulier es Turnebus; for <sup>4</sup> A. Sp., for uxorculauit. <sup>5</sup> axitiosa quam GS.; axitiosam Aldus; for ac sitio aquam. 8 Kent, metri gratia; sit GS.; for sic.

<sup>§ 65.</sup> a Plautus, Nervolaria, Frag. 100 Ritschl; describing harlots. The first three words are of very uncertain b Possibly 'lean with tuberculosis,' or 'worthy meaning. 324

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 64-66

Misshapen masks with twisted features, ugly wonders (miriones).

65. In the same writer a:

Just withered women, limping, tottering, worthless quite.

Scratiae b ' withered women,' from excreare ' to cough and spit,' indicates those that are siccae 'dried up.' Scrupipeda c 'limping,' Aurelius d writes, is from scauripeda 'having swollen ankles'; Juventius e the writer of comedies said that it was from a hairy caterpillar which is found on foliage and has many pedes 'feet'; Valerius f derived it from pes 'foot' and scrupea 'difficulty.' From this Accius has set it down in an interesting way: thus there is in the Melanippus g the verse:

You throw your scruples off? A difficulty you'd take upon your back.

Strittabillae is from strettillare, itself from strittare, said of a person who with difficulty keeps on his feet. 66. In The Riding-Saddle a:

Wives united make their husbands' harvest dear instead of cheap.

So in The Bucket-Cleaner b the same writer says:

My darling wife a woman is: As I have learned. I know how unionist she is.

of being spat upon.' 'Most probably 'walking on sharp stones,' and therefore 'limping'; from scrupus 'sharp stone' and pes 'foot.' 'Page 91 Funaioli. 'Com. Rom. Frag. V Ribbeck's. 'Frag. Poet. Lat., page 40 Morel. 'Trag. Rom. Frag. 430-431 Ribbeck's; R.O.L. ii. 468-469 Warmington; 'your freedom from a light burden proteins the convince of a heavier one.' entails the carrying of a heavier one.'

§ 66. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Astraba, Frag. II, verse 11 Ritschl. b Plautus, Frag. 116-117 Ritschl.

Claudius scribit axitiosas demonstrari consupplicatrices. Ab agendo axitiosas: ut ab una faciendo factiosae, sic ab una agendo (axitiosae, ut)<sup>7</sup> actiosae, dictae.

67. In Cesistione:

Di(s) stribula¹ (a)ut² de lumbo obscena viscera.³ Stribula, ut Opil/us⁴ scribit, circum coxendices⁵ sunt bovis⁶; id Graecum est ab eius loci versura.

68. In (N)ervolaria1:

Scobina<sup>2</sup> ego illun/co/<sup>3</sup> actutum adrasi ⟨soenem.<sup>4</sup> Scobinam a scobe: lima enim materia(e)<sup>5</sup> fabrilis est. 69. In P(o)enulo:

Vinceretis cervum cursu¹ vel gral⟨l⟩atorem² gradu.³ Gral⟨l⟩ator² a gradu³ magno dictus.

70. In Truculento:

Sine virtute argutum civem mihi habeam pro præfica. (Praefica)¹ dicta, ut Aurelius scribit, mulier ab luco quae conduceretur quae ante domum mortui laudis

7 Added by Mue., whose et was changed to ut by GS.

§ 67. <sup>1</sup> Buecheler, for distribula. <sup>2</sup> Sciop., for ut. <sup>3</sup> Mue., for obscenabis cera, with a above first e and v above second b, F<sup>1</sup>. <sup>4</sup> GS. (cf. vii. 50), for opilius. <sup>5</sup> Aldus, for coxa indices. <sup>6</sup> Sciop., for uobis.

§ 68. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, for eruolaria. <sup>2</sup> Sciop., for scobinam. <sup>3</sup> A. Sp., metri gratia, for illum. <sup>4</sup> Lachmann, for enim.

<sup>5</sup> Canal, for materia.

§ 69. <sup>1</sup> Aldus, from Plautus, for circumcurso. <sup>2</sup>-ll-, from Festus, 97. 12 M. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, from Plautus, for gradum. § 70. <sup>1</sup> Added by B, Aldus.

<sup>c</sup> Page 97 Funaioli.

<sup>§ 67. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Plautus, Frag. 52 Ritschl. <sup>b</sup> Page 92 Funaioli. <sup>c</sup> Of uncertain etymology; Festus, 313 a 34 M., has strebula, and calls it an Umbrian word. <sup>d</sup> Varro perhaps derived it from Greek  $\sigma\tau\rho\epsilon\beta\lambda\delta$ s 'twisted.'

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 66-70

Claudius c writes that women who make joint entreaties are clearly shown to be axitiosae 'united, unionist.' Axitiosae is from agere 'to act': as factiosae 'partisan women' are named from facere 'doing' something in unison, so axitiosae are named from agere' acting' together, as though actiosae.

67. In the Cesistio a:

For the gods the thigh-meats or the lewd parts from

Stribula 'thigh-meats,' as Opillus b-writes, are the fleshy parts of cattle around the hips; the word cis Greek, derived from the fact that in this place there is a socket-joint.d

68. In The Story of the Prison Ropes a:

At once I with my rasp did scrape the old fellow clean.

Scobina 'rasp,' from scobis 'sawdust'; for a file belongs to a carpenter's equipment.

69. In The Little Man from Carthage a:

You'd outdo the stag in running or the stilt-walker in stride.

Grallator 'stilt-walker' is said from his great gradus 'stride.'

70. In The Rough Customer a:

Although without a deed of bravery I may have A clear-toned citizen as leader of my praise.

Praefica 'praise-leader,' as Aurelius b writes, is a name applied to a woman from the grove of Libitina, who was to be hired to sing the praises of a dead man in

§ 68. Plautus, Frag. 94 Ritschl.

§ 69. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Poen. 530. § 70. <sup>a</sup> Plautus. Truc. 495. <sup>b</sup> Page 90 Funaioli. Where the wailing-women had their stand; cf. Dionysius Halic. iv. 15.

VARRO

eius caneret. Hoc factitatum Aristoteles scribit in libro qui  $\langle \text{in} \rangle$ scribitur²  $N \acute{o}\mu \iota \mu a \beta a \rho \beta a \rho \iota \kappa \acute{a}$ ,³ quibus testimonium est, quod  $\langle \text{in} \rangle$  Freto est⁴ N a evii:

Haec quidem hercle, opinor, praefica est: nam mortuum collaudat.

Claudius scribit:

Quae praeficeretur ancillis, quemadmodum lamentarentur, praefica est dicta.

Utrumque ostendit a praefectione praeficam dietam.
71. Apud Ennium:

Decem Coclites quas montibus summis Ripaeis fodere.¹

Ab oculo cocles, ut ocles, dictus, qui unum haberet oculum: quocirca in Curculione est:

De Coclitum prosapia (te)<sup>2</sup> esse arbitror : Nam hi sunt unoculi.

IV. 72. Nunc de temporibus dicam. Quod est apud Cassium :

Nocte intempesta nostram devenit domum, intempesta nox dicta ab tempestate, tempestas ab

Aug., with B, for scribitur.
 Turnebus, for nomina barbarica.
 GS.; Freto inest Canal; for fretum est.
 71. 1 a, Turnebus, for federe.
 Added by Aug., from Plantus.

&lt;sup>d</sup> Frag. 604, page 367 Rose. <sup>e</sup> Com. Rom. Frag. 129 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 142-143 Warmington. <sup>f</sup> Page 98 Funaioli.

<sup>§ 71. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Sat. 67-68 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 392-393 Warmington. The one-eyed Arimaspi of northern Scythia (where the Rhipaean or Rhiphaean mountains were located) were said to have taken much gold from their neighbours the Grypes (or Griffins); cf. Herodotus, iii. 116, iv. 13, iv. 27, who 328

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 70-72

front of his house. That this was regularly done, is stated by Aristotle in his book entitled Customs of Foreign Nations <sup>a</sup>; whereto there is the testimony which is in The Strait of Naevius <sup>e</sup>:

Dear me, I think, the woman's a praefica: it's a dead man she is praising.

Claudius writes f:

A woman who praeficeretur 'was to be put in charge' of the maids as to how they should perform their lamentations, was called a praefica.

Both passages show that the praefica was named from praefectio 'appointment as leader.'

71. In Ennius we find a:

Treasures which ten of the Coclites buried, High on the tops of Rhiphaean mountains.

Cocles 'one-eyed' was derived from oculus 'eye,' as though ocles,<sup>b</sup> and denoted a person who had only one eye; therefore in the Curculio <sup>c</sup> there is this:

I think that you are from the race of Coclites; For they are one-eyed.

IV. 72. Now I shall speak of terms denoting time. In the phrase of Cassius, $^a$

By dead of night he came unto our home, intempesta nox 'dead of night' is derived from tempestas, and tempestas from tempus 'time': a nox quotes (with incredulity) from a poem by Aristeas of Proconnesus. Fodere=infodere. b Varro means, from co-ocles with an eye'; but the word is derived from Greek κύκλωψ, through the Etruscan. c Plantus, Curc. 393-394.

§ 72. a Accius, Com. Rom. Frag. Praet. V, verse 41 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 562-563 Warmington; repeated from

vi. 7, where see note a on authorship.

tempore; nox intempesta, quo tempore nihil<sup>1</sup> agitur.

73. Quid noctis videtur ?—In altisono Caeli clipeo temo superat Stellas sublime(n)¹ agens etiam Atque etiam noctis iter.

Hic multam noctem ostendere volt a temonis motu; sed temo unde et cur dicatur latet. Arbitror antiquos rusticos primum notasse quaedam in caelo signa, quae praeter alia erant insignia atque ad aliquem usum, (ut)<sup>2</sup> culturae tempus, designandum convenire animadvertebantur.

74. Eius signa sunt, quod has septem stellas Graeci ut Homerus voca  $\langle n \rangle$ t  $\ddot{a}\mu a \dot{\xi} a v^1$  et propinquum eius signum  $\beta o \dot{\omega} \tau \eta v$ , nostri eas septem stellas  $\langle t \rangle r \langle i \rangle$ ones² et temonem et prope eas axem : triones enim et boves appellantur a bubulcis etiam nunc, maxime cum arant terra $m^3$ ; e quis ut dicti

Valentes glebarii,

qui facile proscindunt glebas, sic omnes qui terram arabant a terra terriones, unde triones ut dicerentur (E) detrito.4

75. Temo dictus a tenendo: is enim continet

§ 72. <sup>1</sup> For nichil.

§ 73. <sup>1</sup> Skutsch, after Buecheler, for sublime. <sup>2</sup> Added by Mue.

 $\S$  74. <sup>1</sup> For AMA $\Sigma$ AN. <sup>2</sup> L. Sp., for bones. <sup>3</sup> For terras. <sup>4</sup> Aug., for de tritu.

§ 73. <sup>a</sup> Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 177-180 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 300-301 Warmington; freely adapted from Euripides, Iphig. in Aul. 6-8; anapaestic. Cf. v. 19, above. <sup>b</sup> Signa in this and the following seems to vary in meaning between 'signs=marks' and 'signs=constellations.'
§ 74. <sup>a</sup> E.g., Od. v. 272-273. <sup>b</sup> Charles' Wain, or the

§ 74. ° E.g., Od. v. 272-273. ° Charles' Wain, or the Great Dipper; and other parts of the constellation Ursa

330

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 72-75

intempesta 'un-timely night' is a time at which no activity goes on.

73. What time of the night doth it seem ?-In the shield Of the sky, that soundeth aloft, lo the Pole Of the Wain outstrippeth the stars as on high More and more it driveth its journey of night.ª

Here the author wishes to indicate that the night is advanced, from the motion of the Temo 'Wagon-Pole'; but the origin of Temo and the reason for its use, are hidden. My opinion is that in old times the farmers first noticed certain signs b in the sky which were more conspicuous than the rest, and which were observed as suitable to indicate some profitable use, such as the time for tilling the fields.

74. The marks of this one are, that the Greeks, for example Homer, a call these seven stars the Wagon b and the sign that is next to it the Ploughman, while our countrymen call these seven stars the Triones ' Plough-Oxen' and the Temo' Wagon-Pole' and near them the Axis 'axle of the earth, north pole 'c: for indeed oxen are called triones by the ploughmen even now, especially when they are ploughing the land; just as those of them which easily cleave the glebae clods of earth ' are called

Mighty glebarii 'clod-breakers,'

so all that ploughed the land were from terra 'land' called terriones, so that from this they were called triones,d with loss of the E.

75. Temo is derived from tenere 'to hold' a: for it

<sup>c</sup> Or perhaps even the Pole-Star itself. is a derivative of terere 'to tread,' cf. perf. trivi and ptc. tritus.

§ 75. Wrong etymology.

iugum et plaustrum, appellatum a parte<sup>1</sup> totum, ut multa. Possunt triones dicti, VII quod ita sitae stellae, ut ternae trigona faciant.

Aliquod lumen-iubarne?-in caelo cerno. 76.

Iubar dicitur stella Lucifer, quae in summo quod habet lumen diffusum, ut leo in capite iubam. Huius ortus significat circiter esse extremam noctem. Itaque ait Pacuius:

Exorto iubare, noctis decurso itinere.

77. Apud Plautum in Parasito Pigro:

Inde hic bene potus<sup>1</sup> prim $\langle ul \rangle o^2$  crepusculo.

Crepusculum ab Sabinis, et id dubium tempus noctis an diei sit. Itaque in Condalio est:

Tam crepusculo, ferae3 ut amant, lampades accendite.

Ideo (d)ubiae res4 creperae dictae.

78. In Trinummo:

Concubium sit noctis priusquam (ad) postremum perveneris.

Concubium a concubitu dormiendi causa dictum.

§ 75. <sup>1</sup> B, Laetus, for aperte.

§ 77. <sup>1</sup> Pius, for de nepotus. <sup>2</sup> Scaliger, for primo. <sup>3</sup> Buecheler, for fere. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for ubi heres.

§ 78. 1 Added by Aug., from Plautus.

<sup>b</sup> Wrong etymology. § 76. Ennius, Trag. Rom. Frag. 336 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 226-227 Warmington; cf. vi. 6 and vi. 81. b Iubar and iuba are not etymologically connected. Chat is, shortly before sunrise, when it is visible in the eastern sky. d Trag. Rom. Frag. 347 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 320-321 Warmington: cf. vi. 6.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 75-78

continet 'holds together' the yoke and the cart, the whole being named from a part, as is true of many things. The name triones may perhaps have been given because the seven stars are so placed that the sets of three stars make triangles.<sup>b</sup>

76. I see some light in the sky-can it be dawn? a

The morning-star is called iubar, because it has at the top a diffused light, just as a lion has on his head a iuba 'mane.' Its rising c indicates that it is about the end of the night. Therefore Pacuvius says d:

When morning-star appears and night has run her course.

77. Plautus has this in The Lazy Hanger-on a:

From there to here, right drunk, he came, at early dusk.

Crepusculum 'dusk' is a word taken from the Sabines, and it is the time when there is doubt whether it belongs to the night or to the day.<sup>b</sup> Therefore in The Finger-Ring there is this <sup>c</sup>:

So at dusk, the time when wild beasts make their love, light up your lamps.

Therefore doubtful matters were called creperae.<sup>b</sup> 78. In The Three Shillings <sup>a</sup>:

General resting time of night 'twould be, before you reached its end.

Concubium 'general rest' is said from concubitus 'general lying-down' for the purpose of sleeping.

§ 77. <sup>a</sup> Frag. I, verse 107 Ritschl. <sup>b</sup> Cf. vi. 5 and notes. <sup>c</sup> Plautus, Frag. 60 Ritschl.

§ 78. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Trin. 886; that is, "if I should try to tell you my name." <sup>b</sup> Cf. vi. 7 and note c.

79. In Asinaria:

Videbitur, factum volo: redito<sup>1</sup> conticinio.<sup>2</sup>

Putem a conticiscendo conticinium<sup>3</sup> sive, ut Opillus<sup>4</sup> scribit, ab eo cum conticuerunt homines.

V. 80. Nunc de his rebus quae assignificant aliquod tempus, cum dicuntur aut fiunt, dicam.

Apud Accium:

Reciproca tendens nervo equino concita

Reciproca est cum unde quid profectum redit eo; ab recipere reciprocare fictum, aut quod poscere procare1 dictum.

81. Apud Plautum:

Ut¹ transversus,² non proversus cedit quasi cancer solet.

(Proversus)3 dicitur ab eo qui in id quod est (ante, est)4 versus, et ideo qui exit in vestibulum, quod est ante domum, prodire et procedere; quod cum lenos non faceret, sed secundum parietem transversus iret,

§ 79. 1 A. Sp.; redito huc Vertranius, from Plautus; at redito Rhol.; for ad reditum. <sup>2</sup> Laetus, for conticinno. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for conticinnam. <sup>4</sup> GS., for o pilius; cf. vii. 50, vii. 67.

§ 80. <sup>1</sup> B, Aldus, for prorogare. § 81. <sup>1</sup> H, Bentinus, for aut. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for transuersum; the MSS. of Plautus have non prorsus uerum ex transuerso cedit . . . 3 Added by L. Sp. 4 Added by Christ. 5 Aldus, for lemo.

§ 79. a Plautus, Asin. 685; where the text is redito huc. Cf. vi. 7. b Page 88 Funaioli.

<sup>§ 80.</sup> a That is, words of actions, whether or not they are verbs. b Philoctetes, Trag. Rom. Frag. 545-546 Ribbeck3; R.O.L. ii. 512-513 Warmington. Reciproca tela is properly 334

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 79-81

79. In The Story of the Ass there is this verse a:

I'll see to it, I wish it done; come back at conticinium.

I rather think that conticinium 'general silence' is from conticiscere 'to become silent,' or else, as Opillus b writes, from that time when men conticuerunt 'have become silent.'

V. 80. Now I shall speak of those things which have an added meaning of occurrence at some special time, when they are said or done.<sup>a</sup>

In Accius b:

The elastic weapon bring into action, bending it With horse-hair string.

Reciproca 'elastic' is a condition which is present when a thing returns to the position from which it has started. Reciprocare 'to move to and fro' is made <sup>c</sup> from recipere 'to take back,' or else because procare was said for poscere 'to demand.' <sup>d</sup>

81. In Plautus a:

How sidewise, as a crab is wont, he moves, Not straight ahead.

Proversus 'straight ahead' is said of a man who is turned toward that which is in front of him; and therefore he who is going out into the vestibule, which is at the front of the house, is said prodire 'to go forth' or procedere 'to proceed.' But since the brothel-keeper was not doing this, but was going sidewise along the wall, Plautus said "How sidewise only the Homeric (Riad, viii. 266, x. 459) παλίντονα τόξα 'backward-stretched bow,' and not as Varro interprets it.

<sup>e</sup> Probably from reque proque 'backward and forward'; not as Varro interprets it.
<sup>d</sup> That is, 'demand return.'

§ 81. a Pseud. 955; said of the brothel-keeper as he enters.

VARRO

dixit "ut transversus cedit quasi cancer, non proversus ut homo."

82. Apud Ennium:

Andromachae nomen qui indidit, recte¹ indidit. Item:

Quapropter Parim pastores nunc Alexandrum vocant.

Imitari dum voluit² Euripiden³ et ponere ἔτυμον, est lapsus; nam Euripides quod Graeca posuit, ἔτυμα sunt aperta. Ille ait ideo nomen additum Andromachae, quod ἀνδρὶ μάχεται⁴: hoc Enniu⟨m⟩⁵ quis potest intellegere in versu⁵ significare Andromachae nomen qui indidit, recte indidit, aut Alexandrum ab eo appellatum in Graecia qui Paris fuisset, a quo Herculem quoque cognominatum ἀλεξίκακον, ab eo quod defensor esset hominum?

83. Apud Accium:

Iamque Auroram rutilare procul Cerno.

Aurora dicitur ante solis ortum, ab eo quod ab igni solis tum aureo aer aurescit. Quod addit rutilare, est ab eodem colore: aurei enim rutili, et inde eti\(\alpha\)\(\right)^n\) mulieres valde rufae rutilae dictae.

§ 82. <sup>1</sup> Victorius deleted ei after recte. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for uolunt. <sup>3</sup> For euripeden. <sup>4</sup> Aldus, for andromachete. <sup>5</sup> L. Sp., for ennii. <sup>6</sup> Turnebus, for inversum. § 83. <sup>1</sup> Laetus, for enim.

<sup>§ 82. &</sup>quot;Trag. Rom. Frag. 65 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 252-253 Warmington; presumably from the Andromacha. b Trag. Rom. Frag. 38 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 240-241 Warmington. 'But not obvious in the Latin version. d Greek  $d\lambda\ell\xi\epsilon\omega$  and Latin defendere both mean 'to defend' a person from a danger and 'to ward off' a danger from a person.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 81-83

he moves like a crab, not proversus 'turned straight ahead' like a man."

82. In Ennius a:

Who gave Andromache her name, he gave aright. Likewise <sup>b</sup>:

Therefore Paris now the shepherds as Alexander do address.

In wishing to imitate Euripides and set down the radical, he fell into an error; for because Euripides wrote in Greek the radicals are obvious. Euripides says that Andromache received her name because she ἀνδρὶ μάχεται 'fights her husband': who can understand that this is what Ennius means in the verse

Who gave Andromache her name, he gave aright?

Or that he who had been Paris was in Greece called Alexander from the same source from which Hercules also was termed Alexicacos 'Averter of evils'—namely from the fact that he was a defender of men? <sup>d</sup> 83. In Accius <sup>a</sup>:

And now afar off I see that the dawn Is red.

Aurora 'dawn' is said of the phenomenon before sunrise, from the fact that the air aurescit' grows golden' from the sun's fire, which at that time is golden. As for his addition of rutilare 'to be red,' b that is from the same colour; for rutuli c is an expression for golden hair, and from that also women with extremely red hair are called rutilae' Goldilocks.' d § 83. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 675 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 566-567 Warmington; anapaestic. <sup>b</sup> More precisely, 'goldenred.' <sup>c</sup> With rutili understand capilli. <sup>d</sup> A politer term!

VOL. I Z 337

84. Apud Terentium:

Scortatur,1 potat, olet unguenta de meo.

Scortari est saepius meretriculam ducere, quae dicta a pelle : id enim non solum antiqui dicebant scortum, sed etiam nunc dicimus scortea ea quae e corio ac pellibus sunt facta ; in aliquot sacris ac sacellis scriptum habemus :

Ne quod scorteum adhibeatur, ideo ne morticinum quid adsit. In Atellanis licet animadvertere rusticos dicere se adduxisse pro scorto pelliculam.

85. Apud Accium:

Multis nomen Vestrum numenque<sup>1</sup> ciendo.

Numen dicunt esse imperium, dictum ab nutu,  $\langle quod cuius nutu \rangle^2$  omnia sunt, eius imperium maximum esse videatur: itaque in Iove hoc et Homerus et  $A\langle c \rangle cius^3$  aliquotiens.

86. Apud Plautum:

(Ni)si¹ unum: epityrum² estur³ insane bene.

Epityrum vocabulum est cibi, quo frequentius Sicilia

§ 84. <sup>1</sup> So F; but the codd. of Terence have obsonat. See A. Spengel, Bemerkungen 268-270.

§ 85. <sup>1</sup> For numerique. <sup>2</sup> Added by Lachmann.

<sup>3</sup> Vahlen, for alius.

§ 86. From Plautus, for si. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for epytira. B, Laetus, for estuer.

<sup>§ 84. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Adelphi 117; see critical note. <sup>b</sup> With meo supply sumptu. <sup>e</sup> Quia ut pelliculae subiguntur, Festus, 331. I M.; the pelles were kneaded in the process of making them into soft leather. <sup>d</sup> Page 7 Preibisch. <sup>e</sup> To prevent pollution of the sacred fire. <sup>f</sup> Com. Rom. Frag., Atell. inc. nom. ix., page 335 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. <sup>g</sup> Euphemism.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 84-86

84. In Terence a:

He whores, he drinks, he's scented up at my expense.

Scortari' to whore 'is to consort quite frequently with a harlot, who gets her name scortum from pellis 'skin' c: for not only did the ancients call a skin scortum, but even now we say scortea for things which are made of leather and skins. In some sacrifices and chapels we find the prescription d:

Let nothing scorteum ' made of hide ' be brought in, with this intent, that nothing dead should be there. In the Atellan farces f you may notice that the countrymen say that they have brought home a pellicula g rather than a scortum.

85. In Accius a:

By invoking your name And your numen with many a prayer.

Numen 'divine will or sway,' they say, is imperium 'power,' and is derived from nutus 'nod,' because he at whose nutus 'nod' everything is, seems to have the greatest imperium 'power'; therefore Homer b uses this word in application to Jupiter, and so does Accius a number of times.

86. In Plautus a:

There's one thing I except:
The olive-salad b there is eaten just like mad.

Epityrum' olive-salad' is the name of a food which was § 85. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 691-692 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 576-577 Warmington; anapaestic. <sup>b</sup> Iliad, i. 528, etc. § 86. <sup>a</sup> Miles Glor. 24, where the text is insanum bene, as also Most. 761 (cod. A, in both passages). <sup>b</sup> A preparation of olives garnished with cheese.

VARRO

quam Italia usa. Id vehementer cum vellet dicere (edi), dixit insane, quod insani omnia faciunt vehementer.

87. Apud Pacuium:

Flexanima ta $\langle m \rangle$ quam¹ lymphata  $\langle$ aut Bacchi sacris Commota.

Lymphata)² dicta a lympha; (lympha)³ a Nympha, ut quod apud Graecos  $\Theta \epsilon \tau \iota s$ , apud Ennium:

Thelis4 illi mater.

In Graecia commota mente quos  $vv\mu\phio\lambda'\eta\pi\tau ovs^5$  appellant, ab eo lymphatos dixerunt nostri. Bac⟨c⟩hi, ⟨qui⟩<sup>6</sup> et Liber, cuius comites a ⟨Baccho⟩ Ba⟨c⟩chae, et vinum in Hispania bacca.

88. Origo in his omnibus Graeca, ut quod apud

Pacuium:

Alcyonis ritu litus pervolgans feror.1

Haec enim avis nunc Graece dicitur άλκυών.2 nostri

4 Added here by GS.; after id by Mue.

§ 87. ¹ Aug., for flex animat aquam. ² Added by Turnebus, cf. Cicero, Div. i. 80. § Added by L. Sp. ⁴ Turnebus, for thetis; cf. Varr. R.R. iii. 9. 19. § Aldus, for lympholemptus. § Added by GS., cf. v. 53. ³ a Baccho Bacchae L. Sp., for abache F (a bacchae II). § 88. ¹ Victorius, for furor. ² Aldus, for abeyon.

<sup>§ 87. &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 422 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. ii. 300-301 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 392 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 306-307 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Thelis for Thetis is cited by Varro, De Re Rust. iii. 9. 19. <sup>d</sup> There is still a belief among the Greeks that the Nymphs, now called Nereids, can render men insane. <sup>e</sup> Such a meaning for bacca is nowhere else attested, and is very doubtful; bacca normally meant 'olive,' but occasionally denoted other small 340

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 86-88

commoner in Sicily than in Italy. When he wanted to say that this was eaten impetuously, he said insane 'crazily,' because the crazy do everything impetuously.

87. In Pacuvius a:

Deeply affected, as though frenzied by the Nymphs Or stirred by Bacchus' ceremonies.

Lymphata 'frenzied by the Nymphs' is said from lympha 'water, water-goddess,' and lympha is from Nympha 'water-nymph,' as for example Thetis among the Greeks, mentioned by Ennius b:

Thelis c was his mother.

Persons of disturbed (commota) mind, whom in Greece they call  $\nu\nu\mu\phi\delta\lambda\eta\pi\tau\sigma\iota$  'seized by the Nymphs,' a our fellow-countrymen from this called lymphati. Bacchi 'of Bacchus,' who is called also Liber; his followers were called Bacchae 'Bacchantes,' from Bacchus; and wine was in Spain called bacca.  $^e$

88. All these are of Greek origin, as is also that which is in the verse of Pacuvius  $\frac{a}{a}$ :

I roam, in halcyon fashion b frequenting the shore.

For this bird is now called in Greek the halcyon, and by our fellow-countrymen the alcedo 'kingfisher'; be-fruits; and was therefore applicable to the grape and to its product wine.

§ 88. ° Trag. Rom. Frag. 393 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 314-315 Warmington. b Like Halcyone, watching for the ship that might bring back her husband Ceyx. When his dead body drifted ashore at her feet, the gods in pity changed them into kingfishers, and imposed calm on the sea for two weeks before the winter solstice, that they might hatch their brood unharmed in a floating nest. This period of calm weather in December is a reality in Greece.

alcedo; haec hieme quod pullos dicitur tranquillo mari facere, eos dies alcyon(i)a³ appellant. Quod est in versu "alcyonis ritu," id est eius instituto, ut cum haruspex praecipit, ut suo quique⁴ ritu sacrificium faciat, et nos dicimus XVviros Graeco ritu sacra, non Romano facere. Quod enim fit rite, id ratum ac rectum est; ab eo Accius

rite perfectis sacris

⟨recte⟩⁵ volt accipi.

89. Apud Ennium:

Si voles advortere animum, comiter monstrabitur.

Comiter hilare ac lubenter, cuius origo Graeca  $\kappa \hat{\omega} \mu o s$ , inde comis(s)atio Latine dicta et in Graecia, ut quidam scribunt,  $\kappa \omega \mu \psi \delta i a$ .

90. Apud Atilium:

Cape, caede, Lyde, come, condi.2

Cape, unde accipe; sed hoc in proximo libro retractandum.

<sup>3</sup> GS., for alciona; cf. Serv. in Georg. i. 399.
 <sup>4</sup> Fay, for quisque; but understand as abl.
 <sup>5</sup> rite perfectis sacris recte Turnebus, for recte perfectis sacris.

§ 89. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp.; comoedia Aug.; for comodiam. § 90. <sup>1</sup> Aug., for lide. <sup>2</sup> Kent, for conde.

<sup>c</sup> Cf. Plautus, Poen. 355-356. <sup>d</sup> In charge of the Sibylline Books. <sup>e</sup> No etymological connexion. <sup>f</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 690 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 574-575 Warmington.

§ 89. ° Trag. Rom. Frag. 365 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. i. 374-375 Warmington. ° Not of Greek origin, but adverb to the native adjective comis 'affable.' ° Correct etymologies; but apparently not all ancient authorities agreed that  $\kappa\omega\mu\omega\delta ia$  came from  $\kappa\tilde{\omega}\mu\sigma$ s. It is not a question of (Latin) comodia or comoedia.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 88-90

cause it is said to hatch its young in winter, at a time when the sea is calm, they call these days the Halcyonia 'Halcyon Days. As for the expression alcyonis ritu 'in halcyon fashion' in the verse, this means "according to the habit of that bird," as when the seer directs the making of each sacrifice in its own ritus 'fashion,' and we say that the Board of Fifteen conduct the ceremonies in the Greek ritus 'fashion,' not in the Roman fashion. For what is done rite 'duly,' that is ratum 'valid' and rectum 'right'; from this, Accius wishes

When the ceremonies have been rite 'duly' performed to be understood as recte 'rightly' performed.

89. In Ennius a:

If you'll give me your attention, 'twill be courteously explained.

Comiter  $^b$  'courteously' means cheerfully and willingly; it is derived from the Greek word  $\kappa \hat{\omega} \mu o s$  'merry-making,' from which come the Latin comissatio  $^c$  'revel' and in Greek, as certain authorities write,  $\kappa \omega \mu \omega \delta i a$   $^c$  'comedy.'

90. In Atilius a:

Take it, Lydus, cut it, fix it, season it.

Cape b 'take,' the same word from which comes the compound accipe 'receive'; but this must be taken up again in the next book.

§ 90. ° Com. Rom. Frag., page 38 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. A direction to the cook, to prepare some dish: come 'bring together' the main ingredients; condi 'put in the seasoning,' more probably than the manuscript conde 'store away' in the pantry or storeroom. ° This seems to indicate that the imperative cape was not in common use unless compounded with a prefix. ° This promise is not fulfilled.

VARRO

91. Apud Pacuium:

Nulla res Neque cicurare neque mederi potis est neque (rem)<sup>1</sup> reficere, Cicurare<sup>2</sup> mansuefacere: quod enim a fero discretum, id dicitur cicur, et ideo dictum

cicur ingenium optineo mansuetum; a quo Veturii quoque nobiles cognominati Cicurini. Natum³ a cicco cicur videtur; ciccum dicebant membranam tenuem, quae est ut in malo Punico discrimen; a quo etiam Plautus dicit:

Quod volt de(me)nsum,4 ciccum non interduo.

92. Apud Naevium:

Circumveniri video(r)1 ferme iniuria.

Ferme dicitur quod nunc fere; utrumque dictum a ferendo, quod id quod fertur est in motu atque adventat.

93. Apud Plautum:

Euax, iurgio uxorem tandem abegi a¹ ianua.

§ 91. <sup>1</sup> Added by A. Sp. <sup>2</sup> For cicorare. <sup>3</sup> Groth (Cicurini Aug.), for cicuri innatum. <sup>4</sup> Canal, for densum.

§ 92. <sup>1</sup> Ribbeck, for ciccum venire uideo.

§ 93. 1 After abegi ab of Plautus, for ab regia.

<sup>§ 91. °</sup> Com. Rom. Frag. 388-389 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. ii. 312-313 Warmington; the double negative is here intensifying, as in Greek (cf. also Plautus, Mil. Glor. 1141 and Persa 535), instead of cancelling as is regular in Latin. b For this name, cf. C.I.L. 1¹. page 630. c Very improbable etymology. d Frag. inc. fab. 2 Ritschl: literally, 'as for the fact that he wants his rations, I do not set even a ciccus as the value of the difference to me whether he gets them or 344

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 91-93

91. In Pacuvius a:

There's no device Which can tame or cure the business or remake it new.

Cicurare 'to tame' is the same as mansuefacere 'to make tame'; for what is distinct from the ferum 'wild' is called cicur' tame,' and therefore the saying

A cicur nature I possess

means a tame or civilized nature; from which the nobles of the Veturian clan had the added name Cicurinus.<sup>b</sup> Cicur seems to be derived from ciccus; ciccus is the name which they gave to the thin membrane which is the division between the sections in, for example, a pomegranate <sup>c</sup>; from which moreover Plautus says <sup>d</sup>:

But that he wants his rations, I don't care a whit.

92. In Naevius a:

I see I'm nigh encircled by unrighteousness.

Ferme 'nigh' is said for that which is now fere b 'approximately'; both are derived from ferre 'to bear,' because that which fertur' is borne' is in motion and approaches some goal.

93. In Plautus a:

'Ray! by my wordy strife my wife at last I've driven from the door.

was measured out to him.

§ 92. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 56 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 150-151 Warmington. <sup>b</sup> Fere was not derived from ferre; its superlative ferme was little used in Varro's time, but became common again in Livy and Tacitus.

§ 93. Men. 127, which has: Euax, iurgio hercle tandem uxorem, etc.

VARRO

Euax verbum nihil² significat, sed effutitum naturaliter est, ut apud Ennium:

Hahae,3

Ipse clipeus cecidit;

apud Ennium:

Eu,<sup>4</sup> mea puella,  $\langle e \rangle^5$  spe quidem id successit<sup>6</sup> tibi ; apud Pompilium :

Heu, qua me causa, Fortuna, infeste premis??

Quod ait iurgio, id est litibus : itaque quibus res erat in controversia, ea vocabatur lis : ideo in actionibus videmus dici quam rem sive litem8 dicere oportet.

Ex quo licet videre iurgare esse ab iure dictum, cum quis iure litigaret; ab quo obiurgat is qui id facit iuste.

94. Apud Lucilium<sup>1</sup>:

Atque aliquo(t) sibi² (si)³ ab rebus clepsere foro qui.

Clepsere dixit, unde etiam alii clepere, id est corripere, quorum origo a clam, ut sit dictum clapere, unde clepere E ex A<sup>4</sup> commutato, <sup>5</sup> ut multa. Potest vel a Graeco dictum  $\kappa\lambda\epsilon\pi\tau\epsilon\nu$  clepere.

<sup>2</sup> For nichil. <sup>3</sup> A. Sp., for hehae. <sup>4</sup> Ribbeck, for heu. <sup>5</sup> Added by Ribbeck. <sup>6</sup> Mue., for succenset. <sup>7</sup> For promis. <sup>8</sup> Aldus, for militem.

§ 94. <sup>1</sup> Vertranius, for Lucretium. <sup>2</sup> Kent; aliquo sibi GS.; for aliquos ibi. <sup>3</sup> Added by Marx. <sup>4</sup> L. Sp.; ex E A Aug.; for et ex ea. <sup>5</sup> Aug., for commutatio.

&lt;sup>b</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 333-334 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 368-369 Warmington.
<sup>c</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 402 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 380-381 Warmington; heu of the manuscript is an error for eu, since Varro would hardly devote two of his four examples to the same interjection.
<sup>d</sup> Trag. Rom. 346

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 93-94

Euax 'hurray!' is a word that in itself means nothing, but is a natural ejaculation, like that in Ennius b:

Aha, his very shield did fall!

Also in Ennius c:

Bravo, my child! That's happened better than you hoped.

In Pompilius d:

Alas! O Fortune, why do you crush me hostilely?

As for iurgio 'by wordy strife,' that is litibus 'by contentions': therefore men between whom a matter was in dispute, called this a lis 'suit'; therefore in legal actions we see it said:

Matter or suit to which one must make a plea.

From this, you may see that iurgare of to contend in words is said from ius right, when a person litigaret went to law iure with right; from which he obiurgat rebukes, who does this iuste with justice.

94. In Lucilius a:

And if some of the things any stole for themselves from the forum.

He said clepsere 'stole,' from the same source whence others say clepere, that is 'to snatch away'; they come from  $clam^b$  'secretly,' giving clapere and then clepere, with change of A to E, as in many words. But clepere can quite well be said from Greek  $\kappa\lambda \acute{\epsilon}\pi\tau\epsilon\iota\nu$  'to steal.'

Frag., page 263 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>. From the radicals in ius and agere, as litigare from those in lis and agere.

§ 94. a 1118 Marx; ab rebus, partitive with aliquot, though ab is rarely so used. For postponed indefinite qui, cf. Lucilius, 263 and 266 Marx. b Clepsere and clam are both from the root in celare 'to conceal,' and akin to (not derived from) Greek κλέπτεω.

VARRO

95. Apud Matium:

Corpora Graiorum maerebat¹ mandier igni.

Dictum mandier a mandendo, unde manducari, a quo et<sup>2</sup> in Atellanis Dossenum<sup>3</sup> vocant Manducum.

96. Apud Matium:

Obscaeni1 interpres funestique om(i)nis2 auctor.

Obscaenum dictum ab scaena<sup>3</sup>; eam, ut Graeci, et<sup>4</sup> Accius scribit scena(m).<sup>5</sup> In pluribus verbis A ante E alii ponunt, alii non, ut quod partim dicunt (scaeptrum, partim)<sup>6</sup> sceptrum, alii Plauti Faeneratricem, alii Feneratricem<sup>7</sup>; sic faenisicia ac fenisicia,<sup>7</sup> ac rustici pappum Mesium,<sup>8</sup> non Maesium,<sup>9</sup> a quo Lucilius scribit:

Cecilius (pretor)10 ne rusticus fiat.

§ 95.  $^{1}$  Mue., for merebar.  $^{2}$  a quo et L. Sp., for et a quo.  $^{3}$  For ad obsenum.

§ 96. <sup>1</sup> Vertranius, for obsceni. <sup>2</sup> Aug., for omnis. <sup>3</sup> Vertranius, H, for scena. <sup>4</sup> Norisius, for aut. <sup>5</sup> Lachmann, for scena. <sup>6</sup> Added by B. <sup>7</sup> fen- Laetus, for foen-. <sup>8</sup> Laetus, for maesium. <sup>9</sup> L. Sp., for moesium. <sup>10</sup> praetor added by Scaliger (whence pretor Mue)., from Diomedes, 1. 452. 18 Keil.

<sup>§ 95. °</sup> Frag. Poet. Lat., page 48 Morel. Cn. Matius, fl. 95-80, translated the Riad into Latin, and wrote also mimiambi. b Translating Riad, i. 56. ° Derivative of dorsum 'back.' d Why the Humpback should be called Chewer, is not clear. Both were stock characters in the Atellan Farces; Horace, Epist. ii. 1. 173, has quantus sit Dossennus edacibus in parasitis 'how great a Dossennus he is among the greedy hangers-on,' which suggest that Dossennus also was a large eater.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 95-96

95. In Matius a:

Grief he felt that the bodies of Greeks were chewed by the fire.

Mandier 'to be chewed' is said from mandere 'to chew,' whence manducari 'to chew,' from which also in the Atellan Farces they call Dossennus c' Humpback' by the name Manducus' Chewer.' d

96. În Matius a:

He the interpreter, sponsor of foul and funereal omen.

Obscaenum 'foul' is said from scaena 'stage' b; this word Accius writes scena, like the Greeks. In a considerable number of words some set A before the E, and others do not d; so what some spell scaeptrum c'sceptre,' others spell sceptrum, and some spell the name of Plautus's play Faeneratrix 'The Woman Money-lender,' others Feneratrix. Similarly faeniscia 'mown hay and fenisicia; and the countrymen call the old man's character Mesius, not Maesius, from which peculiarity Lucilius is able to write b:

Cecilius let's not elect to be countrified pretor.

§ 96. \*Frag. Poet. Lat., page 48 Morel: apparently translating Riad, i. 62. \*Probably a correct etymology, and the variation in the orthography of scena is the basis for that in the adjective. \*Greek  $\sigma\kappa\eta\nu\dot{\eta}$ . \*The country-folk pronounced as E what the city Romans sounded as AE; Greek  $\eta$  in  $\sigma\kappa\eta\nu\dot{\eta}$  and  $\sigma\kappa\dot{\eta}\pi\tau\rho\sigma\nu$  was perhaps represented by AE in the speech of city Romans trying to avoid a country accent. \*From Greek  $\sigma\kappa\dot{\eta}\pi\tau\rho\sigma\nu$ . \*Originally with E, not AE. \*A stock character in the farces; cf. vii. 29. \*1130 Marx; ridiculing the country pronunciation of the candidate, who sounded the AE like E. Rusticus instead of urbanus.

Quare turpe ideo obscaenum, 11 quod nisi in scaena 12 palam dici non debet.13

97. Potest vel ab eo quod pueris¹ turpicula res in collo quaedam suspenditur, ne quid obsit, bonae2 scaevae causa scaevola appellata. Ea dicta ab scaeva, id est sinistra, quod quae sinistra sunt bona auspicia existimantur; a quo dicitur comitia aliudve quid, si(cu)t3 dixi, (scaeva fieri)4 avi,5 sinistra quae nunc est. Id a Graeco est, quod hi sinistram vocant σκαιάν<sup>6</sup>; quare, quod dixi, (ob)scaenum<sup>7</sup> omen est omen turpe; quod unde id dicitur (os),8 osmen, e quo S9 extritum.

98. Apud Plautum:

Quia ego antehac te amavi (et mihi amicam esse crevi.1

Crevi)2 valet constitui: itaque heres cum constituit se heredem esse, dicitur cernere,3 et cum id fecit, crevisse.

<sup>11</sup> Vertranius, B, for obserroum. <sup>12</sup> Vertranius, for scaenam. <sup>13</sup> For dedet.

§ 97. <sup>1</sup> Aug., with B, for puerilis, with l erased. <sup>2</sup> Aug., with B, for ubonae. <sup>3</sup> GS., for sit. <sup>4</sup> Added by GS. <sup>5</sup> Turnebus, for aut. <sup>6</sup> Aldus, for scean. <sup>7</sup> Aug., for

sceuum. <sup>8</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>9</sup> Mue., for quod. § 98. <sup>1</sup> Added by Aug., from Plautus. <sup>2</sup> Added by L. Sp. <sup>3</sup> Victorius, for canere.

<sup>§ 97.</sup> a An amulet in the shape of a membrum virile, as a charm against the evil eye. by In taking the auspices by the flight of birds, the Roman faced south and the Greek faced north; therefore, as the east (where the sun rose) was always the favourable part of the templum (cf. vii. 7), the Roman considered the left side favourable and the Greek 350

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 96-98

Wherefore anything shameful is called obscaenum, because it ought not to be said openly except on the scaena 'stage.

97. Perhaps it is from this that a certain indecent object a that is hung on the necks of boys, to prevent harm from coming to them, is called a scaevola, on account of the fact that scaeva is 'good.' b It is named from scaeva, that is sinistra 'left,' because those things which are sinistra 'on the left side 'are considered to be good auspices; from which it is said that an assembly or anything else takes place, as I have said, with scaeva avi 'a bird on the left side,' which is now called sinistra. The word is from the Greek, because they call the left side σκαιά; wherefore, as I have said, an obscaenum omen is a foul omen: omen itself, because that by which it is spoken is the os' mouth,' is by origin osmen, from which S has been worn away by use.

98. In Plautus a:

Since long ago I loved you and decided you're my friend.

Crevi <sup>b</sup> 'I decided' is the same as constitui 'I established': therefore when an heir has established that he is the heir, he is said cernere' to decide,' and when he has done this, he is said crevisse' to have decided.'

considered the left unfavourable. Confusion with the Greek method resulted in a double meaning of sinistra in Latin. Scaeva is cognate to the Greek word, not derived from it. vii. 96; apparently as though ob-scaevum, opposite of scaevum, though in this Varro contradicts his view expressed in vii. 96. An older form osmen is correct, but not the connexion with os.

§ 98. a Cist. 1, where the codd. have cum ego; metre, bacchiac. b Not perfect of crescere 'to grow,' but of cernere, whose literal meaning was 'to separate.'

VARRO

99. Apud eundem quod est:

Mi¹ frequentem operam dedistis, valet assiduam: itaque qui adest assiduus fere (e)t quom² oportet, is³ frequens, (cui infrequens)⁴ opponi solet. Itaque illud quod eaedem mulierculae dicunt:

⟨Pol ist⟩o⁵ quidem nos pretio ⟨facile⁶ O⟩ptanti est¹ frequentare: Ita in prandio nos lepide ac nitide Accepisti, apparet dicere: facile est curare ut (adsidue)<sup>8</sup> adsimus, cum tam<sup>9</sup> bene nos accipias.

100. Apud Ennium:

Decretum est stare (atque fodari)1 corpora telis.

Hoc verbum Ennii dictum a fodiendo, a quo fossa.

101. Apud Ennium:

Vocibus concide, fac (s)i mus(s)et1 obrutum.

§ 99. ¹ Aug., for quo desimi. ² Ellis; fere quom Canal; for ferret quem. ³ Aug., with B, for his. ⁴ Added by L. Sp. ⁵ GS. (pol istoc Aug., from Plantus), for dicunto. ⁶ Added by Aug., from Plantus. ² Schoell (after A. Sp., who proposed and rejected optanti), for ptanti F, with p deleted by cross-lines. 8 Added by GS. ² Aug., for iam.

§ 100. ¹ GS., after Fest. 84. 7 M.; est stare et fossari Bergk; est fossare B, Vertranius; for est stare.

§ 101. 1 L. Sp.; fac is musset Mue.; face musset Turnebus; for facinus et.

<sup>§ 99 &</sup>lt;sup>a</sup> Plautus, Cist. 6. <sup>b</sup> Frequens usually means 'in numbers' (that is, many at one place at the same time) 352

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 99-101

99. In the same author, the word frequentem trequent in

Frequent aid you gave me

means assiduam 'busily present': therefore he who is at hand assiduus 'constantly present' fere et quom 'generally and when 'he ought to be, he is frequens, as the opposite of which infrequens c is wont to be used. Therefore that which these same girls say d:

Dear me, at that price that you say it is easy For one who desires it to be frequently with us; So nicely and elegantly you received us At luncheon, clearly means: it is easy to get us to be constantly present at your house, since you entertain us so well.

100. In Ennius a:

Resolved are they to stand and be dug through their bodies with javelins.

This verb fodare 'to dig' which Ennius used, was made from fodere 'to dig,' from which comes fossa 'ditch.'

101. In Ennius a:

With words destroy him, crush him if he make a sound.

and not 'frequent' (that is, one in the same place at many different times), which is why the word here needs explanation. Varro takes it as a shortening of the phrase fere et quom = f'r'e'quom+s, which needs no refutation. "Used especially of a soldier qui abest afuitve a signis' who is or has been absent from his place in the ranks' (Festus, 112. 7 M.). d' Cist. 8-11, with omissions; anapaestic and bacchiac verses alternately.

§ 100. * Ann. 571 Vahlen2; R.O.L. i. 190-191 Warmington.

§ 101. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 393 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 378-379 Warmington.

Mussare dictum, quod muti non amplius quam  $\mu \hat{v}$  dicunt; a quo idem dicit id quod minimum est:

Neque, ut aiunt, μῦ facere audent.

102. Apud Pacuium:

Di<sup>1</sup> monerint meliora atque amentiam averruncassint (tuam,<sup>2</sup> Ab)<sup>3</sup> avertendo averruncare, ut deus qui in eis rebus praeest Averruncus. Itaque ab eo precari solent, ut pericula avertat.

103. In Aulularia:

Pipulo te1 differam ante aedis, id est convicio, declinatum a pi\(\rho\) patu² pullorum. Multa ab animalium vocibus tralata in homines, partim quae sunt aperta, partim obscura; perspicua, ut Ennii:

Animus cum pectore latrat.

Plauti:

Gannit odiosus omni totae familiae.

⟨Cae⟩cilii³:

Tantum rem dibalare ut pro nilo habuerit.

§ 102. <sup>1</sup> For dim. <sup>2</sup> Added from Festus, 373. 4 M. <sup>3</sup> Added by Turnebus.

§ 103. <sup>1</sup> So F; but pipulo te hic Nonius, 152. 5 M., pipulo hic Plautus. <sup>2</sup> Aldus, for piatu. <sup>3</sup> Laetus, for cilii.

<sup>b</sup> Onomatopoeic, as Varro indicates. <sup>c</sup> Ennius, Inc. 10 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 438-439 Warmington.

$ 102. <sup>a</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 112 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. ii. 206-207 Warmington; quoted by Festus, 373. 4 M., with tuam, and by Nonius, 74. 22 M. (who assigns it to Lucilius, Bk. XXVI.) with meam. <sup>b</sup> Monerint is perf. subj. of monere, a form known from other sources also. <sup>c</sup> The word combines averrere 'to sweep away' with runcare 'to remove weeds.' <sup>d</sup> Mentioned elsewhere only by 354.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 101-103

Mussare b 'to make a sound' is said because the muti 'mute' say nothing more than mu; from which the same poet uses this for that which is least c:

And, as they say, not even a mu dare they utter.

102. In Pacuvius a:

May the gods advise b thee of better things to do, and thy madness sweep away!

Averruncare c ' to sweep away ' is from avertere ' to avert,' just as the god who presides over such matters is called Averruncus.<sup>d</sup> Therefore men are wont to pray of him that he avert dangers.

103. In The Story of the Money-Jar a:

By my cheeping I'll bring you into disrepute before the house.

This pipulus 'cheeping' is convicium' reviling,' derived from the pipatus' cheeping' of chicks. Many terms are transferred from the cries of animals to men, b of which some are obvious and others are obscure. Among the clear terms are the following: Ennius's c

For it his mind and his heart both are barking. Plautus's <sup>d</sup>

The odious fellow yelps at all his household, every one. Caecilius's  $^\epsilon$

To bleat the thing abroad, so that he thought it nought.

Gellius, v. 12. 14, as a god who may avert ills from men if his favour be won.

§ 103. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Aul. 446. <sup>b</sup> The special words in this and the next section are properly used of animal cries and noises, but in these citations are applied to sounds made by human beings. <sup>c</sup> Ann. 584 Vahlen<sup>2</sup>; R.O.L. i. 174-175 Warmington; cf. Odys. xx. 13. <sup>d</sup> Fab. inc., frag. III Ritschl. <sup>c</sup> Com. Rom. Frag. 249 Ribbeck<sup>3</sup>; R.O.L. i. 554-555 Warmington.

355

VARRO

Lucilii:

Haec, inquam, rudet ex rostris atque hei $\langle u \rangle$ htabit.<sup>4</sup>

Eiusdem:

Quantum hinnitum atque equitatum.

104. Minus aperta, ut¹ Porcii ab lupo:

Volitare ululantis.

En(n)ii2 a vitulo:

Tibicina maximo labore mugit.

Eiusdem a bove:

Clamore<sup>3</sup> boyantes.

Eiusdem a leone:

Pausam fecere4 fremendi.

Eiusdem ab haedo<sup>5</sup>:

Clamor ad caelum volvendus per aethera vagit.

Suei a6 (merula)7:

Frendit e fronde et fritinni $\langle t \rangle^8$  suaviter.

<sup>4</sup> From Nonius, 21. 20, for heilitabit. § 104. <sup>1</sup> L. Sp.; aperta Aug.; for aperiant. <sup>2</sup> For enii. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for clamorem. <sup>4</sup> Rhol., for facere. <sup>5</sup> Aug., for edo. <sup>6</sup> Luc. Mueller, for sueta. <sup>7</sup> Added by GS., after Heraeus. <sup>8</sup> Stowasser, for frendice frunde et fritinni F; fronde Kent.

&#x27;261 Marx; said of a man seeking the support of the voters, according to Nonius, 21. 18 M. '2175 Marx. § 104. '2 Cf. page 46 Morel. 'b Inc. 7 Vahlen'; R.O.L. i. 438-439 Warmington. 'c Ann. 585 Vahlen'; R.O.L. i. 174-175 Warmington; boare from Greek $\text{boav}$ 'to shout,' with assimilation to $bov-em' 'ox.' \(^d Ann. 586 \text{Vahlen'}$; R.O.L. i. 174-175 Warmington. 'c Ann. 531 Vahlen'; 356

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 103-104

Lucilius's f

This, I say, he'll bray from the stand and lament to the public.

The same poet's g

How much neighing and prancing like horses.

104. Less clear are the following, such as that of Porcius, an expression derived from wolves a:

To flutter while howling.

That of Ennius, from calves b:

The piper-girl doth bleat with great to-do.

That of the same poet, from oxen c:

Bellowing with uproar.

That of the same poet, from lions d:

A stop they made of the roaring.

That of the same poet, from young goats ::

Shouting rolls to the sky and wails through the ether.

That of Sueius, from blackbirds f:

From 'midst the leaves he g snaps his bill h and sweetly chirps.'

R.O.L. i. 156-157 Warmington; perhaps clamos or clamorque should be read, or the word order changed, to give a long syllable in the second place. 'Sueius, page 54 Morel: writer of idylls and on the habits and breeding of birds; perhaps identical with the eques M. Sueius, aedile in 74, friend of Varro and Cicero and owner of a profitable bird-breeding establishment. 'Denoting a man, not a bird. 'Frendere, often meaning 'to gnash the teeth,' here means 'to make a harsh note,' as certain birds do. 'Cf. Corpus Gloss. Lat. vi.-vii., on fritamentum (vox merulae) and fritinniunt.

VARRO

Macci<sup>9</sup> in Casina, a fringuilla:

Quid fringuttis? Quid istuc tam cupide cupis? Suei10 a volucribus11:

> Ita tradet aeque in re(m) neque12 in Iudicium Aesopi nec theatri trittiles.

105. In Colace:

Nexum . . .

(Nexum)1 Manilius2 scribit omne quod per libram et aes geritur, in quo sint mancipia; Mucius, quae per aes et libram fiant ut obligentur, praeter quom3 mancipio detur. Hoc verius esse ipsum verbum ostendit, de quo quaerit(ur)4: nam id aes5 quod obligatur per libram neque suum fit, inde nexum dictum. Liber qui suas operas in servitutem pro pecunia quam debebat (nectebat),6 dum solveret, nexus vocatur, ut ab aere obaeratus. Hoc C. Poetelio

§ 105. ¹ Added by L. Sp., who recognized the lacuna. ² Laetus, for mamilius. ³ Huschke, for quam. ⁴ Aug., for querit. ⁵ Mommsen, for est. ⁶ debebat nectebat Kent: debeat dat Aug.; for debebat.

&lt;sup>9</sup> GS., after Mati Mue., for Maccius. <sup>10</sup> Baehrens, for sues. <sup>11</sup> Mue.; a volucri L. Sp.; for auoluerat. 12 Kent, for tradedeque inreneque.

Plautus, Cas. 267; the more common orthography is fringilla and friguttis. * Frag. Poet. Lat., page 54 Morel; wrongly listed by Ribbeck<sup>3</sup> as Juventius, Com. Rom. Frag. IV. 1 Trit, the sound made by the crushing or breaking of a hard grain or seed, as by the strong-beaked birds. If the text is correctly restored, the passage refers to a complaint against trittiles, that is, persons who made similar noises and thereby disturbed a theatrical performance; the poet says that he will refer the complaint to a regular law-court, and not to the prejudiced decision of the 358

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 104-105

That of Maccius in the Casina, from finches j:

What do you twitter for? What's that you wish so eagerly?

That of Sueius, from birds k:

So he'll bring the snappers <sup>1</sup> fairly into court and not To the judgement of Aesopus <sup>m</sup> and the audience.

105. In The Flatterer a:

A bound obligation . . .

Nexum 'bound obligation,' Manilius b writes, is everything which is transacted by cash and balance-scale, c including rights of ownership; but Mucius d defines it as those things which are done by copper ingot and balance-scale in such a way that they rest under formal obligation, except when delivery of property is made under formal taking of possession. That the latter is the truer interpretation, is shown by the very word about which the inquiry is made: for that copper which is placed under obligation according to the balance-scale and does not again become independent (nec suum) of this obligation, is from that fact said to be nexum' bound.' A free man who, for money which he owed, nectebat 'bound' his labour in slavery until he should pay, is called a nexus 'bondslave,' just as a man is called obaeratus 'indebted,' from aes 'moneydebt.' When Gaius Poetelius Libo Visulus e was offended actor and of the annoyed fellow-spectators.

m Famous tragic actor of Cicero's time.

§ 105. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Frag. IV Ritschl; but possibly from the Colax of Naevius. <sup>b</sup> Page 6 Huschke. <sup>c</sup> That is, by agreement to pay a sum of money, measured by weight. <sup>a</sup> Page 18 Huschke. <sup>c</sup> Consul in 346, 333 (?), 326 (Livy, viii. 23. 17), and dictator in 313 (Livy, ix. 28. 2), in which Varro sets the abolition of slavery for debt, though Livy, viii. 28, sets it in his third consulship.

359

⟨Li⟩bone Visolo¹ dictatore sublatum ne fieret, et omnes qui Bonam Copiam iurarunt, ne essent nexi dissoluti.

106. In Ca(sina):

Sine amet, i sine quod lubet id faciat, Quando tibi domi nihili delicuum est.

Dictum ab eo, quod (ad) deliquandum non sunt, ut turbida quae sunt deliquantur, ut liquida fiant. Aurelius scribit delicuum esse ab liquido; Cla(u)dius ab eliquato. Si quis alterutrum sequi malet, habebit auctorem.

Apud Atilium:

Per laetitiam liquitur

Animus.

Ab liquando liquitur fictum.

VI. 107. Multa apud poetas reliqua esse verba quorum origines possint dici, non dubito, ut apud Naevium in Aesiona mucro¹ gladii "lingula" a lingua; in Clastidio "vitulantes" a Vitula; in Dolo for popillio vocare sillo.

<sup>7</sup> Poetelio Libone Visolo Lachmann; Poetelio Visolo Aug.;

§ 106. <sup>1</sup> In Casina Laetus, sine amet Aldus (from Plautus), for in casineam esses. <sup>2</sup> Aug. (from Plautus), for facias. <sup>3</sup> Plautus has nihil domi. <sup>4</sup> For est. <sup>5</sup> Laetus, for mallet.

§ 107. Aesiona Buecheler, mucro Groth, for esionam uero.

<sup>f</sup> That is, swore that they were not regular slaves, but were held in slavery for debt only.

<sup>g</sup> Mentioned also by Ovid, Met. ix. 88.

§ 106. <sup>a</sup> Plautus, Cas. 206-207; anapaestic. <sup>b</sup> Apparently meant by Plautus as 'lacking,' from delinquere 'to lack,' and so understood by Festus, 73. 10 M., who glosses it with minus. Varro has taken it as 'strainable, subject to straining (for purification),' and has connected it with liquare and liquere 'to strain, purify,' also 'to melt.' <sup>c</sup> Page 360 dictator, this method of dealing with debtors was done away with, and all who took oath <sup>f</sup> by the Good Goddess of Plenty <sup>g</sup> were freed from being bond-slaves.

106. In the Casina a:

Let him go and make love, let him do what he will, As long as at home you have nothing amiss.

Nihil delicuum b' nothing amiss' is said from this, that things are not ad deliquandum' in need of straining out' the admixtures, as those which are turbid are strained, that they may become liquida 'clear.' Aurelius c'writes that delicuum is from liquidum' clear'; Claudius, that it is from eliquatum' strained.' Anyone who prefers to follow either of them will have an authority to back him up.

In Atilius ::

With joy his mind is melted.

Liquitur ' is melted ' is formed from liquare ' to melt.'
VI. 107. I am quite aware a that there are many words still remaining in the poets, whose origins could be set forth; as in Naevius, in the Hesione, the tip of a sword is called lingula, from lingua
' tongue'; in the Clastidium, titulantes ' singing songs

89 Funaioli. d Page 97 Funaioli. d Com. Rom. Frag.,

inc. fab. frag. II, page 37 Ribbeck3.

§ 107. <sup>a</sup> Cf. the beginning of § 109. <sup>b</sup> All the citations in § 107 and § 108 are from Naevius; R.O.L. ii. 88-89, 92-93, 96-97, 104-105, 136-137, 597-598 Warmington. <sup>c</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag. 1 Ribbeck³; for the spelling of the title, cf. Buecheler, Rh. Mus. xxvii. 475. <sup>d</sup> Trag. Rom. Frag., Praet. I Ribbeck³; vitulari was glossed by Varro with παιανίζειν, according to Macrobius, Sat. iii. 2. 11. It is difficult to connect the two words with Latin victus and victoria, so that the resemblance may be fortuitous—unless Vitula be a dialectal word, with CT reduced to T.

"caperrata fronte" a caprae fronte; in Demetrio "persibus" a perite: itaque sub hoc glossema callide subscribunt; in Lampadione "protinam" a protinus, continuitatem significans; in Nagidone "clu\ci\datus" suavis, tametsi a magistris accepimus mansuetum; in Romulo "\(\chi\con\)\sponsus" contra sponsum rogatus; in Stigmatia "praebia" a praebendo, ut sit tutus, quod si\(\chi\)\ta remedia in collo pueris; in Technico "confictant" a conficto convenire dictum;

108. In Tarentilla " $p\langle r \rangle ae\langle l \rangle u \langle c \rangle idum$ " a luce, illustre ; in Tunicularia :

ecbol(ic)as² aulas quassant quae eiciuntur, a Graeco verbo  $\tilde{\epsilon}\kappa\beta$ o $\lambda\dot{\eta}^3$  dictum ; in Bello Punico :

nec satis sardare4

<sup>2</sup> Scaliger, for caudacus. sponsus. <sup>4</sup> Laetus, for sit. <sup>3</sup> Neukirch, with Popma, for bus, for conficiant. <sup>6</sup> Turne-

§ 108. <sup>1</sup> Mue., for pacui dum. <sup>2</sup> Kent, for exbolas, metri gratia. <sup>3</sup> Aldus, for exbole. <sup>4</sup> A. Sp. (from Festus, 323. 6 M.), for sarrare.

* Com. Rom. Frag. after 49 Ribbeck³; caperrata may be related to capra only by popular etymology. † Com. Rom. Frag. after 49 Ribbeck³; persibus is seemingly an Osean perfect participle active, cf. Osean sipus, from which perhaps it is to be corrected to persipus. † Page 113 Funaioli. † Com. Rom. Frag. after 60 Ribbeck³. † Com. Rom. Frag. after 60 Ribbeck³. † Com. Rom. Frag. after 60 Ribbeck³; clucidatus is a participle to a Latin verb borrowed from Greek γλυκίζειν 'to sweeten.' † Trag. Rom. Frag., Praet. II Ribbeck³; for consponsus, cf. vi. 70. † Com. Rom. Frag., 71 Ribbeck³. † Com. Rom. Frag. after 93 Ribbeck³; confictant, derived from confingere.

of victory,' from Vitula' Goddess of Joy and Victory'; in The Artifice, caperrata fronte' with wrinkled forehead,' from the forehead of a capra' she-goat'; in the Demetrius, persibus' very knowing,' from perite' learnedly': therefore under this rare word they write callide' shrewdly'; in the Lampadio, protinam' forthwith' from protinus (of the same meaning), indicating lack of interruption in time or place; in the Nagido, clucidatus' sweetened, although we have been told by the teachers that it means 'tame'; in the Romulus, consponsus, meaning a person who has been asked to make a counter-promise; in The Branded Slave, praebia' amulets, from praebere' providing' that he may be safe, because they are prophylactics to be hung on boys' necks; in The Craftsman, confictant' they unite on a tale, said from agreeing on a confictum' fabrication.

108. Also, in The Girl of Tarentum, a praelucidum 'very brilliant,' from lux 'light,' meaning 'shining':

in The Story of the Shirt,b

They shake the jars that make the lots jump out, ecbolicas 'causing to jump out,' because of the lots which are cast out, is said from the Greek word  $\tilde{\epsilon}\kappa\beta o\lambda \dot{\eta}$ ; and in The Punic War °

Not even quite sardare 'to understand like a Sardinian,'

<sup>§ 108. °</sup> Com. Rom. Frag. after 93 Ribbeck³. ° Com. Rom. Frag. 103 Ribbeck³; R.O.L. ii. 106-107 Warmington (with different interpretation). ° Frag. Poet. Rom. 53-54 Baehrens; R.O.L. ii. 72-73 Warmington. According to Festus, 322 a 24 and 323. 6 M., sardare means intellegere, perhaps 'to understand like a Sardinian,' that is, very poorly, for the Sardinians had in antiquity a bad reputation in various lines. The verse of Naevins runs: Quod bruti nec satis sardare queunt.

ab serare dictum, id est aperire; hinc etiam sera,5 qua remota fores panduntur.

VII. 109. Sed quod vereor ne plures sint futuri qui de hoc genere me quod nimium multa scripserim1 reprehendant quam quod2 reliquerim3 quaedam accusent, ideo potius iam reprimendum quam procudendum puto esse volumen: nemo reprensus qui e segete ad spicilegium reliquit stipulam. Quare institutis sex libris, quemadmodum rebus Latina nomina essent imposita ad usum nostrum: e quis tris4 scripsi Po.5 Septumio qui mihi fuit quaestor, tris tibi, quorum hic est tertius, priores de disciplina verborum originis, posteriores de verborum originibus. In illis, qui ante sunt, in primo volumine est quae dicantur, cur ἐτυμολογική 6 neque ar(s) sit neque ea utilis sit, in secundo quae sint, cur et ars ea sit et (ut)ilise sit, in tertio quae forma etymologiae.9

110. In secundis tribus quos ad te misi item generatim discretis, primum in quo sunt origines verborum¹ locorum et earum rerum quae in locis esse solent, secundum quibus vocabulis te(m)pora sint notata et eae res quae in temporibus fiunt, tertius

<sup>5</sup> Ed. Veneta, for serae.

§ 110. 1 Crossed out by F1, but required by the meaning.

<sup>§ 109. &</sup>lt;sup>1</sup> Laetus, for rescripserint.

for quamquam. <sup>2</sup> For reliquerint. <sup>2</sup> quam quod Aldus,

4 Laetus, for tres. 2 quam quod Aldus, 5 po stands here in F, but with lines drawn through the letters. <sup>6</sup> L. Sp., for ethimologice. <sup>7</sup> ars sit V, p, L. Sp., for ansit. <sup>8</sup> et utilis Turnebus; et illis utilis V; for et illis F. ethimologiae.

&lt;sup>d</sup> In such an etymology, Varro is operating on the basis that things may be named from their opposites; cf. Festus, 122. 16 M., ludum dicimus, in quo minime luditur. § 109. <sup>a</sup> A liber or 'book 'was calculated to fill a volumen where sardare is said from serare 'to bolt,' d that is, sardare means 'to open'; from this also sera' bolt,' on the removal of which the doors are opened.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 108-110

VII. 109. But because I fear that there will be more who will blame me for writing too much of this sort than will accuse me of omitting certain items, I think that this roll must now rather be compressed than hammered out to greater length a: no one is blamed who in the cornfield has left the stems for the gleaning.<sup>b</sup> Therefore as I had arranged six books <sup>c</sup> on how Latin names were set upon things for our use d: of these I dedicated three to Publius Septumius who was my quaestor, and three to you, of which this is the third-the first three on the doctrine of the origin of words, the second three f on the origins of words. Of those which precede, the first roll contains the arguments which are offered as to why Etymology is not a branch of learning and is not useful; the second contains the arguments why it is a branch of learning and is useful; the third states what the nature of etymology is.

110. In the second three which I sent to you, the subjects are likewise divided off: first, that in which the origins of words for places are set forth, and for those things which are wont to be in places; second, with what words times are designated and those things which are done in times; third, the present or 'roll' of convenient size for handling.

b That is, who has cut off the ears of standing grain and left the stalks.

Books II.-VII.; cf. v. 1.

d This sentence is resumed at Quocirca, in the middle of § 110.

v Varro held office in the war against the pirates and Mithridates in 67-66, under Pompey, and again in Pompey's forces in Spain in 49 and at Pharsalus in 48; but it is unknown in which of these he had Septumius as quaestor.

Books V.-VII.

VARRO

hic, in quo a poetis item sumpta ut illa<sup>2</sup> quae dixi in duobus libris soluta<sup>3</sup> oratione. Quocirca quoniam omnis operis de Lingua Latina tris feci partis, primo quemadmodum vocabula imposita essent rebus, secundo quemadmodum ea in casus declinarentur, tertio quemadmodum coniungerentur, prima parte perpetrata, ut secundam ordiri possim, huic libro faciam finem.

&lt;sup>2</sup> Victorius, for utilia. <sup>3</sup> Sciop., for solita.

ON THE LATIN LANGUAGE, VII. 110

book, in which words are taken from the poets in the same way as those which I have mentioned in the other two books were taken from prose writings. Therefore, since I have made three parts of the whole work On the Latin Language, first how names were set upon things, second how the words are declined in cases, third how they are combined into sentences—as the first part is now finished, I shall make an end to this book, that I may be able to commence the second part.

§ 110. <sup>a</sup> This resumes the sentence interrupted at the middle of § 109.

Printed in Great Britain by R. & R. CLARK, LAMITED, Edinburgh

VOLUMES ALREADY PUBLISHED

LATIN AUTHORS

AMMIANUS MARCELLINUS. J. C. Rolfe. 3 Vols.

Vols. I. and II.

APULEIUS. THE GOLDEN ASS (METAMOR-PHOSES). W. Adlington (1566). Revised by S. Gaselee. (6th Imp.)

AULUS GELLIUS. J. C. Rolfe. 3 Vols. AUSONIUS. H. G. Evelyn White. 2 Vols.

BEDE. J. E. King. 2 Vols.

BOETHIUS: TRACTS AND DE CONSOLATIONE PHILOSOPHIAE. Rev. H. F. Stewart and E. K.

Rand. (3rd Imp.)
CAESAR: CIVIL WARS. A. G. Peskett. (3rd Imp.)
CAESAR: GALLIC WAR. H. J. Edwards (7th Imp.)
CATO AND VARRO: DE RE RUSTICA. H. B. Ash and W. D. Hooper. (2nd Imp.)

CATULLUS. F. W. Cornish; TIBULLUS. J. B. Postgate; AND PERVIGILIUM VENERIS. J. W. Mackail. (10th Imp.)

CELSUS: DE MEDICINA. W. G. Spencer 3 Vols. CICERO: DE FINIBUS. H. Rackham. (3rd Imp. revised.) CICERO: DE NATURA DEORUM AND ACADEMICA. H. Rackham.

CICERO: DE OFFICIIS. Walter Miller. (3rd Imp.) CICERO: DE REPUBLICA AND DE LEGIBUS. Clinton W. Keyes.

CICERO: DE SENECTUTE, DE AMICITIA, DE

DIVINATIONE. W. A. Falconer. (3rd Imp.)
CICERO: IN CATILINAM, PRO MURENA, PRO
SULLA, PRO FLACCO. Louis E. Lord.

CICERO: LETTERS TO ATTICUS. E. O. Winstedt. 3 Vols. (Vol. I. 4th Imp., Vol. II. 3rd Imp. and Vol. III. 2nd Imp.)

CICERO: LETTERS TO HIS FRIENDS. W. Glynn

Williams. 3 Vols.

CICERO: PHILIPPICS. W. C. A. Ker. (2nd Imp. CICERO: PRO ARCHIA. POST REDITUM, DE DOMO, DE HARUSPICUM RESPONSIS, PRO PLANCIO. N. H. Watts. (2nd Imp.)
CICERO: PRO CAECINA, PRO LEGE MANILIA, PRO LEGE MAN

PRO CLUENTIO, PRO RABIRIO. H. Grose Hodge.

CICERO: PRO MILONE, IN PISONEM, PRO SCAURO, PRO FONTEIO, PRO RABIRIO POS-TUMO, PRO MARCELLO, PRO LIGARIO, PRO REGE DEIOTARO. N. H. Watts.
CICERO: PRO QUINCTIO, PRO ROSCIO AMERINO, PRO ROSCIO COMOEDO, CONTRA RULLUM.

J. H. Freese.

CICERO: TUSCULAN DISPUTATIONS. J. E. King. CICERO: VERRINE ORATIONS. L. H. G. Greenwood. 2 Vols.

CLAUDIAN. M. Platnauer. 2 Vols.

FLORUS: E. S. Forster; and CORNELIUS NEPOS: J. C. Rolfe.

FRONTINUS: STRATAGEMS AND AQUEDUCTS.

C. E. Bennett and M. B. McElwain.

FRONTO: CORRESPONDENCE, C. R. Haines. 2 Vols. HORACE: ODES AND EPODES. C. E. Bennett. (10th Imp. revised.)

HORACE: SATIRES, EPISTLES, ARS POETICA.

H. R. Fairclough. (4th Imp. revised.) JEROME: SELECT LETTERS. F. A. Wright.

JUVENAL AND PERSIUS. G. G. Ramsay. (5th Imp.) LIVY. B. O. Foster, Evan T. Sage and A. C. Schlesinger. 13 Vols. Vols, I.-V., 1X-XII. (Vols. I. and IX. 2nd Imp. revised.)

LUCAN, J. D. Duff. LUCRETIUS. W. H. D. Rouse. (4th Imp. revised.) MARTIAL. W. C. A. Ker. 2 Vols. (3rd Imp. revised.) MINOR LATIN POETS: from Publicus Syrus to RUTILIUS NAMATIANUS, including GRATTIUS, CALPURNIUS SICULUS, NEMESIANUS, AVIANUS, with "Aetna," "Phoenix" and other poems. J. Wight Duff and Arnold M. Duff. (2nd Imp.)

OVID: THE ART OF LOVE AND OTHER POEMS.

J H. Mozley.

OVID: FASTI. Sir James G. Frazer.

OVID: HEROIDES AND AMORES. Grant Showerman. (3rd Imp.)

OVID: METAMORPHOSES. F. J. Miller. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 6th Imp., Vol. II. 5th Imp.) OVID: TRISTIA AND EX PONTO. A. L. Wheeler.

PETRONIUS. M. Heseltine; SENECA: APOCOLO-CYNTOSIS. W H. D. Rouse. (6th Imp. revised.) PLAUTUS. Paul Nixon. 5 Vols. (Vol. 1. 4th Imp., Vols. II. and III. 3rd Imp.)

PLINY: LETTERS. Melmoth's Translation revised by W. M. L. Hutchinson. 2 Vols. (4th Imp.)

PLINY: NATURAL HISTORY. H. Rackham and W. H. S. Jones. 10 Vols. (Vol. I). PROPERTIUS. H. E. Butler. (4th Imp.)

QUINTILIAN. H. E. Butler. 4 Vols. (Vols. I. and IV.

2nd Imp.)

REMAINS OF OLD LATIN. E. H. Warmington. 4 Vols. Vol. I. (Ennius and Caecilius.) Vol. II. (Livius, Naevius, Pacuvius, Accius.) Vol. III. (Lucilius, Laws of the XII Tables.)

ST. AUGUSTINE, CONFESSIONS OF. W. Watts (1631). 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 4th Imp., Vol. II. 3rd Imp.) ST. AUGUSTINE, SELECT LETTERS. J. H. Baxter.

SALLUST. J. Rolfe. (2nd Imp. revised.)

SCRIPTORES HISTORIAE AUGUSTÁE. D. Magie.

3 Vols. (Vol. 1. 2nd Imp. revised.) SENECA: APOCOLOCYNTOSIS. Cf. PETRONIUS. SENECA: EPISTULAE MORALES. R. M. Gummere. 3 Vols. (Vol. I. 3rd Imp., Vol. II. 2nd Imp. revised.) SENECA: MORAL ESSAYS. J. W. Basore. 3 Vols.

(Vol. II. 2nd Imp. revised.) SENECA: TRAGEDIES. F. J. Miller. 2 Vols. (2nd Imp. revised.)

SIDONIUS: POEMS AND LETTERS. W. B. Anderson.

2 Vols. Vol. I.

SILIUS ITALICUS. J. D. Duff. 2 Vols. (Vol. II, 2nd Imp.) STATIUS. J. H. Mozley. 2 Vols.

SUETONIUS. J. C. Rolfe. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 5th Imp., Vol. II. 4th Imp. revised.)

TACITUS: DIALOGUS. Sir Wm. Peterson; and AGRI-COLA AND GERMANIA. Maurice Hutton. (4th Imp.) TACITUS: HISTORIES AND ANNALS. C. H. Moore and J. Jackson, 4 Vols. (Vol. I. 2nd Imp.)

TERENCE. John Sargeaunt. 2 Vols. (5th Imp.)
TERTULLIAN: APOLOGIA AND DE SPECTACULIS.
T. R. Glover. MINUCIUS FELIX. G. H. Rendall. VALERIUS FLACCUS. J. H. Mozley. (2nd Imp. revised.) VARRO: DE LINGUA LATINA. R. G. Kent. 2 Vols. VELLEIUS PATERCULUS AND RES GESTAE DIVI AUGUSTI. F. W. Shipley.

VIRGIL. H. R. Fairclough. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 12th Imp., Vol. II. 10th Imp. revised.)

VITRUVIUS: DE ARCHITECTURA. F. Granger. 2 Vols.

GREEK AUTHORS

ACHILLES TATIUS. S. Gaselee. AENEAS TACTICUS: ASCLEPIODOTUS AND ONA-

SANDER. The Illinois Greek Club. AESCHINES. C. D. Adams.

AESCHYLUS. H. Weir Smyth. 2 Vols. (3rd Imp.) APOLLODORUS. Sir James G. Frazer. 2 Vols.

APOLLONIUS RHODIUS. R. C. Seaton. (4th Imp.) THE APOSTOLIC FATHERS. Kirsopp Lake. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 5th Imp., Vol. II. 4th Imp.)
APPIAN'S ROMAN HISTORY. Horace White. 4 Vols.

(Vol. I. 3rd Imp., Vols. II., III. and IV. 2nd Imp.)

(Vol. I. Sta Imp., Vols. II. III. and Translation Imp.)
ARATUS. Cf. CALLIMACHUS.
ARISTOPHANES. Benjamin Bickiey Rogers. 3 Vols.
(Vols. I. and II. 4th Imp., Vol. III. 3rd Imp.) Verse trans.
ARISTOTLE: ART OF RHETORIC. J. H. Freese.

ARISTOTLE: ATHENIAN CONSTITUTION, EUDE-MIAN ETHICS, VIRTUES AND VICES. H. Rackham.

(2nd Imp.)

ARISTOTLE: METAPHYSICS. H. Tredennick. 2 Vols.

(2nd Imp.)

ARISTOTLE: MINOR WORKS. W. S. Hett. On Colours, On Things Heard, Physiognomics, On PLANTS, ON MARVELLOUS THINGS HEARD, MECHANICAL PROBLEMS, ON INDIVISIBLE LINES, SITUATIONS AND NAMES OF WINDS, ON MELISSUS, XENOPHANES, AND GORGIAS.

ARISTOTLE: NICOMACHEAN ETHICS. H. Rack-

ham. (2nd Imp. revised.)

ARISTOTLE: OECONOMICA AND MAGNA MORALIA. G. C. Armstrong; with Vol. II. Metaphysics. (2nd Imp.)

ARISTOTLE: ORGANON. H. P. Cooke and H. Tre-dennick. 3 Vols. Vol. I.

ARISTOTLE: ON THE SOUL, PARVA NATURALIA,

ON BREATH. W. S. Hett.

ARISTOTLE: PARTS OF ANIMALS. A. L. Peck; MOTION AND PROGRESSION OF ANIMALS, E. S. Forster.

ARISTOTLE: PHYSICS. Rev. P. Wicksteed and F. M.

Cornford. 2 Vols. (Vol. II. 2nd Imp.)
ARISTOTLE: POETICS AND LONGINUS. W. Hamilton Fyfe; DEMETRIUS ON STYLE. W. Rhys Roberts. . (2nd Imp. revised.)

ARISTOTLE: POLITICS. H. Rackham.

ARISTOTLE: PROBLEMS. W. S. Hett. 2 Vols.

ARISTOTLE: RHETORICA AD ALEXANDRUM. H. Rackham. (With Problems, Vol. II.)

ARRIAN: HISTORY OF ALEXANDER AND INDICA.

Rev. E. Iliffe Robson. 2 Vols. ATHENAEUS: DEIPNOSOPHISTAE. C. B. Gulick. 7 Vols. Vols. I.-VI.

ST. BASIL: LETTERS. R. J. Deferrari. 4 Vols.

CALLIMACHUS AND LYCOPHRON. A. W. Mair; ARATUS. G. R. Mair.

CLEMENT OF ALEXANDRIA. Rev. G. W. Butterworth.

COLLUTHUS. Cf. OPPIAN.

DAPHNIS AND CHLOE. Thornley's Translation revised by J. M. Edmonds; AND PARTHENIUS. S. Gaselee. (3rd Imp.)

DEMOSTHENES: DE CORONA AND DE FALSA

LEGATIONE. C. A. Vince and J. H. Vince.

DEMOSTHENES: MEIDIAS, ANDROTION, ARISTO-CRATES, TIMOCRATES, ARISTOGEITON. J. H. Vince.

DEMOSTHENES: OLYNTHIACS, PHILIPPICS AND MINOR ORATIONS: I-XVII AND XX. J. H. Vince. DEMOSTHENES: PRIVATE ORATIONS. A. T. Murray. 4 Vols. Vol. I.

DIO CASSIUS: ROMAN HISTORY. E. Cary. 9 Vols.

(Vol. II. 2nd Imp.)

DIO CHRYSOSTOM. J. W. Cohoon. 6 Vols. Vol. I. DIODORUS SICULUS. C. H. Oldfather. 12 Vols. Vols. I. and II.

DIOGENES LAERTIUS. R. D. Hicks. 2 Vols. (Vol.

I. 3rd Imp.)

DIONYSIUS OF HALICARNASSUS: ROMAN ANTI-QUITIES. Spelman's translation revised by E. Cary. 7 Vols. Vol. I.

EPICTETUS. W. A. Oldfather. 2 Vols.
EURIPIDES. A. S. Way. 4 Vols. (Vols. I., II., IV.

5th Imp., Vol. III. 3rd Imp.) Verse trans.
EUSEBIUS: ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY. Kirsopp
Lake and J. E. L. Oulton. 2 Vols.

GALEN: ON THE NATURAL FACULTIES. A. J.

Brock. (2nd Imp.) THE GREEK ANTHOLOGY. W. R. Paton. 5 Vols. (Vol. I. 3rd Imp., Vols. II. and III. 2nd Imp.)

GREEK ELEGY AND IAMBUS WITH THE ANACRE-

ONTEA. J. M. Edmonds. 2 Vols.

THE GREEK BUCOLIC POETS (THEOCRITUS. BION, MOSCHUS). J. M. Edmonds. (6th Imp. revised.) GREEK MATHEMATICAL WORKS. Ivor Thomas. 2 Vols. Vol. I.

HERODES. Cf. THEOPHRASTUS: CHARACTERS. HERODOTUS. A. D. Godley. 4 Vols. (Vol. I. 3rd Imp., Vols. II.-IV. 2nd Imp.)

HESIOD AND THE HOMERIC HYMNS. H. G. Evelyn

White. (5th Imp. revised and enlarged.)

HIPPOCRATES AND THE FRAGMENTS OF HERA-CLEITUS. W. H. S. Jones and E. T. Withington. 4 Vols. HOMER: ILIAD. A. T. Murray. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 4th Imp., Vol. II. 3rd Imp.)

HOMER: ODYSSEY. A. T. Murray. 2 Vols. (4th Imp.)

ISAEUS. E. S. Forster.

ISOCRATES. George Norlin. 3 Vols. Vols. I. and II. ST. JOHN DAMASCENE: BARLAAM AND IOASAPH. Rev. G. R. Woodward and Harold Mattingly. (2nd Imp. revised.)

JOSEPHUS. H. St. J. Thackeray and Ralph Marcus.

9 Vols, Vols, I.-VI. (Vol. V. 2nd Imp.) JULIAN. Wilmer Caye Wright. 3 Vols. (Vols. I. and II. 2nd Imp.)

LUCIAN. A. M. Harmon. 8 Vols. Vols. I.-V. (Vols. I. and II. 3rd Imp.)

LYCOPHRON. Cf. CALLIMACHUS.

LYRA GRAECA. J. M. Edmonds. 3 Vols. (Vol. I. 3rd Imp., Vol. II. 2nd Ed. revised and enlarged.) LYSIAS. W. R. M. Lamb.

MARCUS AURELIUS. C. R. Haines. (3rd Imp. revised.) MENANDER. F. G. Allinson. (2nd Imp. revised.)

MINOR ATTIC ORATORS (ANTIPHON, ANDOCIDES, DEMADES, DEINARCHUS, HYPEREIDES). K. J.

Maidment. 2 Vols. Vol. I.

OPPIAN, COLLUTHUS, TRYPHIODORUS. A. W. Mair. PAPYRI (SELECTIONS). A. S. Hunt and C. C. Edgar. 4 Vols. Vols. I. and II.

PARTHENIUS. Cf. DAPHNIS AND CHLOE.

PAUSANIAS: DESCRIPTION OF GREECE. W. H. S. Jones, 5 Vols. and Companion Vol. (Vol. I. 2nd Imp.) PHILO. 10 Vols. Vols. I.-V. F. H. Colson and Rev. G. H. Whitaker; Vols. VI. and VII. F. H. Colson.

PHILOSTRATUS: THE LIFE OF APOLLONIUS OF TYANA., F. C. Conybeare. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 3rd Imp...

Vol. II. 2nd Imp.)

PHILOSTRATUS: IMAGINES: CALLISTRATUS: DESCRIPTIONS. A. Fairbanks.

PHILOSTRATUS AND EUNAPIUS: LIVES OF THE SOPHISTS. Wilmer Cave Wright.

PINDAR. Sir J. E. Sandys. (6th Imp. revised.)

PLATO: CHARMIDES, ALCIBIADES, HIPPÁRCHUS, THE LOVERS, THEAGES, MINOS AND EPINOMIS. W. R. M. Lamb.

PLATO: CRATYLUS, PARMENIDES, GREATER

HIPPIAS, LESSER HIPPIAS. H. N. Fowler.

PLATO: EUTHYPHRO, APOLOGY, CRITO, PHAE-DO. PHAEDRUS. H. N. Fowler. (7th Imp.)

PLATO: LACHES, PROTAGORAS MENO, EUTHY-DEMUS. W. R. M. Lamb. (2nd Imp. revised.)

PLATO: LAWS. Rev. R. G. Bury. 2 Vols. PLATO: LYSIS, SYMPOSIUM, GORGIAS. W. R. M. Lamb. (2nd Imp. revised.)

PLATO: REPUBLIC. Paul Shorey. 2 Vols. (Vol. I.

2nd Imp. revised.)

PLATO: STATESMAN, PHILEBUS. H. N Fowler; ION. W. R. M. Lamb.

PLATO: THEAETETUS AND SOPHIST. H. N. Fowler.

(2nd Imp.)

PLATO: TIMAEUS, CRITIAS, CLITOPHO, MENEXE-NUS. EPISTULAE. Rev. R. G. Bury.

PLUTARCH: MORALIA. 14 Vols. Vols. I.-V. F. C.

Babbitt; Vol. X. H. N. Fowler.

PLUTARCH: THE PARALLEL LIVES. B. Perrin. 11 Vols. (Vols. I., II., III. and VII. 2nd Imp.)

POLYBIUS. W. R. Paton. 6 Vols. PROCOPIUS: HISTORY OF THE WARS. H. B. Dewing. 7 Vols. Vols. I.-VI. (Vol. I. 2nd Imp.) QUINTUS SMYRNAEUS. A. S. Way. Verse trans.

SEXTUS EMPIRICUS. Rev. R. G. Bury. 3 Vols. SOPHOCLES. F. Storr. 2 Vols. (Vol. I. 6th Imp., Vol.

II. 4th Imp.) Verse trans. STRABO: GEOGRAPHY. Horace L. Jones. 8 Vols.

(Vols. I and VIII. 2nd Imp.) THEOPHRASTUS: CHARACTERS. J. M. Edmonds; HERODES, etc. A. D. Knox.

THEOPHRASTUS: ENQUIRY INTO PLANTS. Sir Arthur Hort, Bart. 2 Vols. THUCYDIDES. C. F. Smith. 4 Vols. (Vol. I. 3rd Imp., Vols. II., III. and IV. 2nd Imp. revised.)

TRYPHIODORUS. Cf. OPPIAN.

XENOPHON: CYROPAEDIA. Walter Miller. 2 Vols. (2nd Imp.)

XENOPHON: HELLENICA, ANABASIS, APOLOGY, AND SYMPOSIUM. C. L. Brownson and O. J. Todd. 3 Vols. (2nd Imp.)

XENOPHON: MEMORABILIA AND OECONOMICUS.

E. C. Marchant. (2nd Imp.)

XENOPHON: SCRIPTA MINORA. E. C. Marchant.

VOLUMES IN PREPARATION

GREEK AUTHORS

ARISTOTLE: DE CAELO, W. K. C. Guthrie, ARISTOTLE: HISTORY AND GENERATION OF ANIMALS. A. L. Peck.
ARISTOTLE: METEOROLOGICA. H. P. Lee,
MANETHO. W. G. Waddell.
NONNUS. W. H. D. Rouse.
PAPYRI: LITERARY PAPYRI. Selected and translated by C. H. Roberts.
PTOLEMY: TETRABIBLUS. F. C. Robbins.

LATIN AUTHORS

S. AUGUSTINE: CITY OF GOD. J. H. Baxter.
CICERO: AD HERENNIUM. H. Caplan.
CICERO: DE ORATORE. Charles Stuttaford and W. E.
Sutton.

CICERO: BRUTUS, ORATOR. G. L. Hendrickson and H. M. Hubbell.

CICERO: PRO SESTIO, IN VATINIUM, PRO CAELIO, DE PROVINCIIS CONSULARIBUS, PRO BALBO. J. H. Freese.

COLUMELLA: DE RE RUSTICA. H. B. Ash.

PRUDENTIUS. J. H. Baxter.

QUINTUS CURTIUS: HISTORY OF ALEXANDER. J. C. Rolfe.

DESCRIPTIVE PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION

London WILLIAM HEINEMANN LTD Cambridge, Mass. HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS

VICTORIA UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

